TWITTERINGS.

The schedule of the Lancaster Avicultural Society's Show is, we hear, shortly to be issued.

Report of Chester Show should state, Mules, any variety, 1st, 2nd, and special, Wright, writes Mr. T. Wright (Hoole, Chester).

We hear from the secretary of the Hertford Show, Mr. F. Looker, that the entries close date has been extended to January 1st.

The Cup winner at the recent Crook C.B.S. Show was Mr. R. Wilkinson, writes the sec., Mr. A. Bowes, and not Mr. Raine, as originally reported.

Kindly note my change of address to 56, Beulah Road, Tunbridge Wells, writes Mr. H. G. Whibley, hon. sec. of the Tunbridge Wells and Dist. F.A.

I have removed from Leonard Road, Birches Hd., writes Mr. J. Simcock, hon. sec. of Potteries and Dist. C.B.A., to 12, Talbot Street, Hanley, where all communications should be sent.

Report of Gateshead Show, in consequence of an error in the catalogue, credits Mr. Corston with 4th prize in Unflighted Norwich Hens, whereas it was my bird that was so placed.—W. N. MIDGLEY (Winslow).

All prize money at the Edinburgh Ornithological Open Society's Show has now been paid, and the committee take this opportunity of returning thanks to all kind friends for the support accorded them, writes Mr. James Melrose, sec.

Coventry Godiva C.B.S. hope that all fanciers will give them their best support for their first open show, as all our members are old fanciers and we hope to make it a successful show this year.—W. H. BRAY, sec., 12, Bery Street, Coventry.—Advt.

The secretary of the Reading and Dist. C.B.S. —Mr. G. A. Charles—sends us copies of several letters received from prominent fanciers, congratulating them on the promptitude with which they paid out the prize-money, and on the general excellence of the management of their recent show.

Regarding the letter which appeared in CAGE BIRDS of the 6th December, signed "St. Mungo," I am put down by many Glasgow fanciers as being the writer of the same, writes Mr. R. B. Jarvie (Shawlands, Glasgow). Kindly allow me to contradict this and so oblige one of your oldest readers and admirers.

We hear that the Newcastle C.B.S. intend holding their annual social, at which there will be a concert, dancing and refreshments, on January 8th, in the Co-operative Hall, Darn Crook. Tickets, 1s. 6d. each, may be had of the secretaries, Messrs. Currie and Hutchinson, 60, Grosvenor Gardens, of any of the committee, or of Mr. T. C. Crawhall (secretary of the social), 121, St. George's Terrace, Newcastle.

The Christmas Number is a splendid piece of work, and I am very pleased with it.—J. KIDGER (Darnall, Sheffield).

I have done exceedingly well with my advert. in CAGE BIRDS, which speaks very highly in its favour.—F. BORRACLOUGH (Hyde).

At Spalding Show there will be no amalgamation, and full prize money will be paid within 14 days, write Messrs. Murrell and Elviss, the secs.

Buckingham Show report credits 2nd, 4th, and he in mule class to Mr. Summers, writes Mr. G. Simonds, secretary, whereas it should be Simonds.

Burton-on-Trent report says:—Unevenmarked: 1, Tyler; and Nat. Col.: 2, Walton and Noakes, which should read, Irone, writes Mr. T. Irons (Northampton).

Through my advert. in CAGE BIRDS the other week, writes Mr. W. Lawton (Glossop), I have had orders from all over the country, which speaks well for your valuable paper.

Owing to the small number of entries received (not yet 40), it has been decided to accept them till first post on Monday, the 30th, writes Mr. W. Pawley, sec., Plumstead Show.

I have been a reader of your splendid paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. A. Robertson (Edinburgh), and have to thank you for the valuable information it contains from week to week. It has enabled me to breed Canaries for this last 10 months, which is the time I started.

Kindly thank all those who answered my advertisement last week, writes Mr. A. S. Patieson (Gravesend), as I find it quite impossible to reply to all. I had 35 replies from all parts of the country. CAGE BIRDS is a first-rate medium for disposing of surplus stock.

The winners of the CAGE BIRDS' Coupon Competition in the recent Hartlepool Show, writes Mr. Ernest Woodhead, the sec., are as follows: 1st, Class 29, No. 1, T. Marwood; 2nd, Class 1, No. 5, Messrs. Ambler; 3rd, Class 30, No. 1, Dr. O'Neal; and "C.B." Special by E. Woodhead.

Please thank for me through CAGE BIRDS all who wrote re my advertisement of December 14th. The inquiries and offers I received for my birds were enormous, which made it impossible for me to answer all. I am receiving offers up to time of writing this.—W. CRAVEN (Leeds).

I am sorry to say, writes W. H. Bamsey (Derby) that I do not get any better in health, and our late show has not tended to improve matters; in fact, the worry has been too much for me, and at our committee meeting last evening (December 21st) I gave notice of my resignation. A rest I must have.

OBITUARY.

MR. G. A. CLIFTON (St. Ives).

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. J. Oldaker, of Camden Town, that I have to announce to your wide circle of readers the sudden death of Mr. George Alfred Clifton, of St. Ives, Hunts, on December 16th, at the age of 53, from heart failure. He was well known among the Fancy when he was in London. I am sure all friends will join me in sympathy with the widow and family

Many thanks for the valuable information I have received from CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. T. Kidger (Darnall, Sheffield). Never having bred a Canary before, I thought I would have a try last season, and am pleased to say that I bred 11 young ones from one pair. All have made fine birds. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

I must say that your two recent coloured plates of Mules, and Hybrids, are grand, and they will make two good additiones to my already framed plates of these varieties, which you gave away about the year 1903. There is great credit due to you and the artist in turning out such life-like specimens.—W. H. BAMSEY (Derby).

I have disposed of many of my Norwich Plainheads, as advertised through the columns of your popular and up-to-date paper, and I am astounded at the enquiries I am getting now, from Guernsey, Malta, Scotland and Wales, and all over the country. All I can say is that it is a testimonial in itself, sufficient to guarantee advertisers and fanciers using your paper to advertise their stock.—A. J. MARLEY (Leyton).

The Washing Competition, held by the members of the Bradford East O.S. on Dec. 17th, writes Mr. H. Hill, hon. sec., resulted in the 1st prize being carried off by Mr. F. Gelder, and 2nd and 3rd by Mr. W. Laycock. There was a good muster of members to witness the competition, which proved very interesting. The birds were put through the process very expeditiously, and all of them came out well. Mr. G. R. Rushworth officiated as judge.

We hear that Mr. P. Victor Williams, Hinstock Hall, Market Drayton, has purchased from Mrs. De Von her King Bird of Paradise, which won 1st and special at Cambridge, Luton, Sutton Coldfield, etc., the first bird of its kind to appear on a show bench. Mr. Williams has been a breeder of Canaries for several years, though this is the first season he has exhibited, and he has spared no expense in getting together his Norwich and Yorkshire Canaries.

We have received from Mr. J. W. Ramsden an advance proof of the classification of the Border Sections at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show, and note that over the eight classes offered no fewer than 33 valuable special prizes are given. This should result in a good response from exhibitors, especially seeing that Mr. Brownlie will personally supervise the packing and staging, and will have an expert staff to assist him. All exhibits will be got off promptly and early on the closing day.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE DIPPER IN CAPTIVITY.

SIR, Referring to the letter, and to Mr. S. A. Sandy's article, which appeared in last week's C.B., I should like to offer my congratulations to Miss K. D. Fitzmaurice for her successful efforts in keeping the Dipper in captivity. Every fancier, I am sure, will sympathise with Miss Fitzmaurice in being so unfortunate with regard to Dublin Show At the same time allow me to state hers would not have been the first Dippers exhibited recently. My friend, Mr. Mackwell, Keighley, exhibited one in October this year at North Shields, without success. At Troon Show, Mr. T. Cowan, of Troon, obtained a fourth with one I supplied him this year, and I also had a fourth with one at Kilmaurs last season. I am greatly surprised that more fanciers do not try their hand with such an interesting bird as the Dipper. It is evident they can live in captivity, if properly treated, as shown by Miss Fitzmaurice's letter. I have kept them myself for months together, and believe I could moult them, with care and attention; at least, I intend to try, and have reason to believe I shall be successful. CHAS. SHIRLEY.

SOMETHING LIKE A FOSTER PARENT!

SIR,—I wonder if it would interest my fellow readers to hear about the tameness of one of our canaries? During the last season one of our hens reared only one baby. When it was about eight days' old she left off feeding it, and began to build another nest on the top of the poor little mite. So we decided to hand-feed it. But the trouble was to keep it warm. Now, we have a very tame hen and cock. The hen had just laid four eggs, and was sitting on them; so we popped the youngster in beside her. She quite approved of the arrangement, and allowed us to take the baby out, many a time a day, without moving a feather. The little thing stayed with its foster mother until two days before her own eggs hatched out—which they all did. She is a very tame hen; when we clean out the cage, as soon as we put in our hand, she jumps on our arm, and trots up and down, pulling bits out of our sleeve. Needless to say, she will take anything from our fingers. The cock is just as tame. F. OVERTON.

WITHHOLDING AWARDS & PRIZE MONEY AT KENTISH SHOWS.

SIR,—Your correspondent writes about Kentish shows withholding prize money; why does he single out Dover? Why not all the societies, which, like Dover, looked after their finances, as well as the exhibitors? We all like full prize money, but must not be quite so selfish, and should have a little thought for the societies. It is a great pity that the letter was not signed "Petty Spite. I hear some have vowed they will never again be members in a very spiteful way, and to try and injure a society which has such a good name in Kent, and will maintain it, without any help from the writer, who, I suppose, is upset at something. E.H.

SIR,—It was not my intention to enter into this discussion, but as Mr. Horrex, "hon. sec. of the Dover F. and F. Society," has brought the Kent County C.B.A. into it, I feel it my duty, as one of its oldest members and promoters, to say a few words against the charges made by Mr. Horrex, who says that owing to a split in our ranks certain members of the K.C. boycotted their show. You are wrong, Mr. Horrex. The ill-feeling which undoubtedly exists between the Dover F. and F. Society and the K.C.C.B.A. dates back from the formation of the latter, nearly two years ago, and the first boycott was practised on us by the F. and F. Society at our first annual show held in January last. On that occasion, the members of the F. and F.S. who purchased tickets or visited our show could be easily counted on the fingers of one hand. This we might have looked over, and I feel sure should have done, but the same thing occurred again at our second show held in October. Therefore, after such treatment as this, is it to be wondered at that a few of us were non-supporters of the F. and F. Show? No, Mr. Horrex, the F. and F. Society have brought it on themselves. They would have strangled the K.C.C.B.A. long ago if it lay in their power, but we have come to stay, and the sooner the F. and F. Societies recognise this fact the better it will be for them. With regard to the split in our ranks that Mr. Horrex speaks of, I will endeavour to elucidate the matter so that a wrong impression may not be conveyed to those not conversant with the facts. Some weeks ago it was suggested by the local members of the K.C. that the annual show ought to be held in some town other than Dover, and, with this aim in view, committeemen "in one or two towns where it was thought possible for a show to be held," were communicated with and asked if they could run the show, but in each case they declined. All members were then asked to vote for or against a show being held in Dover, the result being 27 for and nine against. This result, however, did not meet the views of our chairman, who resigned in consequence, and with him (as was expected) three others. One of these four entered two birds at our show, the other three nil. But we did not collapse, as was expected by a few; everything went off splendid, and was a grand success. In conclusion, I would advise Mr. Horrex, before he condemns the actions of men who have grown old in the fancy, to become a fancier himself. AMANA.

SIR,—I have read with interest the letters that have appeared on the above, and fully endorse those of "Commune Bonum" and "Exhibitor." Like "Exhibitor," I cannot be classed as a disappointed one, being fortunate enough to win a good percentage of prizes I have competed for. It is all very well for the secretary to complain about "Commune Bonum" rushing into print, but he cannot dispute the fact that the Dover Society have treated the cage bird fanciers very badly indeed. Being a British Hard-bill exhibitor, I should like to know why the two soft-bill classes received special favour in being awarded first, second and third prizes in a class of only three entries, and first in a class of five entries respectively, yet in the remaining cage bird section first prize was withheld in classes of four and five entries, second prize being awarded, and that at half-prize money too. I cannot think a judge who is judging a cage bird section, and withholding first prize in classes of four and five, would give first, second and third prizes in a class of three, unless he was instructed to do so. To say the two first prize winners in the two soft-bill classes were of higher merit than any in the hard-bill section is ridiculous. Take my Goldfinch, which is a good bird of his specie, as the following prizes he has won this season will prove: Rochester, first and cup; Southend, first and special; Battersea, first and special; Kent C.B.A., 1st; Gillingham, first, cup and two specials; Margate, first and special; Dover, second (first withheld); Folkestone, second; Canterbury, second and special (first withheld)—amounting to six firsts, three seconds, two cups, and six special prizes. The Shrike is a good bird; but how many Shrikes have opposed it? Not one in any Kent show. It wins on rarity. It may be a good bird of its species, but how do we know whether it is or not?

F. WICKHAM.

VARIATIONS IN BIRDS.

SIR, — I was very interested in Mr. F. Finn's lecture on the changes in colour of the feathers of birds as published in CAGE BIRDS. It is a branch of the fancy which has always given pleasure to me. I expect I have seen alive and in the flesh more abnormally coloured birds than most persons. Mr. Finn states that in cases where the male and female appear alike in colour there must be some difference, or the sexes would not know their respective partners. I should say that the birds know each other's voices or call-note. Has not Mr. Finn noticed that in all birds, where the normal colour is green, the albinos are always yellow, and never white? The Chaffinch is the shortest removed from a green colour, but in the immature stage they have a greenish shade, and Chaffinch Albinos are always yellow, showing the pink eye. But I believe that if anyone takes sufficient pains in selection, and gives suitable food, white Canaries can be bred. He also says that no one yet has astonished the world with a black Canary. I have never seen one, but I have seen Goldfinch-Canary Mules of a jet black colour. He also comments on the red colour showing on some Albinos; Cinnamon Redpolls show the red on the crown. Again, the carmine red colour of the Pine Grossbeak, the Scarlet Bullfinch, and the Purplefinch does not moult into a brown colour, but more of a dirty yellow colour. Amongst the curious varieties will be found silver grey Starlings, Linnets, and Goldfinches. But it does appear very strange that no one has yet succeeded in breeding abnormal birds from abnormal parents. The late Mr. Swailes bred pied and cinnamon Redpolls together for four generations, but every one of the young came of the common colour. He used some of these with their pied parents, but with no result except common colour. He also bred from Goldfinches, both parents being Cheverals, but no young Cheverals appeared. Now I am writing about Mr. Swaile, it may be news to some of your readers to know that that gentleman bred Bearded Tits in his aviary. In CAGE BIRDS of Nov. 26, 1904, will be found an article from my pen on some of the variations in birds that I have seen. J, H. VERRALL.

BEGINNERS: READ "CAGE BIRDS" ANNUAL.

WHAT CONSTITUTES THE "BEST BIRD" IN A SHOW.

SIR, In view of the controversy now running in your paper re the recent award (at Dulwich and Peckham Show) for the best bird, the point has repeatedly struck me—What constitutes a best bird? Before entering into the pros and cons, I should like to give two instances, one which took place at a show where I was present, and the other at two recent shows held near London. The first case, although relating to pigeons, gives one an excellent idea of the views under which judges labour. Two valuable trophies were given to the pigeon section of the show in question, one for the best Working Homer and the other for the best pigeon, for which, of course, the winning Homer was eligible to compete. The winning Homer turned out to be a bird that had won at the Dairy and most of the large shows throughout the country, proving, as the judge said, a champion of its variety. The fancy pigeon classes brought together a very poor entry and were judged by another judge. The best bird in this section proved to be a very ordinary Turbit (this being the opinion of most of those present) and which the judge himself said would have some difficulty in winning in a Turbit class; here it won in the A.O.V. class. In due course the special for best pigeon in show came to be awarded, the Homer judge advocating his bird, the fancy pigeon judge his, and from 12.30 till 5.30 p.m. the question was still being fought out, and formed one of the topics of the show, and not until the arrival of another judge was the matter settled, and he, to the surprise of many, gave his vote in favour of the Turbit. Now, I argue that in this case the Homer walked home. He had proved himself a champion of champions, and stood out as an ideal bird of its variety, whereas the only point the other bird had in its favour was that it possessed certain fancy properties, and these presumably not strong enough to carry it to the front in a class of its own variety; and moreover, the question was fought out in the open show, and I maintain that in all such cases, and especially in the Cage Bird Fancy, no such important specials should be adjudicated upon in open show, neither should they be postponed till the second day of judging. The birds to be judged should be taken to some private place and left with the judges themselves, and should they be unable to agree after a reasonable time the award should be declared off. Fancy allowing a jury on an important case out at large before giving their verdict! The issue as to specials is important to the exhibitor. In the second case, at the Barnet and Enfield Mixed Show, the special for best Cage Bird was given to a Golden Pheasant. By no stretch of the imagination could this bird be termed a Cage Bird. Needless to add, the judge was a fur man. In my humble opinion there is no such thing as a best bird. In the first place, in these days of specialist judging (and in the larger shows where such trophies are usually given specialist judges are engaged) are the judges thoroughly conversant with the merits and demerits of each variety. To illustrate my meaning: Say there are three judges engaged and, for the purposes of argument, one of the three is a man of strong personality and dominant will power. Probably he is an ardent crest breeder. He sees a good specimen of the breed, and perhaps his judging being soon over he keeps the bird in his mind and selects him for his candidate, the other judges selecting, say, a Norwich and Yorkshire respectively, both equally assured that their candidate is the one. The birds are put up and the controversy starts; the strong judge puts his back up and, surrounded by a gaping crowd, with the different owners well in the foreground, the fun commences. By-and-by one or two audible comments are heard. Fanciers impressed by the deadly earnestness of the strong-willed judge (part of the game, of course), are dropping comments such as the following:—"Why, he walks home!" "No doubt about it," etc., etc. The effect on a rather nervous judge, or one not used to the ordeal, can easily be imagined; he wavers, sighs, and gives way to his more dominant colleague. In this case the predominant judge was a crest-man judge pure and simple, and secondly, the predominating human factor won. This kind of thing takes place week in and week out. To give another true instance and I hope the judge, who I know will read this will not take offence. At a show a year or two back, two birds came up for the cup. Luckily they belonged to the same exhibitor. After scanning them closely for some time, the judge fetched a crony, who was judging the rabbits. On being remonstrated with by the steward, he said, "Ah! my mind's made up." One bird then broke into song; and like a flash the rabbit judge said, "Ah! to be sure, he's singing for it; give it him," and him it was. Then again, how many judges can judge one variety by the standard let alone any and every variety? I should like to see introduced at one or two specialist club shows the same that I am given to understand takes place at some of the specialist Poultry club shows, and that is, to each cage hang a card with the standard allotted out under the various heading, and make the judge place the number he allots to each on the space reserved, the highest number winning. How many judges could do it? Not one in a dozen. And then they throw Yorkshires out for being over length, how about the little 'uns? Not only would this system be conducive to more sport, but it would be of the greatest assistance to the novice who under a good judge could see where his birds failed. It would also be interesting to note if the same bird had half a dozen opinions accorded upon it how many of them would agree, and especially if the same bird came under the same judge twice. But to return to my argument, I maintain there is no such thing as a best bird, on the following grounds:—

(1) That the best sectional birds are of different varieties and the distinctions which govern which is the best cannot be drawn fine enough.
(2) Natural bias of the judge or judges to one given variety.
(3) The system of judging as now carried out.

AVADAVATS BREEDING IN CAPTIVITY.

Sir,—In your issue of September 21st, you recorded my experience with breeding of Avadavats in an out-door aviary. I now wish to supplement those notes by adding that on September 15th when these young Avadavats were about one month old I noticed two singing, one after the other while perching on a small spruce tree in the aviary. Their song was not so powerful as, and only bore a slight resemblance to that of the parents. A few white spots on the secondary and tertiary wing feathers were showing on all the birds by the 27th inst. These spots do not appear to have been the result of a moult but of a growth on the actual feathers. I should like to hear further on this matter. No red feathers appeared on the rump of any of these birds until about the first week in October and these feathers were to all appearances new feathers. They gradually increased until the moult was completed. The eyes changed colour about this time, but the beaks did not show any change in colour until October 20th, the reddish colour commencing from the root of beak. By November 10th the birds were in full moult; the side of their breasts was almost bare and the stub feathers showed plainly. On December 4th I observed that all the birds had completed their moult, all feathers except wing and tail feathers appearing to have been shed. I do not expect these to be shed until the next moult. The beaks gradually all changed colour as the moult advanced and the birds were all looking in fine condition, in spite of their roosting outside throughout this trying period when the nights were cold and wet and on several occasions quite frosty. Now the moult is completed their general appearance is: A little more yellow on the breast than that of the female parent also the lower part of the body and especially the sides which were more numerously spotted with faint white spots. In other respects, except that they are somewhat fresher looking, they are like the parent. From the above, it will be observed that Avadavats are about 15 weeks old by the time they complete their first moult. To these notes I must unfortunately add that on the morning of December 5th, I missed one young one and the female parent, both of which I am afraid had fallen victims to cats or mice; I have strong reasons to suspect the latter. I mentioned in my previous letter that the hen Avadavat had succumbed to the charms of an odd male. A nest was built about 15 inches from the ground in a thick privet bush, but no eggs were laid and the hen soon deserted him again. She evidently preferred the company of her old partner, who seemed pleased to receive her back. I should be glad to hear whether Mr. Wesley Page has heard anything further with reference to results obtained in the aviary devoted to Waxbills in Bedfordshire—an incident which he mentions in his letter to CAGE BIRDS of September 28th. I have seen recorded somewhere the successful breeding of Green Avadavats but not of Golden Breasted Waxbills or Cordon Bleus. Since writing the above I have unfortunately lost the male parent; I found him dead on the morning of December 11th, so that he did not survive his mate. I have now caged up the others, and intend to make war upon the mice.—E. SPRANKLING.

ANTICIPATING THE SUMMER.

SIR,—I have been a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS ever since I commenced to keep birds, and look forward every Friday to my copy. I bought a stock of birds from a fellow workmate, very cheap. I have two self-coloured Yorkshire cocks, one buff Yorkshire cock, one German Roller cock, one clear Yorkshire hen, also one variegated hen, and the lot did not cost me 10s.; so you see I got a cheap stock. About six weeks ago the variegated hen commenced carrying a feather about in her mouth, also plucking the buff hen which was kept in the same breeding cage. I must mention that included in the price of my birds were two breeding cages and one hanging cage. I destroyed half-a-dozen nests that the hen built, but as fast as I destroyed them she would commence to build again. So I put her a nest basket in, and some building material; also I put the yellow cock in with her. I was undecided which cock to put in, as they are all on full song. Four days after being mated together she commenced to lay. I took the first three eggs out of the nest, and kept them out, to see if she would lay again. But after laying the fourth egg she turned on the cock and nearly killed him. But as I happened to be watching them I took the cock away, and put the eggs under her. She is now sitting on them, just coming off at intervals to have her food. I keep the birds hung upon the walls of our living room. The birds are fed on mixed seed and plenty of green stuff. I have mentioned this case to a few fanciers in Rochdale, but they have heard nothing like it before in Lancashire. They asked me to write to you, to see what readers think about it. A. WALLIS.

GAS AND CANARIES.

SIR,—I noticed an interesting correspondence recently in the "Daily News" under the above heading. A Mr. Canworth, of Tufnell Park, wrote as follows:—"As showing the highly deleterious qualities of gas, I may say a hobby of mine is the breeding of Canaries. In one room I kept 18 birds. This room was lighted by two incandescent burners, and in under a fortnight no less than 13 of them had died. There was quite an epidemic. While in another room lighted by one burner 7 died out of 16. At the time I was at a loss to understand the cause of this until someone sharper than myself suggested that it was the gas, and this notwithstanding that there was always fresh air entering by the window. I was so convinced of its death-dealing properties that I immediately became a convert to electricity, with the result that I have gained in many ways. My birds are such healthy specimens they are the talk of the place. I have kept the whitewashers out, which means a nice sum in my pocket, and we all of us seem brighter and better for the change." The letter brought this response from a Mr. S. Cross, of Abergavenny:—"I have a Canary ten years old, seven years of its life having been spent in a room at the Abergavenny Gas Works, where gas was consumed day and night continuously. The bird has always been noted for its beautiful singing, and even now is equal to many a younger one; therefore, with this experience, I think your correspondent in yesterday's issue must look for some other cause than coal gas to account for the death of so many of his birds. Added to the products of combustion from one and sometimes two gas burners, the fumes from the gas works would be no mean factor, but the dear old Canary has survived them all; in fact, considering his age, is hearty still." I wonder if readers of CAGE BIRDS can throw any light on which was right and which was wrong? F. CAMP.

THE PLAGUE OF WHEEZINESS.

SIR,—There seems to be almost a plague of this distressing malady at the close of the moult. Doubtless much of it is due to the change of season acting on a frame rendered unusually susceptible by the drain of the moult and the sparsely clothed body. Every case should be treated as early as possible, otherwise the affection may become chronic and incurable. Given an equable temperature—not necessarily a very high one—and perfect freedom from cold, draught, and damp, a few days' treatment with oxymel of squill, syrup of tolu, and lobelia, in the proportion of ten drops of the first to five drops each of the two last in each ounce of drinking water, is a very successful remedy. A small piece of bread scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar daily will also be found very useful, especially in the case of birds that are in a poor condition of body. In the latter case, a few drops of cod liver oil emulsion, dropped about the scalded bread, is very serviceable. In treating this complaint, dampness is to be guarded against above all else. If the disease has become chronic it may be necessary to remove the bird to a warm temperature, but when matters have been allowed to drift to this stage that bird is of little further use, and should not be bred from. When one has to deal with such cases as we have just described, it is as well to note carefully the effect bathing has upon the bird. Very often it will be found to aggravate the symptoms to a very considerable extent, and in many cases there can be no doubt whatever that an indiscriminate use of the cold bath when the birds are scantily clad is the first cause of wheeziness. Personally, I prefer to withhold the bath at such times, and give it only on mild, bright days in the early part of the day, to all birds, irrespective of any question of health, and I know lots of cases where wheeziness has been very materially reduced by using the bath with discrimination during the autumn and winter months. CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

THE DESTRUCTIVE BUT INTELLIGENT MACAW FAMILY.

SIR,—If the term were interpreted in a literal sense, the whole family of these birds would most certainly have to be struck off the list of cage birds, but, fortunately, we give the words a broader meaning, and aviculture—or perhaps it would be better to say in this connection, foreign bird keeping—profits thereby. As cage birds pure and simple, the Macaws are not to be thought of, and as aviary inmates they are, in a sense, a luxury only for the bird-lover, whose enthusiasm is second only to the depth of his pocket; for in the one case a cage is scarcely to be found which can long withstand the attacks of their formidable beaks, and, if it could, no cage affords even a tolerable dwelling for a Macaw to be seen as it is in; and in the second case an aviary that could really keep a pair of Macaws safely within its meshes permanently could only, I believe, be erected by a fancier with a good surplus on the right side of his banking account. How it could be constructed or of what material, I leave to future speculation. Pity 'tis, 'tis true. For the destructive habits of the birds, coupled with their vast powers, and the strength of their beaks, make it practically impossible to keep the birds in captivity save by the usual method of chaining them by the leg to a perch fixed on a stand. Truly an ignominious fate for a noble bird, and one which not infrequently lays the owner open to a charge of cruelty. Yet, notwithstanding appearances, the birds must be happy enough when properly treated, and the specimens at the Zoo are, I believe, kept in excellent health and condition by this means.

When kept singly and treated individually, they show quite a large share of the intelligence common to the Parrot race, and soon make most excellent pets. But whilst they can, and do, learn to limit their powers as their confidence in the owner's good intentions grows, their destructiveness when they have liberty is still very great. As an example, I have in mind a very charming bird who could be the very acme of gentleness, and which delighted in playing with his mistress's ears and fingers. At such times, I was assured, the touch of his beak was almost imperceptible. Yet, as he was often allowed the run of the house, he practically destroyed a small flight of stairs by whittling away at them time after time until they became unsafe and had to be renewed. Then came seasons when he thought—it might have been a "she," though I do not think it was, and certainly it never laid an egg in all its long life—he must build a nest and when he seized upon such trifles as a Paisley shawl or woollen wrap, he bit it up into small fragments for nesting material. Once he had successfully commandeered property for this purpose it was useless arguing the matter with him, for if one tried to recover it he put on such a ferocious fighting attitude that it was always considered the most discreet to yield the point in "Mac's" favour. He rarely showed temper with his mistress, who could do pretty much as she liked with him, but on one occasion she narrowly escaped a nasty bite. It happened that a stray waif of the Grimalkin genus was taken under her fostering care, and, mystery of mysteries, the Macaw at once showed an especial interest and fondness for the kitten, treating it just as it might have a baby Macaw. One day it chanced that Grimalkin's moral sense was not proof against the temptations of a juicy chop. It stole the chop, and, whisper it lowly, brought down upon its own head the vengeance of the legitimate owner of its spoil. Worse still, it yelled out at the approach of righteous punishment, and the Macaw, probably fearing his chum was in grave danger, flew blindly to the rescue, alighted on the back of his mistress as she was stooping over the kitten, and made a vicious grab at her head in his blind fury. Luckily for her, he caught hold of a beakful of her tresses, and her voice was able to quell his passion before he made a second grab, but the experience was enough to give birth to a wise resolution never to chastise "Mac's" pal again in "Mac's" presence or hearing. For the present I must leave these interesting Macaw reminiscences right here. A. R. A.

THE LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

SIR,—With reference to the letters, etc., appearing in CAGE BIRDS re length of Yorkshires, if a standard length is fixed, and observed universally, for the "bird of the North," and it is made a rule that the judges shall give their awards accordingly (of course, including all other essential properties), then they would be quite justified in rejecting any over that length, whatever it might be; but it has occurred to me, whether there is a standard after all as regards length, for some go for a small bird, others a medium, and in many cases for an extra long one, although the majority of judges now seem to favour the latter. It means we really have no ideal upon which to work at present, for you will often hear the question asked, when a conversation turns upon show matters, "who is judging?" and one will answer, "Oh, so and so, and he goes for such and such a bird." The consequence is, with any view to success on the present-day show bench, you really have to breed two or three different kinds of birds (or stock them) as regards length, etc., of the one variety to suit certain judges. And where do we find ourselves? Led astray by the difference of opinion as to what a representative Yorkshire should be. Personally, I like the long birds, and my opinion is that in so much as it is more difficult to breed an extra long one possessing at the same time all the other qualifications that go to make up a representative Yorkshire, such as position, quality of feather, shape and general carriage, etc.—a breeder of such should take premier honours to one not so long, although it may be equally as good in other respects. There is no doubt about it; if you are fortunate in producing one of these long birds with symmetry of body and all other essential properties, they really do look beautiful, and are worthy of the highest admiration, because there are so many evils to contend with in breeding them, viz., flat head, weak neck and hollow back, cross wings, open tail, frilled breast, etc. Such a bird can be produced, I think, by dint of close application, careful study, and judicious breeding. I might mention here that I had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Crisp's unflighted Yellow (1st in a class of nearly 40 birds) in Cardiff Show this year, and I venture to say this was over standard length, i.e., taking 6¾ inches as the standard, but I must say it really was a beautiful bird, and had many admirers. If we are to have a standard in the length of the Yorkshire Canary, then I would suggest that a wider scope be given to the breeder, and not confine that standard to an exact size like 6¾ inches (although I can hardly think this is intended to be taken in the strict literal meaning that they must not be a fraction over or under this size, as it would be very difficult to give effect to it). But, say, the standard was fixed at from 6 to 7 or 6½ to 7½ inches; this should be the means of bringing about a recognised length to be observed by judges all over the country, and I think would give more satisfaction all round. Whatever the standard may be fixed at, it should apply equally to under as well as over-sized birds, otherwise the evil would again crop up by partiality in some cases to a very small bird, and by a margin of an inch it would not alter the present type or length of the birds to any great extent, as I think most fanciers seem to be aiming to produce something about 6½ to 7 inches long, and there have been some very good all-round birds shown of this length. After all, it means that if a standard is fixed, we are remaining stationery, and taking into consideration that we are living in an age of keen competition, and everybody tries to go one better each year, I would say, in conclusion, that if a little extra length, with all other points equal, would add to the beauty of the bird of "grace and beauty," then such a bird ought to take precedence over a smaller one. I think it very improbable that an honest judge will give a long bird (say, 7 inches), with coarse feathers and untidy body, the honours over a medium-size bird (6½ inches, say) possessing good qualities all round. It would be interesting to know how they get at the length of these birds. Do they measure them actually, or estimate the size, say, from top of head to base of neck, shoulders to root of tail, and from there to the tip? I hope this will draw forth some other opinions on the matter, as it is quite probable there is some important point I have omitted in giving mine, and that from the experience of one and the other we shall get at the best. * Missel Thrush v. Rat.

In June I was witness to a peculiar combat between a Missel Thrush and a rat. The Missel Thrush while sitting on four eggs was surprised and driven off by a rat. The Thrush, after hovering around for a time, attacked the rat with great fury, and by repeated pecking at its head so injured the rat that it fell from the tree, and I was able to approach and kill it quite easily. The plucky Missel Thrush then resumed its interrupted incubation.—Sent by C. E. FALKINGBRIDGE (age 15), 17, Grange Avenue, Harrogate, Yorks.

The Well-known Hedge-sparrow.

Nearly everybody knows the Hedge-Sparrow. Really it is not a Sparrow, but our only resident warbler. It comes to feed with the other birds in winter, and it is distinguished by its dull breast, red feet, and shuffling hop. Early in March it may be seen on the top of a hedge, singing splendidly. In some parts it is known as the "Blue Dunnock," because of its four or five beautiful blue eggs. The nest is placed in a low bramble or other bush, or in ivy, and is made of moss and roots, and lined with horse-hair and sheep's wool. I have seen an instance where the bird had covered her eggs up in order to hide them from enemies.—F. CROSSLEY (age 15), Madison Avenue, Cheadle-Hulme, Cheshire.

 No Believer in Starvation.

The Starling is a very pretty and interesting bird. With great patience he may be taught to talk and whistle tunes quite correctly if you get a young bird out of the nest and rear it. They are also very greedy birds. I found a nest of four young ones this spring in an old barn, so I took one home and reared it. I think they were about 14 days old. It turned out to be a cock bird, and a very nice one too. It used to fly out of the cage and follow us about, and perch on our heads, and it used to delight to bath under running water. I am sure he would not have died for want of food without letting us know, for he used to make the most awful noise when he was hungry.—Sent by W. COOPER (age 15), Wellington Street, Matlock Bank, Derbyshire.

* The Sleepy Boy.

One snowy morning,
The flowers were all dead,
A little brown dicky
Hopped out of bed.

He was very hungry,
And said I'll see
If that little boy
Has put crumbs for me.

But the boy had forgotten
To throw any out,
Though the poor little dickey
Looked all about.

He looked up at the window,
And called out "Sweet!
Please won't you give me
Something to eat?"

But the boy couldn't hear him,
And didn't know;
And poor little dickey
Died in the snow.

The Song of Birds.

How Do They Learn It?

Some Interesting Observations by the Rev. Theodore Wood.

That well-known naturalist, the Rev. Theodore Wood, has recently been giving his views on this question. He says:—

Three replies to this question seem to be possible. The first is that their song comes to them simply by inheritance; the second, that it is taught to them by their parents; and the third, that it is impressed upon their receptive memories while they remain in the nest, and is reproduced in later life by a mere fact of recollection. None of these explanations, however, is sufficient to cover the whole of the ground.

Three Methods.

Number one is undoubtedly exemplified in the case of the Cuckoo. The mother Cuckoo lays her eggs in the nests of a great variety of other birds, and her young have manifold opportunities of hearing the song of their foster-parents, or of being taught to sing by them. Yet they invariably adhere—or at any rate the males do—to their own distinctive call, though they are unable to utter it till the period of courtship begins, nearly twelve months later. This is undoubtedly a question of inheritance.

And Mr. Hudson tells us, in his "Naturalist in La Plata," "that a young specimen of Rhynchotus rufescens, which was taken from the nest when just breaking the egg-shell and reared artificially, learned nevertheless to render its characteristic song before it was fledged. In this case it could only have heard the parental strains while it still remained in the egg; and there is a good deal of difficulty in believing that under such circumstances the undeveloped little creature could note and remember the song so perfectly as afterwards to reproduce it without a mistake.

But then, on the other hand, it is a well-known fact—the Hon. Daines Barrington, a correspondent of White, of Selborne, called attention to it more than a century ago—that Linnets, if brought up under the care of Skylarks, Woodlarks, and Titlarks, invariably learned the song of the foster-parent instead of their own. And all trainers of song birds know how indispensable it is that their feathered pupils should hear only the particular song which they are required to reproduce.

The Yellow Hammer's Lesson.

In these cases the young birds undoubtedly learn by imitation. And Mr. Hudson tells us again that the cock and hen of the South American Oven-Bird sing a curious kind of duet together, and that the young, while still in the nest, may frequently be heard practising it during the absence of the parents. This seems to point to explanation number three. But I have a very interesting record of a case in which two young Yellow Hammers were obviously receiving a singing lesson from an older bird, presumably the father.

"On a very hot August day," writes my correspondent, "I was stretched on a heatherclad slope on Hindhead, in the Surrey hills, enjoying the sunshine, the bees, and the pleasant rustle of nature. To the right, some twenty yards distant, there sloped a belt of young larch and fir, and to the left various-sized thorns and gorse bushes. From one of these last-mentioned low bushes a Yellow Hammer began to pipe forth his sad little song. This continued for ten minutes or more, the bird evidently not moving from his perch.

"Then, from the belt of firs at the other side of me, came forth the sweetest little trembling imitation of the first part of the older bird's song, the two end notes, and sometimes more, being left out, and the bit-of-bread-and-but——' and stopping there. After a little, a second youngster took it up, and in his turn began in quavering tone to imitate the adult bird, who sang and then paused, when one of the young pupils would again try the strain.

Warming to their Work.

The interest warmed, as by degrees the uncertain little notes grew steadier, and then at last, 'ter-please' was added by one. To the very end of the lesson, however, the other little scholar failed to get the 'ter' properly, generally leaving it out and skipping over to 'please.'

One very curious thing about the lesson was the extreme politeness amongst the birds. If any two of the three happened to commence together, one immediately stopped and allowed the other to continue. I could find no distinct code of precedence about it; it seemed to be a natural courtesy in each. Sometimes it was the adult bird that stopped, and at other times the younger; and only once did it occur that both stopped simultaneously. This continued for fully an hour, and at last I left the two young ones practising by themselves, one having entirely accomplished the full cadence, and the other still occasionally leaving out the last note but one of its sweet and still tremulous baby song.

All Views Correct.

So it would seem that all three replies to the question at the head of this article are correct. Young birds learn their songs in three distinct ways, some by inheritance, some by imitation, and some by direct instruction on the part of the parents.

Young birds first begin to sing, as a rule, in September. After the great August silence their voices are generally the first to be heard.

Perhaps some of my readers may be fortunate enough, during the autumn, to hear some youngsters practising, or receiving tuition from their parents. The subject is a little known as well as a very interesting one, and affords plenty of scope for original observation.

THE TRAINING OF TALKING PARROTS.

The task of teaching Parrots to talk is one of the most arduous that has ever been undertaken, and it says a great deal for the patience of women that the majority of language teachers are of that sex. A lady who has given some years to the work says:— I have tried the phonograph in teaching birds, but never found it satisfactory. Birds not only want the words repeated to them, but they want the attention and individuality of the teacher. Parrots that had already learned certain words would be moved to repeat them on hearing them ground out by the phonograph, but I never had one learn a new word or sentence from the machine. As to teaching them to sing, a couple of lines, or a short verse at the most is all that I have ever been able to accomplish.

I have heard people say that the African birds were brighter and more fluent talkers than the South American or the East Indian birds. I haven't found it so. I think it all rests with the individual bird. Some birds, like some people, are brighter than others. As a rule, I have found it easier to teach a Parrot to speak French than any other language. I have had four that I can now recall who were very good indeed with French and German, but couldn't or wouldn't learn a word of English.

Parrots frequently learn a whole string of words and sentences before they speak them. I have laboured, as I thought unsuccessfully, for as much as two weeks. Never a word would the bird say. Then suddenly something would move it, and there would be a long string of words, and in my voice. Oh, they are curious creatures. Some things they say make my flesh creep, they are so to the point.

A few weeks ago I had a large African Parrot as a pupil. He understood English, and his master wished him to learn German. One day my mother had a friend come in, and a few minutes after she had taken her seat the Parrot cocked his head on one side, and, looking at her, asked—'So John and Mary are fighting again?' He had heard my father say it to my mother the night before when they were talking about this woman's daughter and her husband. If that bird didn't think, what prompted him to make that particular remark to that particular woman?

Another pupil we had never saw my brother and a girl friend together without shrieking at the top of its lungs—'Behave yourself, Nick.' Then he'd make the sound of a kiss. 'Behave yourself, Nick.' The sound of a kiss again. Of course, there was no good in their denying the accusation.

The Yorkshire Canary.

By T. C. CRAWHALL.

A Lecture given by the Secretary of the Northern Yorkshire Canary Club before the Jarrow and District C.B.F.S., on November 12.

The Question of Size.

I think judges ought not to magnify size, especially if at the expense of other good points. They should sink their own pet prejudices, and judge to the standard adopted by such specialist societies as these, else what is the use of having specialist societies?

I do not wish to be misunderstood on this point. Personally, I do not object to size; but we have the anomaly that one judge ignores it, whilst another places it almost before anything else. Perhaps you may think I should have left this point for the critics to decide, but I contend, gentlemen, that this is a point which is very important to a beginner, because he wants to get on the right track at the commencement, and not get disheartened and discouraged by failure. Nothing damps enthusiasm so much as to have a real good bird overlooked by a judge, and an inferior one placed above it. Last season I wrote to a prominent advertiser of Yorkshires for a good show bird. In his reply he asked me who was judging, so that he could send one likely to suit that judge, as the different judges had different types which they preferred. This opened my eyes, and I found it was so at the shows to which I went. But if we follow the standards of the two leading specialist clubs we cannot get far wrong. We may now and again be overlooked, on the whole, we will be the gainers.

On Pairing Up.

The points connected with pairing and breeding Yorkshires have been so thoroughly dealt with in the Fancy Press recently, that it would only be going over the same ground again if I were to go into it in detail. There is, however, one thing I am convinced of, and that is you do not want to believe all the fairy tales told that winners won't breed winners; if that were so, at the end of each season all the winners would be for sale; they would not be wanted for stock purposes. But as we read the advertisements, it is the stock birds that are for sale. You can easily see why breeders say that winners are not bred from winners; if they were to say that no one would want to buy stock pairs. My own plan is to put the birds I consider most perfect together, noting where each fails, and, if possible, counterbalancing its faults in its partner. From these I should expect most prefect youngsters.

Then again, I am a great believer in pedigree; we cannot always afford to buy exhibition specimens for stock purposes. The next best thing is to get their brothers and sisters. We have the authority of Mr. Crisp, president of the Southern Yorkshire Canary Club, and one of the most successful breeders of Yorkshires in the South of England, that show birds are invaluable for breeding purposes. If any of you who are thinking of going in for Yorkshires have the chance of a good exhibition specimen at a reasonable price, my advice is take it, get the best mate you can for it, and you will not be disappointed.

As good exhibition birds usually command big prices, it may not be within the reach of all to buy a bird which can win in open competition. Then we must go to a breeder of repute—not a dealer—and get from him the relatives of some birds he has bred and won with. This advice was given me by a very old breeder of another variety of Canary, and I have no doubt but that it is sound advice. From these you might get a show specimen, and if you did that in your first season, then you would be amply rewarded for your trouble, and your foundation as a breeder be firmly laid.

Another thing which is largely practised by Yorkshire breeders is in-breeding. Mr. Shackleton said in CAGE BIRDS that the birds represented on the coloured plate mentioned were bred from show birds, and, I think I am right in saying, from father and daughter. If this is not exact relationship, it is something very near, and I know that not only Mr. Shackleton, but many others practice in-breeding with their best birds with satisfactory results. I need hardly say that to in-breed with inferior or medium stock, or from two birds showing the same fault, is of no use whatever, as you only fix their inferior points, whereas the object of in-breeding is to fix the good points.

The Introduction of Belgian Blood.

There is no doubt but that most of the winning Yorkshires of to-day have a considerable amount of Belgian blood in their veins. All Canaries are more or less a mixture of different breeds. We are told that all the varieties at present known are descended from that small green singing Finch known as the Wild Canary, and that by selection we have arrived at our present different breeds. How much truth and how much fiction there is in the tale I am not able to tell you. But when we consider the more recent breeds, such as the Yorkshire, we have some data as well as rumour and speculation to go upon.

Quite recently I was considerably surprised to read that the Yorkshire itself had been used to improve the Lancashire by giving it more length of leg, and when we have that on the authority of Mr. John Robson we may be sure that there is some measure of truth in it. Had he said that the Lancashire had been used to improve the Yorkshire I should not have been so astonished, because some years ago a great deal of Lancashire blood was introduced into the Yorkshire to gain size; now it seems the tables are being turned, and the Yorkshire has to help the Lancashire.* The variety chiefly used of recent years to improve the Yorkshire seems to have been the Belgian.

What a useful bird the Belgian must be. A few years ago he was wanted in Scotland, and has been very instrumental in bringing the Scotch Fancy up to its present state of perfection. Even now a good Belgian, I am told, is in great requisition by the breeders of the bird of circle. The value of the Belgian to the Yorkshire breeders is in the breediness or style which it gives to the bird, and fanciers will tell you that it is no use unless you have plenty of "breed" in your strain. The father of the birds which stood first and second in the Buff Class at the last Wallsend Show, Mr. Armstrong's and my own, was one eighth Belgian.

I should not advise you to try the introduction into your own stock unless it were by way of experiment, because you can buy the breedy birds ready-made, and thus save two or three years' work. I advertised this year for a yellow Belgian hen, which I meant to try the experiment with, but I had no replies; therefore I shall have to wait another year, and look out earlier next season for a suitable hen. Many of my birds show the Belgian blood quite distinctly, but I wished to see for myself the results of the first and second crosses with birds I have which revert somewhat to the Lancashire type.

A friend tells me I should introduce the Belgian from the cock's side, but as it is a cock I have which is rather heavy built, and stands a bit across the perch, I wanted the Belgian hen for him. Further, I believe the leading Yorkshire breeders usually introduce the Belgian from the hen's side—at any rate, for the first cross.

*[It is only fair to Mr. Robson to say that in referring to his article he has subsequently said: "I have carefully looked over my article, and failed to find an instance where I said definitely that the Yorkshire cross had been used with a view to improving the Lancashire"—EDITOR.]

Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its Third Edition, entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL."
MR. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

The Housing and Treatment of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

In its native wilds the bird nests from September to January, hence the comparative failure to breed this Serin by the bulk of English aviculturists. The nest, usually found in a low bush, is a neat cup-shaped structure of grass, lined with finer and down. The clutch varies from three to five pale bluish eggs, sparingly spotted with ruddy-brown at the larger end. Incubation lasts 12 to 13 days.

Diet: Canary, white, and spray millet, with flowering grass, groundsel, grit, etc.; with a few ants' cocoons (eggs), and a little soft food. A few oats and a little Paddy rice (rice in the husk) makes a wholesome variation in the diet, which, with a daily bath, will suffice to keep them in a perfect state of health. Hybrids have been produced with the Canary and its grey-coated relative.

Habitat: According to Stark, it is resident in Eastern Cape Colony, Natal, and the Orange Free State, northwards through the Transvaal, Matabele, and Mashonaland, and up the East Coast to Mombassa. In West Africa from Damaraland to Senegambia.

The above treatment will practically suffice for the whole of the Serins; the larger species should be given oats, hemp, and sunflower seeds regularly in addition. All the Serins are good songsters, the Grey Singing Finch, however, surpasses them all for strength, sweetness, and variety.

The Grey Singing Finch (Serinus leucopygius).—This quietly and chastely clad bird is a native of North-Eastern and Equatorial Africa. It is a graceful and pretty inhabitant of the aviary, fluttering about somewhat like a butterfly. The power of song enjoyed by this energetic and pleasing little bird is really surprising; it is a melody both strong, sweet and varied, and almost continuously uttered. It is a fine breeder in captivity, and readily crosses with S. icterus.

Adult male: The general colour of the upper surface is light ashy-brown, slightly striated with dusky-brown centres to the feathers; a blackish bar crosses the lower back, and the wings are white; wing coverts, quills and tail brown, edged with whitish-brown; sides of face and under surface, pale ashy-grey, lighter on the throat, with the breast, abdomen and flanks, white; beak, legs and feet, dusky-flesh colour. Total length, 4¼ inches; tail, 1⅝ inches.

Adult female: Similar, but most individuals are more thickly streaked on the flanks than the male. For the remainder of this charming genus, I shall have to confine myself to description and habitat.

The Cape Canary (Serinus canicollis).—Adult male: The upper surface is greenish-yellow, lightly striated with dusky-brown; rump and upper tail coverts, yellower and not striated; lesser, median, and greater wing coverts, greenish yellow, median and greater coverts edged with yellow, primary coverts and quills, black, edged with yellow; tail, dusky brown, with the outer edges yellow; crown, golden yellow; back and sides of neck, and ear coverts, grey; sides of face, cheeks, and under surface, bright golden yellow, more brilliant on the breast, and washed with green on the sides and flanks; lower abdomen and ventral region, whitish; beak, palo brown; legs and feet, greyish-brown. Total length, 5¼ inches; tail, 2⅛ inches.

Adult female: Varies from the male in being browner above, slightly smaller crown, paler yellow and streaked with dusky; and the yellow of the under surface not so rich in hue. Total length, 4⅞ inches; tail, 2 inches.

The nest is cup-shaped, built in a low bush; the season is from September to November. Incubation lasts 13 days, the eggs being white, faintly tinged with blue and streaked and spotted with brown. Habitat: Resident in Cape Colony, Natal, the Orange Free State, and the Transvaal. Introduced into Reunion (Stark).

The Sulphur Seed-eater (Serinus sulphuratus).—This bird is also known as the Large Yellow Seed-eater, and is a native of Cape Colony, Orange Free State, and Eastern Africa generally. One of the largest of the Serins, and in build resembles the English Greenfinch.

Adult Male: The upper surface is greenish-yellow, striated with blackish; rump and upper tail coverts; dull yellow; lesser wing coverts, greenish-yellow; other coverts, quills, and tail blackish, edged with yellow; crown and back of neck, bright greenish-yellow; eye region, ear coverts, and cheeks, greenish; eye streak and throat, bright golden-yellow; sides of neck, breast, sides, and flanks, greenish-yellow, brighter on the breast; remainder of under-surface, yellow; beak, pale yellow, the upper mandible washed with dusky; legs and feet, dusky. Total length, 6 inches; tail, 2½ inches.

Adult female: Slightly smaller, and the hues of her plumage are not so brilliant; the eye streak is small, and not so rich in colour as that of the male. Total length, 5¾ inches; tail, 2½ inches. The nest is cup-shaped, and placed low down; the eggs are white, very faintly tinged with blue and variably spotted with black; four is the usual clutch, and incubation lasts 14 days.

The St. Helena Seed-eater (Serinus flaviventris).—This bird is also known as the Yellow-bellied Seed-eater, and is abundant in Cape Colony, ranging into the Orange Free State and the Southern Transvaal (Stark). A fine and melodious songster.

Adult Male: Upper surface, yellowish-green, narrowly striated with black; rump, bright yellow; lesser wing coverts, greenish-yellow; remainder of wing coverts, quills, and tail, blackish, edged with yellow; upper tail coverts, dull yellow, with black centres; forehead, eye streak, and eye region, and under surface, golden-yellow; crown and ear coverts, greenish-yellow; sides of face and cheeks, yellow; beak, horn colour, lower mandible much paler than upper; legs and feet, dusky. Total length, 5⅜ inches; tail, 2⅛ inches.

Adult female: Differs from the male, being lighter, greener, and more heavily striated on the upper surface; eye streak, ashy grey; under surface, dull white, washed with yellowish green; sides and flanks, grey, streaked with dusky. The yellow areas of the upper surface of the male are replaced with greyish-green in the female. Total length, 5 inches; tail, 2¼ inches. Breeding: The nest is cup-shaped, constructed of twigs and husks, and lined with cottony down. The eggs are pale blue-green, and spotted with dark and light ruddy-brown. Incubation lasts 13 or 14 days.

Von Der Decken's Seed-eater (Serinus imberbis).—Adult male: Upper surface, greenish-yellow, faintly streaked with dusky on the back and mantle; rump, plain greenish-yellow; upper tail coverts, yellow; lesser wing coverts, greenish-yellow; other coverts and quills, black, with outer edges yellow; tail, dusky, with yellow edges; crown, yellow, tinged with green and narrowly streaked with dusky; eye streak and cheeks, yellow; ear coverts, yellowish-green; under surface, bright yellow, washed on the sides and flanks with green; beak, legs, and feet, brown. Total length, 5 inches; tail, 1⅞ inches. Habitat: According to Stark, they range through Great Namaqua, Damara Land, Transvaal, Nyasaland, and German East Africa to Zanzibar and Central Africa.

Rendall's Seed-eater (Serinus rendalli).—Adult male: Forehead, lores, head and neck, yellow, the latter narrowly striated with brown; back and rump, dark brown, most of the feathers with yellow margins; wings and tail, dusky, edged with yellow; under surface, bright golden yellow; beak, black; legs and feet, dull brown. Total length, 5 inches; tail, 1¾ inches.

Adult female: Upper surface, dusky brown, with white margins; lores and eye region, palo dusky-white; under surface, pale yellow, sparsely streaked with dusky.

White-throated Seed-eater (Serinus albigularis).—A large (length 6¼ inches) and plainly-clad species, local to Cape Colony. Locally known as Thick-beak and Mountain Seedeater. Its song is superior to that of the Cape Canary. Nest: An open cup-shaped structure, loosely constructed with twigs and grass, and lined with downy blossoms. Eggs: Pale bluish-white, sparsely spotted and streaked at the large end with purplish-black. Clutch, 3 to 4. Stark states they are very courageous in defence of their nest; "he saw a pair on one occasion attack a large snake with great courage and success.

Adult male: Upper surface, ashy-brown, striated with dark brown; rump and upper tail coverts, yellowish-green; wing coverts, brown, edged with whitish-brown; quills, dusky brown, with hoary edges; tail, dark yellowish brown, with whitish edges; forecheeks and eyebrow, white; head, cheeks, sides of neck, ear coverts, and under surface, ashy-brown, with the throat, abdomen, and under tail coverts, white; beak, brown colour; legs and feet, brown.

Adult female: Similar, but slightly smaller; her plumage more dusky in hue.

The White-winged Seed-eater (Serinus leucopterus).—Very rare. Adult male: Upper surface, pale brown, lightly tinged with yellowish-olive; wing coverts and quills, dark brown, edged with olive; median and greater coverts, tipped with white, forming a double wing bar; upper tail coverts, brown, with whitish tips; tail, dark brown, with yellowish-olive edges; crown, ashy-brown, with blackish centres to most of the feathers, forehead yellowish; sides of face, ear coverts and cheeks, dusky brown, a streak of pale dusky crosses the ear coverts; throat, white, mottled with black; remainder of under surface, pale ashy-brown, lightly washed with yellowish; thighs, dark brown; ventral region and under tail coverts, whitish. Habitat, South Africa.

The Damara Yellow-rumped Seed-eater (Serinus crocopygius).—Anderson, in his "Birds of Damara Land," states that he met with it sparingly in Damara and Great Namaqua Land, mostly about rocks in the vicinity of water, and that its food consists of seeds and berries.

Quail Keeping in an Aviary.

By ALEXANDER BOYLE.

Any species of these Quails may be profitably kept in captivity, being most interesting as cage birds, extremely hardy and graceful. When thoroughly tamed and accustomed to the aviary, they well repay the bird fancier or naturalist, who desires to study their habits. The Quail, of which I give a brief account, was purchased for a moderate sum at a humble bird stall.

Reconciled to Captivity.

On caging this new acquisition, he was found to be somewhat wild and as a consequence soon became bald through flying upwards and striking his cranium against the wire at the top of the cage. To prevent such a contingency, a piece of cloth or canvas should be temporarily fixed inside the top of the cage; this will effectually prevent the Quail from such injury.

Groats, or whole wheat, hempseed (in cold weather) sprays of millet, etc., will soon reconcile the bird to captivity, and he will eventually become so tame that he will come at call to the front of the cage or aviary and take common house flies from the hand and devour them with avidity. If these are not readily procurable, feed on dried flies or ants' eggs in addition to the seeds and cereals mentioned above.

The Song of the Quail.

The song, or, more properly the call, is very sweet. It sounds, Englished, something like the syllables—pee-vor-oie, pee-vor-oie—plaintively repeated by the bird, with half closed eyes. The old German song has it:—

"Hark to the Quail, how she pipes at morn . . .
Look at her stealing thro' yonder green field,
Telling of sweets that the harvest will yield.
Singing the while as she joyfully glides.

So that it is very probable the Quail when in its natural haunts pipes to his comrades. This can hardly be equal, however, to the piping of the trained Bullfinch, whose cost, when efficient, may be anything from three pounds to thirty guineas, or more.

His Pugnacious Spirit.

The adult male Quails, perhaps more especially the Chinese species, are almost as pugnacious as an old-fashioned English game cock and will fight with an opponent to the death. This truculent spirit and characteristic was frequently taken advantage of by foreigners with sporting instincts, who trained their respective pets to such an extent that they were able to challenge all comers; they staked substantial sums upon a Quail fight.

Many old engravings and pictures from foreign parts show pincipals and eager spectators all grouped around a table or in an arena where the Quails are set to contend for the cup or the shield.

Quails are brought in large numbers to the principal markets of the world and are sold as delicacies for the table. As is universally known, Quail on toast appeals to the gourmand and epicurean, and he would much rather eat him than stay to listen to his pipings. Not so the true lover of bird life, who is on another track altogether.

To provide his birds with the very best treatment while in captivity; to approach as nearly as may be the bird's natural provision is his study continually.

Quails as Breeders.

It has been proved possible for Quails to breed in captivity, providing the aviary is fitted up with dwarf evergreen bushes and growing corn, to some extent resembling its native haunts.

Make the cage impervious to mice and other enemies to bird life. Strew the floor with river sand and grit and provide clean receptacles for water. Also make some nooks for nesting places, because the Quail is of a very shy and retiring nature under all circumstances. Those who have space and opportunity for the experiment, may meet with great success.

Should the hens lay, their eggs, if deserted, may be hatched, if fertile, by means of a broody Bantam hen or doubtless even by incubator. The hens lay from ten to twenty eggs in a clutch, and if properly acclimatised, it is very likely they would greatly add to this number when thoroughly domesticated. This has, indeed, been found to be the case with many other varieties of birds in captivity.

The nest of the Quail is simply a hollow in the ground and is shaped by the bird after the manner in which the Pheasant forms her nest—continually turning the earth until it is formed into the desired shape. It is concealed in the corn or other grain field from the prying eyes of egg collectors.

Though largely a grain-eating bird, yet it would appear that most of these fancy Quails, Californian, Chinese, Australian and others, are always more healthy if supplied with insect food in moderation.

Some of these birds are rare and not easily to be procured, but as a rule the Chinese and American species can be had from 15/- to 21/- per pair from bird dealers of reputation.

Some Concluding Observations.

When removing the birds be careful to hold them in the hand firmly because the texture of their plumage is so smooth that they easily escape from one's grasp, unless properly secured. All the Quail species differ more or less in characteristic markings, but they are all exceedingly handsome, more especially the cock birds.

The young birds can be separated from the adult Quails when about three months old, but it is advisable to give crushed hemp and groats, with suitable grit to aid digestion until they are well on millet seed and ordinary whole wheat.

Good prices can be realised for the fancy Quails. In the hands of capable fanciers it is very probable that Hybrids of great beauty could be produced and these should popularise the keeping and culture of these historic and interesting birds.

On account of the holiday, the next meeting of the N.B.B. and M.C. will be held at Headquarters, The Napier, High Holborn, on Thursday, January 2nd, at 8 o'clock, write Messrs. Plumbridge and Carr, the secs.

We beg to thank all exhibitors who sent their birds to Ruthin Show, our first attempt, which was a great success, writes Messrs. Williams and Roberts, joint hon. secs. We intend to forward now prize cards later, if expenses will permit. Our advt. in CAGE BIRDS did the trick for us.

My advertisement in CAGE BIRDS on December 14 for Exhibition Redstart and cage, writes Mr. Urban Callear (Dawley), brought so many applicants that I am quite unable to reply to all. Your Christmas Number and Plate of "Triumphs of Hybrid Breeding," I consider magnificent.

Please accept my best thanks for prominence given to my two ticked Norwich in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS. These two noted winners generally stand 1st in their respective classes. Kindly allow me to offer my sincere congratulations on the Christmas Number; it was absolutely superb. On looking at the plate of the two Norwich a friend asked me what I thought about them. I told him I was not a greedy man, but I should like to have a dozen in my room like them. Can friend Norman put me on the track of the real ones like them? May the dawn of the new year bring with it continued prosperity to bonnie CAGE BIRDS, and may readers of the same have the best breeding season they have ever known. E. BAKER (Cowes).

Robin Fancies the Coal Shed.

A Robin has made friends with a Scarborough family, we hear, and is renewing its visits for the third winter. It is so fearless that it will hop on to the doorstep to be fed from the backdoor. As a place of refugo from foul weather it is partial to a coal shed.

Rejoicings in Fleet Street.

There was rejoicing at CAGE BIRDS office the other morning. It coincided with the arrival of a box of real Scotch Shortbread, kindly forwarded for our delectation by that well-known Edinburgh Fancier, Mr. D. Kinlayside. As portions of the delicious cake made the round of the office, even the damp and gloom of this new-fashioned Christmas ceased to depress us, and the sub-editor was observed lost in cogitation as to the desirability of visiting Bonnie Scotland for a "wee bit mair," instead of spending the festive season at Monte Carlo. Eh! mon, but it's fetching.

Better Late than Never.

I have only just discovered your splendid little paper, CAGE BIRDS; had I known of it I should have had it from the start. It is a complete fanciers' treasure-house on cage birds. I had mistaken——for one and the same paper, but when my newsagent gave me CAGE BIRDS in mistake (lucky mistake for me!) I have taken it ever since, as it is a long way the best. If you have any specimen copies that I can circulate for you, I will put every single copy in the hands of those who will be as pleased with it as I am.—W. TAFFS (Leytonstone).

Another Noted Bird Stolen.

Mr. E. Baker, the well-known Isle-of-Wight breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Plainheads, asks us to draw attention to the advertisement on the opposite page offering £10 reward for the recovery of his noted unflighted Buff, or information leading to the discovery and prosecution of the person who stole the bird from its place on the benches at the recent Horticultural Hall (London) Show. He further says: "I thought of asking through CAGE BIRDS if this 'gentleman' would send me his address, when I might be able to fit him up with a good yellow hen for breeding."

Readers will remember that during last year's exhibition at the Horticultural Hall, one of Mr. Tyson's birds mysteriously vanished from the showroom, but was returned the day afterwards by a District Messenger boy, from someone, of course, unknown. We trust Mr. Baker may be equally fortunate in getting back his own stolen bird, notwithstanding the interval of time that has now elapsed since it was spirited away.

Readers are reminded that two of our XMAS COMPETITIONS close on Monday next, Dec. 30th, viz: the Coloured Frontispiece and "Where do they Differ?" Post your entries in time.

THE TREATMENT OF FRESH-CAUGHT BRITISH BIRDS.

By AVIC.

At various times there has been quite a number of suggestions made as to the cause of deaths among fresh-caught British birds, and it may be helpful to add a note on this topic. The old, and still the most popular theory is that these deaths are due in a great measure to digestive troubles, set up by the sudden and complete change from a diet of seeds and various moist substances to one of dry, hard seeds alone, in the case of hard-billed birds; and, still worse, in the case of soft-bills, from a diet consisting almost exclusively of some form of insect life to one in which there is rarely more, and often less, than a fourth part of the bulk made up of insect or animal substances. From this, theories have gone on developing, until "shop fever" has been suggested. If one takes the cases all round with the pros and cons brought to bear upon them, one might easily conclude that any or all of these causes were the correct solution. But the supposed evidence in favour of these suggestions is ot to be always taken too literally.

THE CARE OF SOFTBILLS.—

As regards this class of bird, it is quite easy to understand how the very radical change of diet may have disastrous effects on the health of the bird before it has become accustomed to the change. Very often it is sought to make the drastic change practically at one stroke, so to speak, by giving the bird the usual softbill's mixture as soon as it commences to feed in a cage. Such a course is fore-doomed to failure. A radical change of diet such as this cannot be brought about too gradually, and during the transitionary stage economy in such substitutes for insect food as we usually have at command is not to be tolerated. The "meating-off" process of soft-bills, as it is termed, is not by any means the cheapest department in the cage-bird Fancy. Really good ants' eggs, mealworms, and wasp grub, or gentle, are by no means cheap, when they have to form the bulk of the diet of a number of birds. Nevertheless, it is the wisest economy to be liberal with them during this stage of bird-keeping. Then there will be found a marked decrease in the death rate.

AND OF SEED EATERS.

To write of seed-eaters, pure and simple, is, in a sense, misleading. The term is a misnomer, for there is probably no recognised species of cage bird that is exclusively seed-eating in its habit. In propounding the theory of "shop-fever," as the probable cause of so many deaths among this class of birds, it was pointed out that considerably fewer deaths occurred among birds caught by oneself. This, however, scarcely agrees with my opinion, for I have known amateur catchers of life-long experience who caught only to supply the local, or village demand, whose losses could not be less in proportion than one would find among the ordinary stock of a dealer. But once, a bird got well on a diet of seeds in apparently good condition, it would be considered safe, and consequently saleable. The chief difficulty to overcome was what one may term individuality, or temperament. Nervousness, sulkiness, temper, or call it what you will, all combined to determine the feathered "passive resister" to depart hence rather than submit to a captive existence. Apart from Greypates, brancher Linnets, and such like, that were obviously caught too young, and never did get a fair chance, the provision of a supply of various wild seeds and berries generally culled in the same place where the birds were caught whilst watching the nets or other catching appliances, few birds would look behind them once they commenced to feed in the cage.

ENVIRONMENT.

But in all species one must not overlook the vast differences in the natural environment of the birds out in the open air and when they come to be caged. Even if kept in the very best appointed and airiest and lightest of rooms the difference is still tremendous, whilst in the majority of cases the birds rarely make their debut in captivity under such ideal conditions. What, then, is more likely than that the weight of these influences on the health and condition of every living thing is of far more account than every other consideration in determining the number of losses in newly-caught birds?

"CAGE BIRDS" GRAND XMAS LITERARY COMPETITION.

EIGHT GUINEAS IN PRIZES.

At the time we held our Foreign Bird Essay Competition, some few months ago, many requests reached us to extend that competition to the other sections of the cage bird hobby. We could not conveniently do so then, but we have now decided to hold a Christmas Competition to meet the wishes of readers, and the Editor offers four One Guinea Cash Prizes under the following conditions:—

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on any topic relating to Canaries. Competitors may deal with any one variety (such as the Norwich), or more than one variety (such as the Norwich and the Crest), and questions relating thereto, or may take the general management, breeding, etc., of Canaries from either the domestic or exhibition side.

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on any topic relating to British Birds. The habits, appearance, and management, etc., of any one particular species may be discussed, or they may be dealt with collectively, or in groups, as may suit the knowledge of the essayist.

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on Mule or Hybrid Breeding, whether in cage or aviary, and between any species of bird (either British or Foreign).

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay written from the aviarist's point of view, embracing the fitting up, stocking, and general management of an aviary, whether of Canaries, British Birds, or Foreign Birds, or a suitable combination.

An original Painting of birds, value Four Guineas, will be awarded to the best essay, in the opinion of the judges, out of all the sections.

Cash in Exchange for your Experiences.

There must be thousands among the readers of CAGE BIRDS with much knowledge stored away in their heads upon the above subjects. Utilise the Christmas holidays to put that knowledge on paper for the benefit of your fellow bird-keepers, and in exchange for your experiences there may be a cash prize waiting that will help to buy some bird or other acceptable thing you are a-wanting. Turn your spare moments to account.

The Closing Date, remember, is January 20th next.

RULES.

Each essay must be clearly written (or typed), on one side of paper only.

The length is left to competitors, but essays should not contain less than 1,000 words wherever possible.

Faults of spelling and grammar will not be counted against any essay, practical utility, interest, and simplicity being the chief essentials.

No name or address must be put on any essay, but each must be signed with a nom-de-plume, the sender's name and address being attached on a separate sheet of paper.

The Editor's decision will be final. Competent assistance will be called in to aid him in arriving at his decision.

All essays sent in (and any accompanying sketches or photographs) become the property of CAGE BIRDS, but all which are published (over and above the winning essay) will be duly paid for according to their worth to us.

All entries must reach CAGE BIRDS office, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C., on or before Monday, January 20th next. Write "Essay Competition," on top left-hand corner of envelope or package.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager.

CLUB REPORTS.

CROOK ORIGINAL C.B.R. AND P.S.

At a meeting held December 18th the chief business was the presentation of the cups to the winners at the recent show. F. Feltham, Esq., made the presentation in a few well-chosen remarks, and Mr. R. Wilkinson, who received the cup for the cage bird section, suitably responded. After this an enjoyable evening was spent. The committee wish it known that all prize-money due at our recent show has been paid.—A. BOWES, Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

The announcement that Mr. J. S. Clarke would judge the Crest and Crestbred competition, and afterwards speak upon that variety, drew an unusual number of both members and friends on December 9th at the Church Institute, 60, Pardington-street. After the election of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon, P. Taviner, W. Coles, and R. H. Jacobson, Dr. W. A. Rowntree (Hampstead) and Mr F. Eaton (Stonebridge Park) were nominated for membership. A vote of thanks was accorded to Messrs. J. Ashby, A. W. Hart, and A. W. Curtis for the handsome present of 76 class cards and stands made of solid mahogany, being a valuable asset of £3 16s. to the association. The secretary announced that the gift class birds had realised 17s. 6d. A round of applause greeted the announcement of a special prize for the pair show (January 24th), given by Mr. A. E. Rouse. Twenty-three members took part in the judging competition, which consisted of two classes, 20 Crests and 19 Crestbreds, the result being that Messrs. J. Pooley (champion) with 28 points, A. C. Burn (amateur) with 23 points, and E. C. Offord (novice) with 29 points were the winners of silver medals in cases. The sealed packet, presented anonymously for the member making the most entries, resulted in a tie between Mr. J. Pooley and W. Shepherd (10 each), which was finally won by Mr. J. Pooley. The winning birds having been brought out, Mr. Clarke demonstrated upon their respective merits and demerits, which was followed with close attention, and resulted in several important questions being asked by Messrs. R. L. Crisp, J. Pooley, W. Prance, and E. C. Offord. By special request Mr. Clarke was asked to say a few words upon the breeding of Crests, and graciously consented, imparting his undoubted knowledge upon that variety acquired by long years of experience. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Clarke with great enthusiasm.—VICTOR WYNN, Hon. Sec.

THE SCOTCH FANCY CANARY NATIONAL DERBY O.A.

An interesting meeting was held in the Grand National Halls, Glasgow, on December 18th, Mr. Wright, of Greenock, presiding. Minutes read and confirmed, and the accounts for year 1907 were submitted and approved. The balances on hand for the ordinary revenue, and the cup fund, were considered satisfactory. The following office-bearers were appointed for year 1908:—Hon. President, Hart, Esq. (Paisley); President, R. Wright (Greenock); Vice-President, County Councillor Hogg (Oakley); Secretary and Treasurer, T. Smith; Auditors, Messrs. Bullions and Porter; Committee, Messrs. G. G. Aitkenhead, J. Begg, Bell, E. B. Bullions, H. R. Caldwell, R. Carmyle, H. Crawford, J. Donnelly, D. D. Elder, T. Ferguson, J. Fleming, G. Fulton, W. Gibb, W. Gray, T. J. Hall, J. Hannay, J. Hart, W. D. Hogg, D. Holden, W. Hutchison, R. Johnstone, W. Lees, A. M'Caig, W. McClure, P. M'Dougall, A. Martin, J. D. Maxwell, A. Miller, J. Y. Miller, W. Mitchell, J. Muir, W. Niven, J. Park, A. Porteous, J. Price, T. Pringle, J. Rennie, J. Smith, T. Smith, R. Thoms, W. Thornton, J. Trail, W. Urquhart, W. Webster, J. Winchester, and E. G. Wright. The next show was fixed for September 19th, 1908, and the election of judges will take place at the general meeting on June 8th next. The rules were also carefully considered. It was decided to continue the printed catalogue at 2d. per copy, to have the names and addresses of all the members, the idea being to afford facilities for interchange of communications between intending purchasers and sellers of stock. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought a harmonious meeting to a close. Copies of rules and all particulars of membership can be had on application to the secretary.—R. WRIGHT (President), J. HOGG (Vice-President), THOS. SMITH (Secretary), 446, Victoria-road, Glasgow.

SINGING CONTESTS.

LEEDS.

Usual Linnet contest held at the King's Head, Shannon-street, when 29 of the best birds in Yorkshire song for four good prizes. Very good singing was heard to the enjoyment of a crowded house of spectators. 1st prize, C. Biss; 2nd, W. Fisher; 3rd, T. Summers; 4th, T. Chadwick. Judges, T. Crane and J. Clarke. Timekeeper, C. Cooper.—T. SUMMERS, Hon. Sec.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Post cards are not admissible.

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

CANARIES.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

Answered by J. H. PAYNE.

Some Birdroom Matters.

Troubled Novice.—If your room is damp, you will have had the paper peel off the walls, or, at least, you will have had discoloured patches. See that the outside wall is dry, and that there is no leaking water pipe to saturate them. (2) There is a certain amount of risk in removing birds from a cold room to a living-room, and the risk of having them drop into a soft moult has to be run. When you remove any, select a mild day, when you have not much artificial heat on, and do it first thing in the morning. Hang them well below the level of the gas burner; in fact, hang them as low down as you can safely do.

Loss of Feathers.

A.M.—If you have another room, you can remove your hens into that. I should advise you to do so, as this may at once check them. Continue feeding as you are doing, and in addition, let each bird have, twice a week a small teaspoonful of egg food, over which put five drops of Parrish's Chemical Food. Are you in the habit of burning tho gas in your bird-room during the night? If so, then this is probably the cause of your birds dropping into moult.

ROLLERS.

Answered by "SCHOOLMASTER."

Foods and Feeding.

—1: It is all nonsense about niger (or niga) being "poison." How any sane person, or , could possibly say so passes my comprehension. It is a stimulating seed, especially to anaries, and should only be very occasionally given, except at certain seasons of the year (beginning of the breeding season, for instance), and should never be part of a daily stock mixture. 2: The mixed packet seed you name is no doubt as good as any on the market, though there are many good ones. 3: I should think that I have told how to feed Rollers (or German Canaries) in every issue for the past two months. Kindly look up your back numbers ("Cis" and "Cambrian" last week). Daily food, this mixture: Canary, best Spanish three parts, summer rape two parts, by measure. Occasionally a little egg-bread, suitable green food, ripe apple, pinch of maw seed, and a feed of packet mixture once a week.

Off Song.

H.J.C.—Give the bird a gentle purgative for two days—as much Epsom salts as will lie on a sixpence dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Then well stir one part of best glycerine into three parts of best honey (by measure), and well mix a small teaspoonful of this, fresh daily, into the above quantity of drinking water. Keep a cube of fresh, sweet suet between the cage wires for the bird to peck at if he chooses. The dark mark on the beak is nothing—that is, no sign of anything wrong.

Off Song and Weak.

F. Dawson.—No doubt your bird wants rather richer food. See replies to "Cis" and "Cambrian" last week, and follow them strictly. Give egg bread and chemical food every day. Keep him in a warm, equable temperature, covering his cage at night. Use in the drinking water the honey and glycerine as advised "H.J.C." this week. I fancy in a fortnight's time your bird will then show a vast improvement.

MISCELLANEOUS CANARY QUERIES.

Sample of Sand.

J.J.R.—The sample of sand sent is totally deficient in gritty particles, and is therefore quite useless to assist the work of the gizzard in digestion. It is clean, and may be very useful to spread on the cage bottoms, but you must either supply grit in a tin, or scatter a little on the top of this fine sand every time you clean the cages out. It appears to bind together when wet; therefore, if you use it as suggested, you must take notice as to whether it clogs the bird's feet, and if it does, mix a third part of its bulk of sawdust with it.

Multum in Parvo.

Jacob Richards.—You would do well to procure one of CAGE BIRDS practical handbooks. No. 1: As you are just beginning and wish to avoid colour feeding, you could hardly do better than take up Border Fancies for a few years. No. 2: I have little doubt about the sex of this bird; it is probably a hen. If it is quite clear, mate it with a ticked or lightly variegated buff, but if it is a ticked or variegated bird, mate with a clear buff cock. Of course, you must not think of mating yet. No. 3: The age at which young birds commence to sing varies with individuals. Many of them begin to warble almost as soon as they leave the nest, and most early-hatched birds will sing nicely before the moult commences. If your bird is a cock, when it trys to sing you should see a very distinct swelling, or inflation, of the throat, accompanied by a palpable throbbing. No. 4: The sample of seed mixture sent is not suitable for a staple diet for Canaries, and the canary seed it contains is rather poor stuff. From now until spring feed on a staple of good, sound canary seed only, with a little summer rape, dry, once a week, a teaspoonful of soaked rape per bird once a week, and once a week a little bread and milk or egg food. Give these on different days, and fill up the intervals with a spray of green food each day. Give the hens a few grains of niger once a week. No. 5: As to whether the singing of a Linnet will spoil a Canary, that is quite a matter of taste. Personally, excepting highly-trained Rollers, I should not consider the average Canary likely to suffer from what he might pick up from the Linnet. Always pleased to help.

Many answers to Queries have had to be HELD OVER UNTIL NEXT WEEK owing to the early date this issue necessarily had to go to press.—EDITOR.

Trouble with Aviary.

New Starter.—The moisture you speak of is probably due to condensation of moisture from the surrounding air. A rough sketch of the roof would have been useful. Look to the top ventilation, and see there is an egress for heated air at the top. A double roof, with a little air space between them would be the best remedy, or you might try the effect of a covering of felt laid on, and then given three or four coats of tar. If you determine to employ a stove, remember you shoulder a dangerous risk, and the ventilation will still have to be attended to to compensate for the demands of combustion.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Goldfinch Ailing.

A. S. Robinson.—I am afraid you have left matters too long—it is hopeless to expect to pull a Goldfinch round after he has commenced to sit all day with his head under his wing. The latter is a very unfavourable sign. To leave the commencement of treatment until a bird is already three parts dead is, I am afraid, a common error of bird-keepers. If you had treated your bird to a few doses of mild saline medicine as soon as he commenced to sit drowsily about the cage, with his plumage looking slack and puffed out in the region of the abdomen, you might have pulled him round successfully. Sulphate of soda is the best thing to use; dose, as much as will lie on a sixpence dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Three doses are usually sufficient, and it is generally best to allow a day's interval on plain water between each, or between the second and third doses. Give the bird plenty of niger and maw seeds to eat. I am sure I cannot understand your ill-luck with Goldfinches. Hemp seed has nothing to do with it, providing, of course, it is good hemp seed. My own birds eat sacks of it.

Feathery Thighs.

E.J.—I do not know of any treatment that will make loose feathers at the thighs of a bird keep tight up. In many Bullfinches it is the result of the bird being nervous; when Bullies become tame, the slackness round the thigh is no longer noticeable. But I have both had and seen Bullfinches with "trousers," or with loose "vests," that were natural, and that never looked other than loose and untidy, and this, of course, it is quite impossible to remedy. Maybe you have yourself got hold of one of these undesirable customers. Should, however, the bird really be unsteady, then you can hope to see him neater and tighter in plumage when he has become tame.

Utilising Hen Greenies.

Greenfinch.—I should certainly think your two hen Greenfinches which were reared under Canaries will be valuable birds for Mule or Hybrid breeding. If you want to stick to Canaries, then I should provide a stout-built, pink-eyed Yorkshire cock, a clear (bred from clears, too, if possible), as the other partner. You might get a cinnamon-coloured Mule amongst the progeny, and would stand an excellent chance of getting a valuable lightly-marked one. Or with one of tho two hens you could run a good, big, bright-coloured, steady cock Bullfinch. Both pairs I should run together from now onwards in as big a breeding cage (box pattern), as you can allow—not less than 30 ins. by 15 by 10 ins. A cage 18 ins. long is of little good as a breeding cage. You want to let the couples stay together, without undue interference on your own part, right through the next season, supplying a nest-box and nesting material when we have had a few weeks of warm spring weather. Interference often spells failure; let them go their own way (within reason), and at their own pace.

Sexing Greenfinches.

G. J. Shirebrook.—It is a very easy matter to sex adult Greenfinches; cock and hen differ considerably. Broadly put, the cock is a rich grass-green colour all over, and carries a lot of yellow, more or less bright, in the wings and tail (the outer feathers). The hen Greenfinch, on the contrary, is a very dingy green colour—so dingy, in fact, that she might almost be described as mouse colour with green shadings—and she has very little of the yellow edging to the wing flights and the outer tail feathers; none worth speaking of, in fact, by comparison with a good male bird. Maybe you have two hens.

Identity of Bird.

Puzzled.—I am equally puzzled with yourself. I know of no British seed-eater to answer the description you give. The "tail one inch long" is curious, assuming that useful appendage is full grown. I should think it is some escaped Foreign bird you have captured. I have known many puzzled by this sort of thing. Your bird is certainly not the Lapland Bunting, nor is it the Meadow (the latter having black head and cheek marks on a blue-grey ground). To hazard a guess, I fancy you have a Weaver bird out of colour; the species, of course, I cannot name.

About a Skylark.

A. Wilson.—Mix a bit of suet, or beef or mutton fat, with a little of the biscuit food, and put this on a feeding board at front of the cage. You could stir into the drinking water (two tablespoonfuls) a small teaspoonful of best quality honey. Or you could try about half a teaspoonful of Owbridge's Lung Tonic, which a well-known fancier was telling me he had used with great success. The basis of this medicine is honey, and I have myself used honey (and honey mixed with glycerine) with excellent results in cases of cold and loss of voice. Many bird-keepers, however, are inclined to look with scorn on such simple remedies, preferring something with a longer and more or less "crack-jaw" name. You certainly should not hand-wash a bird for show. Spray him lightly with cold water, and, when still wet, sprinkle (throw) over him a handful of gritty sand. Do this at least three days before the show, and on the next day (the day before the show), either blow a little water over him with your mouth, or just turn the spray on him for a moment. The Lark will do the rest. Keep him in a quite clean cage, of course, and out of all draughts.

Thrush Ailing.

Josh-o-Brum.—If you mean that you removed your bird downstairs into a warmed room, I can say that you certainly took the right course. Also you did well to give the whiskey. It would be better, however, to mix whiskey and glycerine in equal parts, and give a small teaspoonful of this in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. This, I think, will soon put him all right, especially with the warmer atmosphere of the downstair room.

About a Jay.

Mrs. A. Sinkins.—I don't think the loss of feathers is due to any disease, but that it is the result of the wildness of the bird. An unsteady Jay can soon smash and damage its plumage when confined in a cage, and just over the beak is one of the first spots to evidence this. Sometimes birds (Softhills, especially) resent a change of food (even though for their good), and this should always be gradually accomplished. Mealworms and ants' eggs would never harm a Jay; though the latter are somewhat unnecessary with so large a bird. Pity you do not say fully how you are feeding. If he seems "down in the mouth" a little, give a raw egg or two (or a hard-boiled one, mixed with its other food), also plenty of cockroaches ("black beetles"). The only way to teach a Jay to talk and whistle is to repeatedly say short, catchy phrases over to him, and whistle short, catchy things. But I am afraid your bird is not likely to prove easy to learn; a very tame hand-reared Jay is what one really wants to become a quick and proficient mimic.

Bullfinch Bare on Head.

Mrs. S.—Get an ounce of sulphate of soda from a chemist, and give three doses, with a day on plain water in between them. For each dose, dissolve as much as will lie on a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Anoint the bare place twice daily (morning and evening) with a little sulphur ointment, applying it gently with the tip of a finger. Let the bird have a little sweet ripe apple (or other suitable fruit) every day.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

A Gaping Parrot.

E Tutts.—I cannot give you definite advice re your Parrot till you inform me how you are feeding it. Please supply this information and I will reply per return. In the meantime, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of water and let it have only this to drink for one day, after a two day's interval repeat the dose. On hearing from you, shall be pleased to help you further.

Diet for Grey Parrot.

Carolus.—Till you can get it on to a more wholesome diet you must perforce continue your present dietary, which is not so bad as some which are indulged in. As you are acquainted with the diet, regularly advised in this column, there is no need for me to repeat it here. Persevere with your efforts to induce it to eat same and you will ultimately be successful though probably at much trouble. Keep a tin of the seed mixture in its cage and put a thin layer of the boiled maize over same, but you must note that the boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and watch that it does not get mixed with the seed mixture, as the boiled maize when sour would soon set up diarrhoea. Tempt bird with ripe fruit, plain biscuit, shelled walnuts, and a leaf of fresh and tender lettuce, raw carrot, or little (dry) boiled potato. Do not leave the water in its cage at present, but you can let it satisfy its thirst 3 or 4 times a day. Do not give table scraps, slops or animal food of any kind.

Birds for Box Cage.

H.V.J.—I cannot recommend you to keep others with the Blackthroated Cardinals in a cage 2½ by 1½ by 1½ ft. high. In a large aviary they do no harm to other species, even those much smaller than themselves, but in a cage it is different. Some of the larger Weavers might agree with them, at any rate such would be only equal terms with them, but I expect occasionally feathers would fly. Grenadier or Oryx Weavers are very handsome, as also is the Orange Bishop and either would meet your purpose. However I do not consider your cage unduly large for the Cardinals to get proper exercise and display their beauty in. After birds are once acclimatised, the major portion of the losses with birds kept in cages, arise from high living and lack of exercise, and bird lovers should always house their pets in as roomy a cage as possible and not unduly mix sizes and species.

Paradise Whydah.

J W. Green.—I do not remember all the details of my previous reply—however, if the bird will eat it, give it a dry mixture of crushed "Osborne" biscuits, ants' eggs and dried flies, and also with a little milk sop, but you must keep a close watch that stray bits of the latter don't get left about or it will cause mischief. Otherwise you can only keep up the regular dietary of Canary, millet and Spray Millet. Greenfood (leaf of lettuce at this season). If it is in a large aviary catch it up for a few hours, and see that it gets a good drink of water that has been made saline with Epsom salts. It is both surprising, disappointing and vexatious, what a number of birds die suddenly when apparently in perfect health. A post mortem usually reveals some long standing disease of which there had been no visible symptoms previous to death; usually of such a nature as to render treatment of no avail. However, with strict attention of cleanliness, good clean seed and other items of diet, room for exercise and protection from draught, such cases should not be unduly numerous.

Some Foreign Finches.

F.Y.—(1). Here are half a dozen pair that would be sure to please as well as being of a very handsome appearance, and if not being songsters in the real sense of the word, would yet keep up a soft, sweet, and almost continuous melody. Common and Green Avadavats, Orange-cheeked, Orange-breasted, Grey and St. Helena Waxbills. Here is another half-dozen, males only, Red-headed Gouldian Finch, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Long-tailed and Nutmeg-tailed Greenfinches and a Diamond Finch. None of these are plain birds with the exception of the Grey Singing Finch and he has a very sweet and sustained song. (2). For the first-named lot, Canary, millet and spray millet, with a little greenfood, piece of cuttlefish bone, and water for drinking and bather will meet all requirements—for the second series, oats, "paddy" rice (rice in the husk) and occasionally a little grass or lettuce seed would be required. While all the above will thrive on the diet here given, a spray from a rose bush, or a few leaves from any non-poisonous plant that are covered with green or black fly, will be found very wholesome and certainly help to keep them in condition. It is very few who cannot provide these simple delicacies for their pets in the summer time.

A Grey Parrot Indisposed.

A.K.C.—I should wean this bird as quickly as possible from the boiled maize; as to method of doing so, see reply to "Carolus" in this issue. The apple will do the bird no harm, that is, a moderate-sized piece daily; my Hawk-head is very fond of the core. Do not overdo the Epsom Salts, keep bird's bowels gently moving, but not watery loose. The chemical food you can continue for an indefinite period, letting it have clear water once a week. It would be better to give Sulphate of Soda (five grains in a tablespoonful of water) twice a week, at about equal intervals, omitting the chemical food for the occasion, and, of course, cease giving the Epsom Salts. Unless it is actual sickness, do not attach too much importance to what you term "choking." Nearly all species of Parrots bring up, often with much exertion, the half-digested food from the crop, re-swallow same; with some species it is of regular occurrence. If there is no improvement a fortnight hence, repeat query with fullest possible details.

What Bird?

Pete.—I regret I quite fail to identify your bird from the descriptions given, however, I have written a friend in the South of France re same. As soon as reply comes to hand, I will insert same in this column, possibly in next issue. Whenever possible, kindly send a rough sketch (a very rough drawing answers the purpose) with such queries.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Photograph (G. Swift).—Thanks for your kindness in sending the photograph. We are very much afraid, however, it is not sharp (clear) enough to reproduce satisfactorily.

Distributing Specimens (W. Taff).—We send you a bundle of specimen copies of CAGE BIRDS for distribution with the greatest pleasure, and thank you cordially for the help you promise us.

Article (Down South).—Your article, written as suggested, will receive equal consideration with the others by the judges. Thanks for good offices on our behalf.

Report (A. Onion).—Accept our thanks for your kindness.

Care of Birds (Palace).—At every bird show worthy of the name, all exhibits are looked after by expert bird-keepers. The length of the Crystal Palace show need cause you no misgivings; every morning the wants of every bird are attended to by skilled fanciers, and those needing it fed several times during the day.

Book (A. Robertson).—It is our intention to publish the articles you mention in book form in the near future.

Coupon Prizes (Heginbottom and Riley). We have not been officially notified as to the winners at this show, but will certainly look into the matter.

Club Notice (T. Duffield).—Your notice only reached us by Thursday's post, too late to deal with. Note the heading to the "Club Notice" column.

Coupon Competition (R. Hall).—The rules of this competition state clearly that the best first prize bird shall be taken, then the best second, and so on; and that if there should be no first or second, etc., birds available, then those below shall step up.

PRINTED NOTE PAPER AT COST PRICE.

Until further notice we have decided to supply Artistic Memorandum Forms with name, address, twelve words of particulars, and block of any special variety, at the following cheap cash prices:—

250 for 2/-, 500 for 2/6.

Carriage paid to any address in the U.K.

Our latest style of note-head has been universally admired, and we will gladly send specimen to anyone enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

Bird Sanctuaries.

The bird sanctuary of Waterton the naturalist, at Walton Hall, was to a certain extent artificial. The birds were fed during the winter months, and enticed in every way to remain and breed in the park, where many well-thought-out arrangements were made for their seclusion and security. The sanctuary at Holkham, on the Norfolk coast, is totally different. The park is extensive, with a large sheet of water of over 30 acres, and during the summer months various water fowl can be seen swimming about or sunning themselves upon the sunny banks. Many breed along the marshes by the sea shore; in fact, the whole district is practically under protection. Anyone visiting Holkham would be surprised at the wild life to be seen in the park—birds of all kinds, including the beautiful Kingfisher, Herons, which breed there, Woodpeckers, Pigeons in quantity, and all species of water loving birds. In hard weather flocks of Wild Fowl fly in from the shore, and some rare species may be seen. It is in this district that the graceful Terns breed, and there is no more interesting sight than to watch them beating along the margin of the sea, or up the tidal river.

NEW SOCIETY FOR WATERLOO AND DISTRICT (Liverpool).

Sir,—The fanciers of Waterloo and District (Liverpool) have decided to start a Cage Bird Society. Will fanciers who wish to become members please send name and address to J. Hunt, 18, Albert Road, Waterloo, Liverpool, and a meeting can then be called? J. Hunt.

BRITISH BIRDS AT KIDDERMINSTER SHOW.

Sir,—I note in "Twitterings" that Messrs. Potter and Bracey state they won first and second in British Birds at Kidderminster. I beg leave to say that I was with the judge when he judged the classes, and took my notes and the awards from his slips, also sent the slips in to the secretary, and I am quite certain that Mr. Kingley was first with the Wryneck, and second with the Waxwing, Messrs. Potter and Bracey being reserve. If the judge re-judged the classes after I left, well and good, but I am under the impression when once awards are made they cannot be altered.—Your Reporter.

WHAT KIND OF NORWICH HAVE WE TO BREED?

Sir,—Being a young admirer of the Norwich Plainhead and reading the correspondence going on in your best of all cage bird papers (of which I have been a reader since the first number), after seeing the questions asked by "St. Mungo," and others, and the letter by Mr. Young this week, I thought I should like to ask the latter gentleman a few questions. First, what is the cause of this topsy-turvy work that is going on with judges at the present time in Scotland in the judging of the Norwich Plainhead? I was at Glasgow Show, and saw the McLean Cup winner, and it was a grand one, and no mistake — to hear that he was cardless at Dysart was a knock-out to me. But it is not only this bird that gets in one day and out the next; all round it is one in to-day and out to-morrow. What is the cause of it all? Question Two, Mr. Young says (which he thinks is good advice to "St. Mungo": "If you are getting your stock together, do not get it in Scotland, as they have not got it." This is a hard hit, and no mistake! Do you mean to tell me that all the prominent exhibitors are buying their winners from English breeders, and breeding nothing but wasters off them? Surely if they can buy winners from England they can breed winners out of them. But perhaps Mr. Young will let us know. Question Three: Last year we tried to buy matched pairs and were prepared to pay good money for good birds from both English and Scottish breeders. They were to be non-fed, and we could not get them. It would seem that every Plainhead is stuck full of liver-eating pepper. We could have got these sort, but we refused, as we were not going to pay for colour feed. Can Mr. Young explain why this is so? I hope, Mr. Editor, you will oblige by inserting these few questions to relieve the mind of a working man, an ardent admirer of the Norwich Plainhead, especially the natural coloured ones, which have nothing about them to blind the Novice.—T. R. Wallace.

Sir,—Since "St. Mungo's" letter appeared in your columns a few weeks ago under the above heading, quite a number of examples have occurred to illustrate how a bird can win highest honours under a judge and a few days later under another to be out of tickets altogether. This has been the case not only with Plainheads, but with other varieties, which usually win more consistently. At the Scottish Crest Club Show, held at Kilmarnock, three out of the four medal winners had not previously won a 1st prize in open competition this season, although they had all been shown at some of the principal shows. At the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show, Mr. Cairns's Crested cock was commended—Mr. Reid's Crestbred hen was cardless. At the City of Glasgow Show, Mr. McLay's young Crestbred hen did not get a ticket. Yet all three were considered good enough to win at Kilmarnock. Well may "St. Mungo" ask: "What kind of Norwich are we to breed?" After making due allowance for judges favouring different types, there is still a wide margin left, which cannot be very well accounted for. During the past month or so I have noticed various instances of judges giving a decided preference to birds belonging to personal friends, so that I am compelled to admit some of them are not above suspicion.—Top-Knot.

THE CHALLENGE SHIELD AWARD AT DULWICH SHOW.

Sir,—With reference to the above, I beg to enclose show rule No. 4. Evidently Mr. Morris has failed to read our Society's rules:

4.—Should any of the appointed judges, through illness or any other cause, be unable to fulfil their duties, the Committee reserve the right to appoint others to act in their stead, or to appoint extra judges if necessary.

This should settle the question.—G. F. Woolhouse, Show Manager.

ARE THEY RECORD LATE EGGS?

Sir,—Seeing that there is a correspondence in your valuable paper about late eggs, I wish to let you know of a case that has come under my notice. It is that of a Crested hen, brought by a sailor relative from the Canary Islands some two or three years ago. It has never been bred. On going to clean the cage two eggs were found on the sand tray in the second week of December. The only thing that we can account for in this freak is that a cock was brought into the house about that time and put on the opposite side of the window. I hope this will interest the readers of Cage Birds.—A. Robertson.

Sir,—As a reader of Cage Birds, I see that a correspondent had a Canary that laid eggs in October, also that a correspondent had them in November, and another one on the 8th of December. But I have one that has laid three eggs, the first being laid on the 16th of December. So I think that is the record as yet.—Gwilym Lewis.

SOME BIRDIE MATTERS.

Sir,—I have kept birds as a hobby for a matter of eighteen months, my first bird being a hen Goldie Mule, which I have still. I have since added considerably to the numbers, Canaries being in the majority. All my birds are out of doors in a large three-compartment flight cage. During the last winter, which was extra severe, I had five birds outside, three of which were Canaries. They were all in far better health and plumage than a Canary indoors. I attribute my success in this respect to the fact that all my birds have been put out of doors during the summer months, and have thus gradually become acclimatised to the colder atmosphere. Of course, I always cover them up well at night, and do not leave them open to the chilly night air. During the last summer the hen Goldie sang beautifully, and, in fact, we could not agree that it was a hen, until one morning we found a broken egg in the sand-tray of her cage. Last season I paired up a clear Yorkshire cock with an uneven hen and obtained two very good specimens, a cock and a hen, from the first nest, but I lost all three of the second, owing to the hen developing a cancer. I intend, all being well, to breed from three pairs during the coming season, all out of doors. I have now some Canaries, a Chaffinch, which is too unsteady for show, and a Bramblefinch, which has won sixteen prizes—of which fifteen were firsts. I feed on a plain mixture of Canary, rape and hemp, and use egg-food.—C. T. Draper.

Sir,—The Canary-Bullfinch promises to be a popular exhibit. Time was when it was regarded a rarity, but it has been shown by experience that the cross can be easily obtained. The defect here is the type of Canary used. A massive grassy-green should be chosen; a clear or a piebald is apt to produce light feathers, which should be avoided. Dark all over, with rare depth of colour is what is required for the show bench.

Let us turn to a few pairs which are to be seen by fanciers "moving about." A small, tight-feathered Piebald is up with an active British Bullfinch. They seem to have been selected because they were at hand, the owner admitting that he did not think of studying size, colour, and other considerations. They were observed feeding each other, and that was regarded by him as a marvellous achievement. The hen is building, and if successful the young should be worth rearing. The second would-be Canary-Bullfinch breeder secured a big high-coloured Green cock, and wintered it with a likely Bullfinch hen. In the month of May the hen manifested a bitter aversion to the Canary, which for safety had to be removed. A Greenfinch was tried, and paired right away. In the first clutch two eggs were sacrificed in the laying; the other two were tested and one was found fertile, but it was ultimately addled. Again, a large Buff Piebald cock (apparently a cross between a Scotch Fancy and a Norwich Canary) has entered upon domestic duties with a caught wild Bullfinch hen. He is all right for size, shape, and vigour, but there is a danger of clear feathers.

The writer understands special efforts are being directed in England to breeding Canary-Bullfinch Hybrids. Several ladies have taken to this hobby. Famed for patience, and having the advantage of being at home, they have high chances of succeeding. The rearing of a "twenty pounder" would be a decided help in a household. If I were a lady (and I am not) I would make a bold bid to rear a few. Hybrids are very little bother. Once got, there is not half the trouble with them as there is with a common Canary. The fair sex seem to be ousting the stronger sex in all directions—well, they have a splendid field in midsummer in producing valuable Hybrids. Those who have not the power of appreciating the worth of Hybrids, try to spread discouragement by saying: "Everybody is breeding Hybrids; they will be as common as Sparrows, and become a drug in the market, of no value." That condition of things has not yet come to pass, and is not likely for many, many years. Meanwhile, the most should be made of available material.

It is impossble for a single individual to gather all the results. Interesting knowledge would be diffused were successful breeders to send a short note for Cage Birds' correspondence columns giving particulars of their success.—(A Breeder.)

C.B.U. DISTRICT.

Sir,—I have to inform you that the Committee of the above district at their meetings of Dec. 7th and 17th, had under consideration the delegate's report and letter of complaint bearing upon the recent Dulwich and Peckham Open Show, and having regard to the report and to the answers and statement made by the Show Manager, Mr. G. F. Woolhouse, the committee are of the opinion that the said show was not managed efficiently or satisfactory throughout, and they caution the Society as to the manner they conduct future open shows.—F. J. Martin, Dis. Secretary.

THE SAFETY OF BIRDS IN TRANSIT.

Sir,—With regard to securing the safety of birds in transit, it has often occurred to me that some means could be adopted whereby exhibitors who are sending their valuable specimens to the different shows, by rail, would feel more comfortable were their birds so secured in the travelling case as to prevent the inquisitive railway employees, and perhaps the would-be thief, from having such easy access to the birds as under the present system, viz., straps, screws, swivels, and many other simple fastenings. Why not have a "padlock" that might be known as the Cage Bird Union lock, which every member could purchase? All secretaries of societies affiliated to the Union could be supplied with a master key. Should be glad to have the opinions of more able fanciers on the subject? Wish your valuable paper still further success.—R. N. Williams.

THE CHAMPION LINNET.

Sir,—I would like to inform all readers that Mr. Allen has not got the champion Linnet of the world, nor has he got the champion of Leeds. The Linnet fanciers of the "King's Head" will give two pounds to any charitable institution that he would like to name if his bird can sing as he represents it to sing in Cage Birds. I have given up contest singing myself, but if Mr. Allen will bring his champion bird to the "King's Head" and defeat one of my birds twice in succession, I will present him with the same gold medal that he presented to me when I defeated what he calls his champion. I sold him the bird that beat his champion for one pound a few months ago.—James Clark.

P.S.—The winner of the All-England con[test] at the above inn was Mr. Hineson with [a] that was sold to him by me, and the [win]ner of the All England contest at the "K[ing's] Head" was Mr. Booth, proprietor.

THE YORKSHIRE BOWL WINN[ING] AT BRISTOL.

Sir,—Seeing that the above cup was won by Messrs. Shearn and Owen, and the rules state that the birds must be bred by exhibitor, the following may interest breeders in the same class. The birds were bred by Mr. Owen, and sold to Mr. Shearn, who won first Swansea, second Merthyr with same. At Cardiff and Bristol the birds are shown under the joint names of Messrs. Shearn and Owen, though the latter is alleged to have no interest in same.

A Yorkshire Fancier.

If the above statements are accurate it opens, we think, an interesting question, and without casting any reflection on the exhibitors.—Ed,

I have been a subscriber to Cage Birds for some time past, and wish to add my not of thanks and appreciation for the many useful hints gleaned from its pages, to the many you must have already received. Every good wish for the continued and well-deserved success of your paper.—D. Bird (Hoylake).

I beg to offer you my sincerest thanks for being so good as to reproduce the sketch of my prize "Cornish Chough" in last week's Cage Birds, writes Mr. A. Idris Jones (Mountain Ash). I have taken your publication since the first number and I have no hesitation in saying that it has proved of the greatest assistance to me; it is invaluable to every bird-keeper. I have always strongly recommended your periodical, and especially to young beginners.

Gilbert White and the Nightjars.

All bird lovers should read Gilbert White's "Natural History of Selborne." The quaint diction is delightful, in which connection note the following:—On this day (July 14th, 1789) a woman brought me two eggs of a Fern Owl, or Evejar, which she found on the verge of the Hanger, to the left of the Hermitage, under a beechen shrub. This person, who lives just at the foot of the Hanger, seems well acquainted with these nocturnal Swallows, and says she has often found the eggs near that place, and that they lay only two at a time on the bare ground. The eggs were oblong, dusky, and streaked somewhat in the manner of the plumage of the parent bird, and were equal in size at each end."

The Wary Curlew.

A dead Curlew, even when hanging in the game dealer's store, is always an object of interest; the long beak, mottled plumage and strange appearance of the bird are sure to attract attention. With some of us the sight of him conjures up thoughts of reedy wastes, and wild stretches of marsh lands, far away by the margin of the sea, or of bleak heaths and rough pastures, for it is in places like these that we must look for the wary Curlew. Like most of our waders, the Curlew is partially migratory, and changes its haunts according to the seasons. Northern birds during the winter consort freely with the other Wild Fowl along the coast. They are watchful and wary, and very difficult to approach; in fact, they act almost as sentinels, and at the least sign of danger, take wing with a loud, ringing "curlee-curlee," which gives the signal to all wild life within hearing. When the tide is in, they may be seen with the Plovers upon the meadows and marshes, but at low water they make for the extensive mud flats, where food is generally plentiful. When living near marshes I often hear their wild, mournful cry in the dead of night; coming with the breeze it, at times, sounds low and shrill, then faint and musical. To a stranger it has a most uncanny sound, almost alarming, and for this reason some people dislike the birds. The summer haunts of the Curlew are the upland waste and moors, where the Ring Ouzel and the quaint Twite sing their melody to the wilderness, for here human beings are scarce. The watchful Curlews are not to be caught asleep. They probably detect the intruder long before he arrives. They rise in the air, flying anxiously about, and calling repeatedly. The nest is placed among the rough vegetation of the moor, upon a tuft of coarse grass, or under the shelter of a heather bush. The eggs are large for the size of the bird; this is the case, however, with all waders, but exceptionally so with this bird. They are four in number, yellowish-green in ground colour, and blotched with yellowish brown—colours which make them barely distinguishable from their natural surroundings. There is something about the wail of the Curlew, when heard at dusk upon the moors, or the desolate marshes, that [illegible] feelings of delight to the listener.

LURGAN.

Annual show on December 13th and 14th in the Town Hall, which is a grand room for the purpose, being well lighted, capacious, and free from draughts. The secretary, Mr. S. McCollum, is the right man in the right place, and had the arrangements well in hand. He was ably assisted by Mr. W. R. Ross, who worked like a Trojan, and was always ready and obliging. The committee are: Messrs. D. Peillow, W. Connelly, J. Lavery, J. H. O'Neile, W. R. Best, R. Duke, J. Wells, R. Irwin, J. Hamilton, P. Prendergleith, T. Upriehard, C. McCann, and A. Best. Judges: Belgians and Scotch Fancies, Mr. R. Wright, of Greenock; all other varieties, Mr. A. Black, Accrington. The competition in British was very strong. The Goldfinches were a grand class of 24, from which another set of winners could be easily picked out. The Linnets also brought out some grand birds. The A.O.S. Seedeaters was headed by a grand Yellowhammer, shown by Mr. Tate; it is one of the best we have seen for years. The Norwich section was not so numerous, but contained some really grand exhibits. The Yorks. classes were under the patronage of the Y.C.C. of Ireland. The classification was good, and brought out a grand collection of the straight 'uns.

FRASERBURGH.

The annual show was held in the Templar Hall, Cross-street, on December 17th and 18th. The cage bird section was the best yet seen in the district. Close on 200 birds were nicely arranged up and down the centre of the hall, which is beautifully lighted from the roof. Some splendid specimens of Norwich, Cinnamons, and British birds faced the judge. The management of the show was one of the best, and a word of praise is due to the President, Mr. Wm. Grant, and Vice-President, Mr. James Yeats, who did all in their power to make things run smoothly. The duties of Secretary and Treasurer were in the hands of those able officials, Messrs. Alex. Grant and Geo. Gordon, who both worked with a will, and carried the show through without the slightest hitch. Mr. C. Watson (London) made the awards.

ADMIRAL DUNCAN O.S. (Notts).

The annual Christmas show was held on Dec. 21, at the "Admiral Duncan," Coalpit-lane, and was very successful. This is one of the oldest societies in Nottingham, and, as a rule, some very good birds are shown, especially in Crests, and this year was no exception. The entries in some of the classes might have been more numerous, but what was short in quantity was more than made up in quality. Mr. Joe Goode, the landlord, and Mr. W. Healey, the secretary, are workers of the right sort, courteous, affable and obliging. Mr. W. Vardy placed the cards, and gave general satisfaction. NORWICH CL. YELL.: 1, G. Hill; 2, J. Birch. KEITH.

The annual exhibition was held December 18th, in the Longmoro Hall. The morning broke rather stormy and wet, but towards mid-day it cleared up, and many visitors came to view the grand display of exhibits, many of which were of the best order. The highest credit is reflected on Mr. David Milne, secretary, whose able management brought together many of the crack exhibitors of the North. Amongst the outstanding specimens which took our eye were Mr. T. Mackie's variegs. Crest, which secured the medal for best bird in the hall, and the charming Tree Creeper shown by Milne Bros., which was awarded the very handsome silver cup for the best British bird, presented by J. Dunbar, Esq. Mr. T. Fraser, (Forres), made the awards, and although it was his first engagement, no one would have thought it, from the masterly manner in which he handled the exhibits. Judging being over in good time, the cards were quickly up, and all the appointments throughout the show were soon made.

The Rev. Cecil H. Fardell, of Llandenny Parsonage, Usk, Monmouthshire, writes to the Press that some years ago, finding that a caged Bullfinch, which he placed out of doors every morning, was visited daily by the wild birds outside, he prepared a second vacant cage, which was promptly occupied by a splendid wild cock Bullfinch. He was frightened one day by a dog, and, the cage door being open, flew away. Four months later a gentle tap at the window was heard. The bird had returned to captivity. He again occupied his old cage.

BRADFORD WEST.

The annual open show of the Bradford West O.S. took place on Dec. 20th and 21st, in the Whetley Lanes. Schools, Girlington. The venue is easy of access by tram from every part of Bradford and by rail from any part of the country, and the room is a good one, very lofty and well lighted, but not by any means too large for a show of the dimensions usually attained by this fixture. The very best methods of staging were adopted, the Yorkies. being arranged round the room in three tiers, thus leaving the centre tables for those varieties that are staged in box cages. In all 48 classes were provided, the exhibitors responding to this liberal classification by sending in a grand entry of 620, composed of the following:—Open Yorkshires 213, Yorks. Greens 77, Norwich Greens 47, Norwich 45 British 83, A.O.V. Can. or Hybrid 15, Selling 52, Novice 131, Gift 8. Mr. W. H. Shackleton gained the special for most points throughout the show, Messrs. Deacon, Wilcock, Ogden Bros., and Ambler coming for the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th in the order named. Most points in British, etc. fell to Mr. J. Walsh, and that for the selling classes to Mr. W. A. Cowgill. Mr. A. Ambler captured the members' cup, and also the spl for the best Yorkshire in the show, the latter falling to his noted clear yellow, a really grand bird and one of the very best out this season. The whining yellow Green Norwich, the property of Mr. V. H. Deacon, was adjudged to be best green in the show, and is indeed a gem, grand size and substance, rich colour and a splendid head. The spl for best Norwich was awarded to Mr. Hirst's winner in the unflighted class, a lovely youngster, and that for best novice bird to Mr. Chippendale's clear yellow Yorks., a bird of grand length, slim and neat drawn, with lovely quality, and rich colour, which looks like keeping its owner well in hand in the race for novice medals. The gift class is practically a new innovation for Bradford and district shows, and the class contained eight birds which were put up for sale by the hon. auctioneer, Mr. H. W. Rodgers, who by dint of his persuasive eloquence, realised £1 13s. 9d. for the Society. The Yorkshire classes contained the cream of the fancy, and were a feast for the eyes to behold. The Greens also were a show in themselves, a big lot of birds coming from that hot-bed of the variety, Liverpool. The A.O.V. class contained a splendid lot, and here the Hybrids in particular came in for close scrutiny, and were greatly admired by the fanciers present. British were a nice lot, the Hawfinch placed first being also greatly admired, as was the 2nd, a Bramble, a regular beauty, probably the best ever seen in Bradford. With the management no fault could possibly be found. Messrs. T. and H. Clegg, the excellent secretaries, had everything well in hand, particularly good arrangements being made for the carriage of the exhibits to and from the station, and in all their labours they were ably assisted by a strong band of fanciers, consisting of Messrs. W. A. Cowgill, the President; 3, Wallbank, Turner, Cooper, Clark, Lister, and Greaves. Mr. M. Broadley, of Windhill, placed the cards in the Yorkshires, Greens and novice classes, Mr. W. Mundell taking the remainder and the awards of both gentlemen were well received.

TIDESWELL.

The cage bird show was held in Bagshaw Hall on December 7th, held under the rules of the C.B.U. The show was, as a first venture, very satisfactory from an exhibition point of view; the attendance, however, was not as numerous as it might have been. The catalogue contained twenty sections, 14 open and half-a-dozen local, and they were all well-filled. Competition was keen, too, in a majority of cases. This year's president is Mr. S. Bramwell, J.P., C.C. Mr. W. Millward is the treasurer; Messrs. Bagshaw and Swarbrick, hon. secretaries, are deserving of great praise for the able management of the show. The following is the committee:—Messrs W. S. Flint (chairman), D. Brightmore (vice-chairman), G. Robinson, T. A. Lomas, A. Flint, sen., F. E. Gilbert, J. Longston, A. Bradbury, F. Hill, A. Flint, jun., W. Barton, Joseph Walker, H Drabble, H. Flint, C. Barton, G. Oven, and C. Flint. Mr. A. G. Davis (Manchester) was the judge, and his awards were received with satisfaction, though in two or three instances merit was so equal that it was no easy task to "place" them.

LEIGH.

Leigh and Dis. C.B.S. held their annual show in the Co-operative Hall, Bradshawgate, Leigh, on December 20th and 21st. This being the first venture of the society, we were sorry to see that entries did not come up better, but we hope they will be more successful another year, as the Secretaries, Messrs. Parks and Davies, left no stone unturned to make the show a success. Their arrangements were admirable. They were assisted by the committee:—Messrs. Marsh, Lycett, Cavanagh, Clare, Banks, Green, Hart, Gaskell, Lomas, Slater, Shuttle, Wilkinson, Whittaker and Ordish, who did everything that could be done for the welfare of the specimens. The room is an excellent one for a cage bird show, being well lighted and free from draughts. The exhibits, although lacking in numbers, were excellent in quality, many noted winners being staged by Messrs. J. and J. Hopkins, Gaskell, Cook, Wright Knowles, Brooks, Dalzell, Simpson, Hallewell, Crompton, Walsh, and Lord. Mr. A. G. Davies (Manchester), judged, and his awards were well received.

ANNAN.

This annual exhibition and competition of cage birds was held in the Albert Hall on December 21st, when there was a large turn out of exhibitors. Over 1,100 entries were made in all sections. The secretary, Mr. Irving, had all things well in hand for the comfort of both exhibits and exhibitors, and he and his committee deserve great praise. Mr. James Smillie judged.

My Experiences with Birds in India.

By WILLIAM WALLACE.

It was on the third of March that I landed in Bombay, India, and the military station we were bound for was 800 miles inland. I therefore had a good chance of observing the various species of birds in the country, with their magnificent plumage. The first I noticed was a slim, little, green bird, with a long tail. I saw him perched on the telegraph wires by the railway side.

It was about the size of a swallow, not quite so stout perhaps. I never once saw this bird staged, neither did I see the species congregated in flocks; only odd ones.

The Swift and Greedy Kite Hawk.

The next bird I saw is what is known as the Kite Hawk. This bird is a dark, grey-coloured one, of about the size of a large Crow, but as sharp as our own British Hawk. Dozens of them could be seen sweeping around the camp or barracks.

I have seen a native carrying a dish of [illegible] out of a tent, when, before he has [illegible] yards away, he has had the whole [illegible] snatched up by these birds. [illegible] swoop down and carry off [illegible] want in their powerful claws; [illegible] the native nearly always carries [illegible]gs on his head, he does not see [illegible]ief. As a rule, however, the native [illegible]r carries meat on his head without [illegible] carrying a large stick, which he keeps [illegible]inging over his head with the hand [illegible] which is disengaged.

I have seen a piece of meat tied to a long string with a newspaper tied to the other end; scarcely has it touched the ground before it has been snatched up by a Kite-Hawk, and as many as four or five of them, in less time than it takes me to write this, made dust fly from the ground where the meat lay.

A Bird that Changes Colour.

Now I come to bird number 3. I was walking one day through a certain bazaar, when I noticed, standing on a bench or table, a large cage, which contained about a dozen small birds. They were flying and chattering about in a very lively manner.

They were about the size of a Redpoll, had a little red bill, and, as near as I can describe them, were brown with red speckles all over the body. One man I knew bought half-a-dozen of them from a native. He told me that they changed their colour every month, although I never saw them of any other colour than I have described. The natives used to keep them in big, dirty cages, made of bamboo (small) cane, or sugar cane, and they used to cart them round to sell.

Some Species of Parrots.

About March I saw some Rock or Hill Parrots, and some Plains Parrots. One could buy a Parrot, full-feathered, but only a month or so old, for fourpence. These Parrots were very wild, and would scream and screech for hours together when one went near to them.

A friend of mine asked a native to bring him a Plains Parrot. (This species is a smaller bird than the Rock or Hill Parrot.) The native brought it, a pen-feathered one. It was the most tiny bird I had ever seen. He took great pains with it, teaching it every night to talk. Before it was three months old it was able to talk, but only two words: "What's up?" I bought the bird from my friend, and before I had had it twelve months, it could say ten different sentences. It would sit on my shoulder and put its red bill in my mouth and give me a kiss. I am sorry, however, to have to say that I lost it before I got it home to England.

These Parrots get a reddish-blue ring round their neck when about two years old, and this was discernible in the one I had by the light feathers round its neck. I have seen native bird dealers with all kinds of birds in large, round Parrot cages.

One gorgeously plumaged bird was what they called the Nepaul Parrot. It was a green bird, with a blue head and dark blue wings—a nice little bird to look at. But I never saw one which could talk. They were about the size of a Thrush.

The Indian Jay.

Then there was the Indian Jay. When seen flying, this bird looked very nice. It had a brown head and body, and blue wings. It was for size about as big as a Pigeon. When caged the bird looked positively ugly as compared with its appearance when flying.

Another bird which those native dealers used to sell was the Indian Mina. I never cared much for this bird as a talker. It was jet black in body, and had a yellow beak and yellow legs. I once heard one talking, but all it could say was "Mamma." It is a native of the Himalayan Mountains, where it breeds profusely.

Indian Woodpeckers and Squirrels.

My next bird is the Indian Woodpecker. This bird is seen in large numbers on the plains, but hardly ever in the hilly districts. It is about the size of a Blackbird and is spotted with white and brown like a Skylark. It goes along the ground from tree to tree, and every time it stops, up goes its head-crest like a fan of about the size of a half-crown piece. It is very graceful when on the wing, and it breeds on the plains in hollow trees, and I have seen them among the squirrels running on the ground, the squirrels and the birds, of course, being of nearly the same colour.

I will now describe some of the hill birds. It was in the year 1894-5, when we went to Quetta—a 1,600 mile ride from the plains. The climate was, of course, milder, and sometimes very cold. We were surrounded by mountains, the highest of which is covered with snow all the year round.

A Flock of Goldfinches.

One day in October, I was walking towards the hills when I startled a flock of Goldfinches. I have never seen a more beautiful sight. There were a hundred or more; they all flew low and not very far away. They settled down again on some thistles that were growing near by and this allowed me to get to within ten paces of them.

The next day I made some bird lime and went where I had seen them the previous day. They were there, just where I had seen them. I set all my bird lime sticks and walked a short distance away.

I soon saw a few which were held fast; I caught half-a-dozen of them. Let me describe those Goldfinches. Some of them were as big as a Lark. The wings were of a nice jet black, with a large, bright spot of yellow. Where the half-moons on the British Goldfinch are to be seen, on the Himalayan Finch was all yellow.

I had one with which I used to catch others. It used to sing from daylight till dark, and it was as tame as could possibly be. I have put my finger in its cage many a time, when the bird would just sit and calmly pick at it. I think such Finches are a cross between the Himalayan and Siberian Goldfinches. Only an odd one was to be seen in the summer, but in winter they used to flock down in their thousands from the cold Afghanistan mountains to feed round Quetta.

I have never seen a Goldfinch imported into England like the above; the nearest in appearance is the Siberian Goldfinch, but that is not half so gorgeous in plumage. I used to catch them on small branches of trees; I cut the branches off, stick them in the ground and put my bird lime sticks on them. Or else I caught them on the thistle heads where they fed.

I noticed that the natives kept one or two, and they wanted 5s. each for them. These, and in fact all natives, do not care to see anyone catching birds, as they worship them. A native policemen on the cross-roads at a place where I went, used to grumble all the time I was catching them.

A Bird with a Mysterious Name.

Another nice bird I used to catch at Quetta and keep in cages was one of about the size of a large Linnet. Both sexes had a black bill like a Linnet and were seed-eaters. They were of a brown colour, except the wing, which had in the middle a blood-red patch about the size of a shilling.

I well remember the first two I caught, they were always seen by me near a stream. There was only one small tree of about three feet high, and these birds often settled on it. So I set my bird-lime sticks on the tree, and I think that in less than ten minutes, I caught them both. They were a pair. It was easy to distinguish the sexes, the cock having a black blaze, the same as the Goldfinch, from his bill to a point behind his eye. The hen had only a little black, and that half-way up to the eye. I could have caught dozens of them in the same way, but I only kept two.

They were good, loud singing birds, and would sing all day. The name of these birds is a mystery. None of the natives had any name for them, except Bulbul. No matter what bird you showed them it was always a Bulbul. Again I have never seen this bird imported to this country.

My next bird is known as the Indian Frontier Skylark. It was rather larger than a Lark on the plains. It had a top-crest, and there is very little difference between this and our own British Lark; they are darker, however.

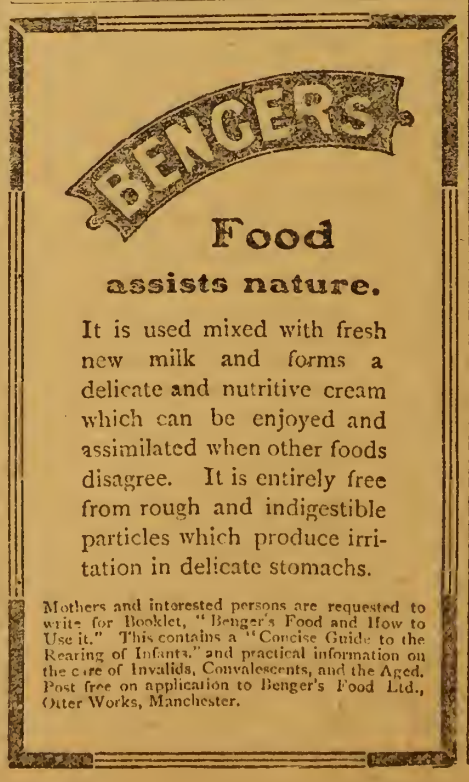
A Queer Sight.

Another bird was the Vulture. The first time I saw this was on my way towards the mountains at dusk one evening. I had walked a mile or more by some small banks, when I heard such a ripping noise, that I turned, but saw nothing owing to there being a hill across my path. So I crept round the hill, hearing the noise all the time. It got plainer as I got nearer, and creeping round a rock I beheld a queer sight. There lay a dead mule in a hollow and round its body were half-a-dozen or more Great Vultures. They were tearing the flesh away from the bones.

These birds are fully three feet high. As it was nearly dark I could not see of what colour they were; I think they were brown. But their long bills and legs I remember very well. I threw a large stone at them and left them. I had only gone a few paces away when I heard them tugging away again at their supper.

The Piercing-Eyed Falcon.

The next bird I will refer to is the Golded-headed Eagle. I was never near enough to get a good view of this bird, as all that I saw were flying a long way above me. I think they would be about the size of a small Goose.



Another bird worth description is the Falcon. I never noticed any of these flying about; the one I saw was on the hand of a native. It had a kind of a cap over its head and eyes. The native took this off at my request, when I saw that the bird had yellow, piercing eyes and was about as big as a Thrush.

Its plumage was of a dark blue, and its bill yellow. I once saw a native go under a tree, having in his hand a Falcon with the cap over its head. As soon as he removed the cap, the bird flew up into the tree like a flash and came down again with one of the many small birds which a moment before were calmly resting in the branches. The Falcon seizes its prey and carries it off in its claws.

Through a Port-hole.

I think I have now described all the hill birds in and around Quetta. I was there three years. I then went to Bareilly on the plain—again a journey of 1,600 miles. I did not stay there more than 18 months, and I returned home to England in 1900, having been abroad eight years.

There is one little incident I should like to record; it happened on the voyage home, while we were at Gibraltar. A Robin Redbreast flew in at a port-hole of the ship just where I was sitting. We could not help looking at it, while it flew about the ship, as it was the first Robin we had seen for years. It stayed about an hour on board, when it flew off again. These notes, I may mention, are strictly true, and I only hope they have interested all who have read them.

CANARY NOTES IN BRIEF.

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

FEATHERED SUFFRAGISTS.

The new woman is not the only biped who in these days vociferously claims equality with what Josh Billings might have termed her "wasser arf" in unfeminine walks of life. We have the "singing hen" always with us at this time of year, and as the present is also a busy time in the sale of singing Canaries, it is not infrequently that a raw recruit buys a bird and is sold." However much the power of song may be valued in the weaker sex of some bipeds it is not the special province of those of the feathered race, and when they do make a fair effort to shine as vocalists they are apt to mislead many inexperienced hearers. To the inexperienced fancier there are very few hens whose vocal abilities would pass muster for those of a cock. In all save very exceptional cases the fraud is apparent almost immediately. In the singing hen though there may be a continuous merry twitter, and more or less sustained outbursts of warbling, there is an absence of "go," and power and volume, and a lack of that vigorous working of the throat which characterises the male. It is, so to speak, the difference between a society chatterbox and an inflamed orator. The new hand, when buying a cock, would be well advised to avoid such entertaining chatterers and look for the vigour or masterful "fighting tone" in the performance.

REVIVAL OF THE LONDON FANCY.

Once again there is some rumour of special efforts being made to revive this ancient and dying breed. Let us hope it is not really dying after all, and that many breeders will give it a corner in their rooms and help to bring it to the front once more. There is no necessity to hope it may find a corner in their hearts, for, strange to say, in view of the trifling support the bird meets with, it is there already. For the beauty and attractiveness of the London Fancy are universally acknowledged by all. Although it has been so long, practically, on the verge of extinction, there are a few faithful adherents who have kept it alive, and with what little pure material there is to work upon and judicious crossings with the Lizard, it should not take a very long time to revive the breed and get it established on a sound footing. There is a fine opening in the breed for a beginner in the Fancy, or a number of beginners, to make a name and fame for themselves in the future.

BLINDNESS IN CRESTS.

We have heard little of this trouble since the flutter which took place a couple of years or so ago. In view of the many suggestions which were made, and the correspondence which took place at the time mentioned, would it not be well for breeders to carefully go into the matter and try to ascertain whether or to what extent the suggestions which were acted upon have been instrumental in reducing the susceptibility of the breed to blindness? I know of more than one good breeder who generously sacrificed mere gain and destroyed every bird that became blind in order to effectually prevent it reproducing its kind, and stamp out the hereditary taint. Now would it not be of the greatest interest to learn whether the proportion of birds going blind had been materially reduced; if the Crest or other typical qualities had been affected, and to what degree; and the nature of the preventive measures carried out? By taking a backward view of the matter in this way, facts of the utmost value to the Crest Fancy may come to light. Who will set the example?

CARE OF LIGHT MULING HENS.

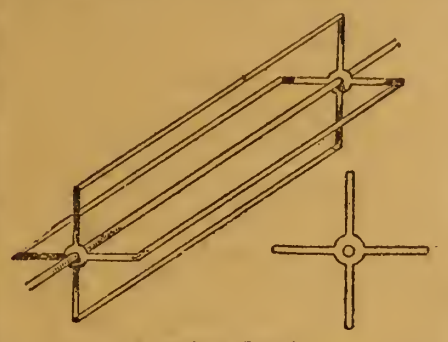
A point which the novice does not always set sufficient importance upon is the jealous preservation of the hens that have thrown even a few light feathers consistently in breeding Mules. At this time of rush of shows the gems of first water in specific breeds are apt to eclipse the modest appearance of these Muling hens, although when the breeding season arrives the latter are likely to be at the highest premium. What is meant by consistently throwing a few light feathers is the hen that throws one or more birds in every brood with more or less light feathers, in contradistinction to the hen that throws, perhaps, one such bird in half a dozen broods. In the latter case the element of chance probably plays a certain part; whereas, in the former, heredity is more likely to be the main factor, and even though the vast majority of the young produced in the latter case may be nothing more than dark birds, the presence of the few light feathers betrays a good sound material in the hen for working up by inbreeding with a thoroughly reliable light Muling strain.

PURCHASE OF NEW BLOOD.

This is a question which is frequently met with at this season. The novice, full of enthusiasm, but all too often with little experience, is just a trifle too apt to jump at any "bargains," which are usually plentiful enough at this season. But it is difficult to advise one as to the "best time to buy"; so much must of necessity depend upon ruling circumstances. Providing one can procure the help and advice of a reliable and experienced friend in making a selection, it may be quite possible to secure good birds more cheaply now than in the spring, and their keep over the winter months may be saved many times over, with just a fair chance thrown in of showing the birds at a few suitable shows, and thus, if judgment in buying has been well used, of recovering some portion of the outlay in prize-money.

There are, however, one or two points which the purchaser should bear in mind, if he wishes to procure his stock at this end of the season. First, he must not expect the owner of a bird "fit to win in the keenest competition" to be particularly anxious to dispose of it now, except at a "bloated price"; second, he should remember that at the end of the show season these fine specimens that were to carry all before them will have found their true level in the prize lists; and lastly, in buying now it is well to remember that one is facing, not only the cost of several months' extra keep, but also the natural risks of life during the same period.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 165.

A NOVEL PERCH FOR AVIARIES.

Sent by F. Vincent, 63, Copeland Road, Peckham.

Take four pieces of wood, each 2ft. long or longer, by one inch wide by half-an-inch thick. Nail together in the shape of a cross, and bore a hole through centre as shown in Fig. 1. Now take four perches that will reach to within a few inches from front to back of avairy, and nail to the ends of crosses as shown in Fig. 2. Run a rod through same from front to back of aviary for perch to revolve on, and you will have a perch which I have found the birds greatly appreciate.—P. VINCENT.

No. 166.

A DEVICE FOR WARMING OUT-DOOR BIRD ROOMS.

Sent by H. D. Potter, 35, Onley Street, Unthank Road, Norwich.

I am sending you my method of warming an outdoor bird-room. Procure a wood lard-pail, costs 3d., and an earthenware gallon bottle. Fill the bottle with

WILD BIRD LIFE

All communications for this column should be written on one side of the paper only, duly authenticated with the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, and sent to H. Norman, Editor, "Wild Bird Life," "The Eyrie," Salisbury-road, Carshalton, Surrey, by Monday in each week. Original observations and records invited.

Hawk versus the Rook.

There is something about the doings of a Hawk which always rivets one's attention. Whenever the strong-winged bird crosses one's vision, it is always followed until out of sight; the manner of its flight, together with the expectancy of a swoop, retains the attention. The Hawk and the Rook are a well-matched pair, and one will seldom interfere with the other. The other day I witnessed a sparring match between these two. They were high in the air, each trying to get above the other. The Hawk occasionally succeeded. He dropped as though about to strike, but the Rook was always ready, and in turn managed to get the upper hand. The arrival of some of the black's companions put an end to the affair, and the dangerous Hawk made off to the woods.

Winter in the Country.

With Christmas so close at hand, we naturally look for what we are pleased to term "seasonable weather," that is, an inch or two of snow upon the ground, or some sharp frost; hard enough for skating or getting about the country. Christmas is the season of goodwill, and with the wished-for seasonable weather, let us remember our feathered friends. Those of us who spend the holiday in the country where we can gather our own mistletoe and holly, will have ample opportunity of watching and feeding the Robins, Tits, Blackbirds and Thrushes, which will soon crowd round the house for scraps from the table or to snatch up a few scattered tit-bits, left by the poultry. In many country districts it is the custom of some of the younger inhabitants to pass the holidays roaming round the hedgerows or prowling round the farm buildings, with gun in hand ready to slay some unlucky Thrush or Blackbird; and so peculiar is human nature that the same youth who seeks to destroy the half-starved bird in winter will later on, when the sun shines, and the dainty spring flowers speckle the woodlands, listen entranced at the beautiful melody of the Golden-bill, or he of the Spotted-breast. These deeds of destruction are mostly committed in thoughtless moments, and a word or two from bird-loving elders will, if spoken in time, save many a songster. During severe weather our wild birds have great difficulty to sustain life. Through weakness they become an easy prey to their natural enemies, and bird lovers should take advantage of Nature's severity to study their habits and plumage; and to do this comfortably, a few handfulls of breadcrumbs, seeds, or meal, scattered upon the lawn will give ample subjects to watch and plenty to interest one. This surely is better than destroying some helpless, half-starved Thrush, or frightening all the feathered creatures away from the district. Ruskin once wrote a beautiful little passage which must appeal to all bird-lovers, "I will even risk incurring your ridicule by confessing one of my fondest dreams, that I may succeed in making some of you English youths like better to look at a bird than to shoot it, and even to make wild creatures tame, instead of tame creatures wild."

Bird Tragedies.

During the winter months bird tragedies are probably more numerous than at any other period, or if they are not, they somehow appeal to us more than they do in the spring and summer. Those who have the time and opportunity to roam the fields and woodlands, are sure to find occasionally some wild bird injured by gun, contact with overhead wires, bird of prey, or other means. Many of these subjects can, with a little attention, be nursed back to health and vigour, and it is astonishing how quickly wild birds recover from what appears to be almost certain death. In wild country districts semi-starved birds are fairly common, and these with a little care quickly get strong again. A list of the various species which have from time to time been treated with board and lodging, including simple surgical attention, would be rather formidable, as they range from Hawks to tiny Softbills. Some stayed for months, returning again the following season; some have been more than friendly, while others have been shy but trustful. Even now we have one on our list, it is a young cock Blackbird, blind in one eye. He is able to enter the bird house over the top of the wire door, and to find soft food and water, which he does almost daily. It is no trouble to catch him, but this free, injured bird is quite as interesting as the caged beauty of the same species. One hopes that during the winter months our readers will not forget the wild ones. Let those who have never tried the plan, give a morning feed to the inmates of the garden, and they will soon become so interested in their doings that they will wonder why they did not encourage their feathered visitors before.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Starlings and Thatched Roofs.

In years gone by, when every other house was thatched, the Starlings were a great pest. They would pull out the straw to make nesting holes, in many cases, causing the roof to have quite an unsightly appearance. Wire netting is often used now to protect thatched barns and out-houses.

A Forsaken District.

It is said that the bird life of Lincolnshire, and Cambridge has altered more in the last century than has been the case in any other district. Drainage has been mostly responsible for it, together with the enclosure of waste land. Many species have been entirely destroyed and more have been driven away. The number of birds generally have fallen off considerably, except the very commonest species.

Seeking a Partner.

One of the most remarkable things, in ornithology, is the seeming ease with which a comparatively rare bird will quickly find a mate. A pair of Ravens built in a certain spot. One of the birds was wantonly destroyed, when, to the surprise of the person upon whose land they were, the survivor returned with a fresh mate, after a two days' absence. If we look beyond the surface, there is certainly something extraordinary in this occurrence. First, the bird had to find another of the same species which, considering their rarity, could not have been an easy matter. And when found, how did it induce the stranger to follow to a fresh country? We may presume that the new bird would have to be an unattached one, as it was in the breeding season, when one of the pair was killed. Other like examples in the cases of various birds have occurred from time to time, showing that they must have in some way a knowledge of the whereabouts of their own species, even although they be many miles away.

On Lonely St. Kilda.

The inhabitants of St. Kilda live chiefly upon the eggs and young of the multitudes of sea birds that frequent the rocks to breed. Among these are the Gannets, Guillemots, Razorbills, Puffins, and Petrels. The two first-mentioned lay their single eggs upon the bare ledges of the rocks or tall cliffs overlooking the sea, while the Puffins and Petrels burrow into the soft, peaty soil upon the rocks, or nest in convenient crevices between them. The number of birds frequenting these rocky homes is almost incredible. Here are a few lines written by a bird lover during a visit to these famous islands:—"The grand home of the Fulmar becomes more impressive when viewed from the sea below. The scene when the birds are frightened from the cliffs beggars all description. The myriads of birds are past all belief—the air is sensibly darkened by their enormous numbers; still the cliffs are white with sitting birds. The Fulmars make the air one vast living snowstorm—the hordes of Puffins look like dense clouds of winnowed chaff. Tens of thousands of birds sweep round the boat; and the face of the cliff seems crumbling away, as the birds in big white masses sweep from the towering heights towards the water." Such a graphic description makes one long to witness a scene like it, but St. Kilda is a long way from the south, and we cannot all spare the time to make the journey and stay long enough to enjoy the scenes of bird life so common upon these wonderful birdy islands. There are books about these sea birds making enjoyable reading.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT. Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must not once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

HARTZ MOUNTAIN ROLLERS.

Cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; Hens, same strain, 3/6 and 5/- each; Pairs, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-; Singing Hartz Cocks, 5/-, 5/9 each; Hens, 1/6 and 2/- each; Extra selected, with better notes, 6/6, 7/6; Pairs, 6/6, 8/6, 9/6, Matched for Breeding, good Songsters.
You may have seen Advertisements of Hartz Mountain Rollers with all kinds of what may be termed "fancy" names, although such are absolute nonsense and positively meaningless, and I question if the people who use them ever were in Germany in their lives, or have any special knowledge of Canaries at all. If you require special strains, the very best known in Germany I can supply them.
N.B.—Persons not liking much noise and wanting low and sweet singing birds, can be supplied by mentioning the fact with order.

ROLLER BREEDERS.

You are all deploring the monotony of your Roller's song. Why not do as the correspondent in last week's CAGE BIRDS did? Try a Cascade Roller. This has all the purity you are striving for, and the changes which British birds lack. For quality, purity, and variety they are unequalled. He says they beat his £2 2s. birds; so they ought to, or they would disgrace their name. Their song is low, long, and lovely, and the price is only 10/-. By request, I am importing a few Schoolmasters for the fastidious and experts, 15/- each. Don't forget the hen has as much to do with the song as the cock. Cascade hens, every bird rung with German breeders' own private ring, 2/6 each; trade terms on application.—Pearson, Cascade Importer, Greenwich.

Hummel Rollers.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12s. 6d.; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3s. each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15s. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5s. and 7s. 6d. each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20s. each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill, December 1st, 1901. Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 0 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it. Miss F. Blockett. December 1st., Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire. Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song. W. Glover, to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London.

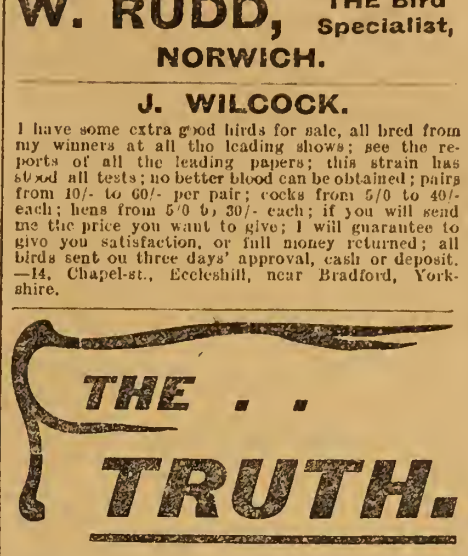
Unheard of Value for 1908 IN Yorkshires



Have on approval and test this statement in a practical form.

Yorkshires.—Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Travelling Cages, 3d. extra.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

J. WILCOCK.

I have some extra good birds for sale, all bred from my winners at all the leading shows; see the reports of all the leading papers; this strain has stood all tests; no better blood can be obtained; pairs from 10/- to 60/- per pair; cocks from 5/0 to 40/- each; hens from 5/0 to 30/- each; if you will send me the price you want to give; I will guarantee to give you satisfaction, or full money returned; all birds sent on three days' approval, cash or deposit. —14, Chapel-st., Eccleshill, near Bradford, Yorkshire.

When I tell you my stock of Birds, Cages' Aviaries, and other Birds' Requisites is the largest and most varied in the United Kingdom you are hearing the plain, unvarnished truth. If you only pay a visit you will see it is correct. Customers who have done so have told me that the size of my premises and stock has far exceeded their expectations. Everybody should know that I can give better value for money than anyone else in the trade. It will save you money if you will only heed this point. I keep a wonderful variety, but my lowest quality starts at good and goes up. All my goods are choice, none more excellent.

The prices are as hard to match as the birds.

All birds are sent out on the understanding that, if after one week's trial they do not satisfy the customer, the bird can be returned and exchanged for another.

I solicit a trial order and guarantee satisfaction.

To all who read this I am anxious to give an opportunity of seeing my 104 paged catalogue. Fully illustrated with requisites needed by all who are interested in birds. I will send this on receipt of two penny stamps to cover postage.

YORKSHIRES. YORKSHIRES.

TRAVELLING CAGES with proper Food and Nourishment for Journey 3d. extra,

Just one or two examples of latest opinions and I shall be pleased to show hundreds of others, all received since the last were seen in this Journal.

Standard Bank, Pietermaritzburg, South Africa. Dec. 5, 1907.—Your favour to hand. I have duly received the birds sent out in good condition, and I am pleased with same.—W. F. Silkstone to W. Rudd.

Uddington, Dec. 21, 1907.—The York hen arrived safe, and in the best of condition. I am well pleased with my pair, and I must return you my best thanks for your promptness in sending hen. It bears out your high reputation and you can be always sure of my patronage.—H. McGorry to W. Rudd. Reedham, Dec. 20, 1907.—Please send two boxes lime. I have thought a long time I would like to thank you for your honest dealing with me, as I don't often come to Norwich. I have to get a lad who goes up to school to do my business. You have never deceived me, as I am sorry to say I have been by some dealers. The last Norwich hen I had from you turned out an extra good one; I only let her have two nests. The first nest she reared five without cock bird, as I was working him with three hens, and the second nest four—so I had nine good ones from her. She is still in the pink of condition. When I require anything else, I feel sure I can leave it to you.—J. P. Cushion to W. Rudd. White Rose Mount, Camelon, Dec. 21, 1907.—The trap cage you sent on I caught a great many birds with, and I hope your bird lime will be as good.—J. Kelly to W. Rudd. Lincoln Lodge, The Avenue, St. Margaret's, Twickenham. Dec. 29, 1907. — Please send me another bottle of Asthmarine. The other one proved satisfactory. Many thanks for your courteous dealing.—N. H. Shovbert to W. Rudd. Downley Common, near High Wycombe, Dec. 28, 1907. —Please send a bottle of Asthmarine and one of Tonic Drops; I cannot find anything to do the same good as yours.—J. Walker to W. Rudd.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all times to send my Parrots on four weeks' trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

SINGING CONTESTS.

PENTONVILLE.

During the week there have been Linnet and Chaffinch handicaps at the "Bee Hive," Pentonville-road, when good scores were made and some keen competition took place. Doctor Newman, Messrs. Tuggy, Pony, and Smith were the winners. For free handicap see advert. in CAGE BIRDS, January, 1908. We are also open to make race for Chaffinch.—F. WESTMORE, Timekeeper.

YORK.

The first annual contest held Boxing Day, at the Crown Inn, North Street, when 24 birds hung up in pairs to sing for eight good prizes, and seven good specials. Some of the very best quality singing was heard by a crowded house. The visitors and fanciers were well satisfied with the way in which the birds sang. Judge, Mr. Perry. Result: 1, T. Lambert, spl, by A Friend; 2, J. Stothard, spl, by Mr. Wriggleworth; 3, T. Massheder, spl, by Mr. T. Lambert; 4, J. Mason, spl, by Mr. Robinson; 5, J. Firth, spl, by Messrs. Lund and Son; 6, G. Horwell, spl, by Mr. Pike; 7, S. Booth, spl, by Mr. Carlss. After the close of the contest the rest of the day was spent "in harmony."

The usual weekly contest was held on December 28th, at the Crown Inn, North Street, when 22 birds were hung up in pairs to sing for five good prizes given by Mr. J. Smith. Some good quality singing was heard before a crowded house. Result: 1, J. Mason; 2, Moore; 3, Firth; 4, Massheder; 5, Lambert. Judge, Mr. Perry; timekeeper, J. Mason; both giving every satisfaction.

Usual contest held at the Crown Inn, North-street, when 20 birds sang for five good prizes given by Mr. James Smith. Some very good singing was heard before a crowded house. The following are the principal prize winners:—1, Wilson; 2, Stothard; 3rd, Booth; 4th, Oldroyd; 5th, Watson. Judge, Mr. Perry; timekeeper, J. Mason.—J. W. SMITH, Secretary.

LEWISHAM.

A big assembly gathered at the Coach and Horses, High Street, Lewisham, on Christmas Eve. Eight pairs of birds were put on the nail with the following results:—1st prize, E. Robinson (big goose and Christmas pudding); 2nd, a railway porter (13 lb. piece of prime English beef); 3rd, Larney (large leg of English mutton); 4th, Lob (nice shoulder of English mutton). The runners up were Jimmy Cartwright, Barber and Rippet. All the birds were in good form and made some good scores.

BLACKBURN.

The Blackburn Linnet Singing Association held their week-end singing contest Dec. 21st at the club headquarters, Old Red Lion, Snig Brook. There were 15 birds, which competed for three prizes given by Mr. J. Harrison. Winners: 1, J. Harrison; 2, P. Blackshaw; 3, G. Rostron. Judge, J. Dobson. Timekeeper, W. Wrenck.—R. HAYHURST, Sec.

The Blackburn Linnet Singing Association Club (headquarters, Old Red Lion), held week-end singing contest, Dec. 28th. Ten birds competed for three prizes. Winners, 1, G. Jeannes; 2, G. Rostron; 3, W. H. Topping. Summoned meeting, Jan. 11. Members requested to attend.

SHEFFIELD.

Linnet contest, held at Don Inn, Carbrook, Sheffield. The entry was rather poor, only eight birds singing for three prizes. But some champion singing was heard. 1, F. Watson, 127; 2, 3, F. Booker, 2, 100, and 3, 57. Time four minutes.—J. G. SCOTNEY.

LEEDS.

On Christmas Day, 28 of the best birds in Yorkshire competed for three good prizes given by Mr. W. Tillottson, King's Head, Shanuon Street. Some very good singing was heard and was worth going a long way to hear. 1st and 2nd prize shared between T. Summers and F. Galley; 3rd prize, J. Nicholls. Judges, S. Hardcastle, T. Crane. Also a contest on Boxing Day, when 26 of the same birds sung for four good prizes. 1st, W. Tillottson; 2nd, T. Summers; 3, C. Biss; 4, W. Fisher. Judges, J. Clarke, T. Crane. Timekeeper, C. Cooper. Also on December 29, when 20 picked birds sung for three good prizes: 1, T. Johnson; 2, W. Fisher; 3, T. Stead. Judges, S. Hardcastle and T. Crane.—T. SUMMERS, Hon Sec.

BRISTOL.

A Linnet singing contest was held at Sheppard's New Inn, St. Philips, Bristol, when five pairs of birds were entered. 15 minutes singing result:—1, spl, Fred Walker, 102 songs; 2, Fred Hicks, 84; 3, Tom Taylor, 68. Judges, Messrs. K. Griffiths (St. Phillps), and J. Parsons (St. Judges). Timekeeper, Mr. George Sheppard. The next contest will be held Jan. 4th, at Mr. Haskins, Greyhound, Midland-road, St. Philips. All entries to be made by Friday night. —W. SHEPPARD.

BARNSLEY.

A Skylark singing contest was held at the Cherry Tree Inn, Barnsley, on Boxing Day. Each bird hung five minutes, facing a crowded house of spectators. There was some very good time singing. Out of the entries, six birds sang. First prize, Mr. Herod Audin, 4 min. 32 sec; 2nd, George Allot, 4 min. 27 sec; 3rd, J. T. Boyles, 4 min. 24 sec. Messrs. W. Jones and A. H. Amos, timekeepers. THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

The schedule of the Crystal Palace Show, that eagerly anticipated grand finale to every show season, once again comes to hand. The dates for the great carnival this year are February 7 to 11, inclusive. The London and Provincial O.S., under whose auspices the fixture is held, have again issued a schedule liberal alike in its classification, prize money, and specials, and we anticipate a great response from the bird-loving fraternity, and an enjoyable wind-up of the fast-waning season in the great Glass House at Sydenham.

This year the Patronage has been obtained of the C.B.U., Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., S.Y.C.C., S.F.C., U.K.B.C.A., S.N.P.C., Crest C.C., Cinn. C.C., L. and L. F.A., L.C.A., B.F.C., E. and W.B.F.C., B.R.C.C., N.B.B. and M.C., and F.B.C. The grand final of CAGE BIRDS' Coupon Scheme Competition, with £10 cash prizes, will also be held here by special permission of the Crystal Palace authorities, and for the four money prizes (£5, £2 10s., £1 10s., and £1) a keen struggle is anticipated.

There are 138 classes in all, and these are distributed as follows under the various judges:—Mr. J. H. Payne's classes: Nor. 8, Nor. Greens 4; Mr. T. Heath's classes: Crest 4, C.B. 3, Yorks. 6, Yorks. Greens 2; Mr. W. Mundell's classes: Yorks. 6, Yorks. Greens 2, Nov. Yorks. 7; Mr. J. Dobson's classes: Cinn. 4, A.O.V. Can. 1, Nov. Cinn. 2, Nov. A.O.V. 1, Employee's Can. 1, Extra Stock 1; Mr. S. R. Compston's classes: Lancs. 4, Lizards 4; Mr. J. Robson's classes: Bord. 8, Belg. 4; Mr. T. Brown's classes: Scot. 4; Mr. J. H. Roe's classes: Nov. Nor 6, Nov. Crest 2, Limit 7; Mr. A. Rettich's classes: Roller Singing 3; Mr. J. F. Dowar's classes: Mules 11; Mr. G. E. Weston's classes: Brit. 4; Mr. S. Cook's classes: Brit. 9; Mr. J. F. Hill's classes: Brit. 8; Mr. H. T. Camp's classes: For. 3; Mr. Russell Humphrey's classes: For. 6; Mr. W. Swayland's classes: For. 1, Cages 3.

The prize money is 15s., 10s., 5s., 2s., or gold, silver, or bronze medals of full value, at the winner's option. The entrance fee is 2s. There is a magnificent list of 296 specials. Entries close on Saturday, January 25, certain, and the management draw special attention to the fact that there will be no extension, and that no "whip-up" cards will be sent out.

During the show seed-eating birds will be fed upon seeds supplied by Messrs. James Carter and Co., High Holborn, London ("Good Old Carter!") and insectivorous birds upon yolk of egg and insectivorous food supplied by Messrs. Trower and Co., 442, Caledonian-road, King's Cross, N. The Crystal Palace Company have promised that the Show shall be held under separate cover in the Crystal Palace, and kept at a suitable temperature. The L. and P.O.S. will provide policemen, attendants, and night watchmen for the protection of the exhibits. No classes will be amalgamated, and no prizes will be withheld in any of the standing classes. All fanciers, it should be noted, whether affiliated members of the Cage Bird Union or not, are equally eligible to exhibit at this show. And as a final word it may be said that there will be no extra charge for admission to this show (only the ordinary charge to enter the Palace).

Coming to the show management, all entries are to be sent to MR. H. LAMBERT BROWN, 64, Manor Park, Lee, S.E., who will despatch tickets, labels, etc.; also pay prize and sale monies. The show at the Palace will be under the sole management of MR. J. W. RAMSDEN, 10, Heron Road, Herne Hill, S.E., who will accept orders for stalls and advertisements, and who will despatch all birds at close of Show.

Accept my best thanks for the Christmas Supplement, writes Miss E. Saywell (Bromsgrove); it was perfect, and affords much interesting reading. Although I do not approve of the experiment, I have allowed a pair of Norwich Canaries to build a Christmas nest, and the hen is now sitting on two eggs.

Our recent open show was a success, writes Mr. J. M. Nicholson, hon. sec. Seaham Harbour and Dis. C.B.A., although we might have had a better gate. The visitors, together with exhibitors, were quite surprised at the quality of the birds we had staged, and all were quite satisfied with the judging. All birds were away in good time, and prize money and specials paid on the Monday night. I feel quite pleased at the complimentary letters I've had sent me from successful exhibitors. I thank them most heartily, and I am sure I feel amply repaid for what I've done. I hope to get a good entry next year, when I expect we shall have a more suitable date.

Help Wanted at Hartlepool.

The committee of the Hartlepools C.B.S. are asking the co-operation of fellow-fanciers in their endeavour to clear off the accounts standing against their society by means of a prize-drawing. Mr. E. Woodhead, of 38, St. Paul's Road, West Hartlepool, the hon. sec., writes: "The unsettled state of trade at the time of holding our last two shows has resulted in a severe loss (one shipyard being entirely closed, and 1,000 men laid off work at the rolling mills), rendering the sale of tickets previous to the show an impossibility. We have, however, discharged all our liabilities to outside exhibitors (through the kindness of one of our members), and we hope, by fanciers' generous aid, to place our Society in a position that will enable the Committee to carry on the work in which we are all so much interested. Members will not participate in the drawing, and all the prizes have been supplied by them.

The Birds and the Berries.

The severe weather of last week will result in an onslaught by the birds on the stores of berries yet unexhausted on the hedgerows and trees, and the appended quaint lines, from an old Christmas-time song, may not be without interest at this season. They speak, it will be observed, of the preference shown by certain birds for certain berries. The Wood-culver, it may be added, is the Wood-Pigeon.:

Holly beareth berries,
Berries red enow,
Tho Thrisselcock, the Popinjay,
Dance in every bough;
Well, away, sorry ivy,
What fowls hast thou,
But for the sorry Howlet,
That singeth, "How, how"?

Ivy beareth berries,
As black as any sloe;
There cometh the Wood-Culver
And feedeth her of tho';
She lifteth up her tail,
And she cakkes ere she go;
She would not for a hundred pounds
Serve Holly so.

An Educated Lovebird.

A Lovebird has taught itself to speak as fluently and as distinctly as the best of talking Parrots at the village of Ambleside, near Stourbridge, Worcestershire, according to a daily contemporary. The bird belongs to Mr. J. Skidmore, of Stamford House, Ambleside, a well-known resident in the district. It was given to Mr. Skidmore about six months ago by his son-in-law, who had had it for eighteen months without its showing any powers of conversation. During the last few months of its life in Worcestershire, however, it has acquired a remarkable aptitude for repeating all that is said to it, though it has received no special training. To a correspondent who "interviewed" it last night the bird suddenly remarked, "Kiss me quick," giving an anticipatory smack. It politely remarked, "How do you do?" and flatteringly added, "You're a little beauty, aren't you?" all in a soft tone that was quite distinct from the raucous accents of the average Parrot. It melodiously whistled a couple of bars of the National Anthem, and proceeded to give some very realistic imitations of the calls of Thrushes, Sparrows and Linnets. "Hanschen," as the bird is named, weighs barely an ounce, and is believed to be the smallest bird of his kind capable of imitating human speech. His chief companion is a large stuffed green Parrot, without which he is never happy, and whose plumage he has so pecked away with kisses that the entire head and neck are now bald. The Lovebird, whenever taking a meal of seed, places a little within the motionless beak of the stuffed Parrot, though when in a conversational mood, he frequently indulges in furious attacks on his silent companion.

HOUSE'S
CANARY MANUAL

Price ONE SHILLING. Post Free 1/2.

Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its Third Edition, entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL."

MR. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

THE SHOWS.

SANDY LANE AND DISTRICT.

At our members' show on Boxing Day, we had a very fair turn up of birds. Mr. W. A. Cowgill (Girlington) was the judge and he gave every satisfaction. The awards were as follows:

CL. YELL.: 1, Bailey and Swanger; 2, Buckle; 3, Smith. BUFF: 1, Wilson; 2, Shaw Bros.; 3, Coates. TICK.: 1, 3, Wilson; 2, Bailey and Swanger. UNEVENLY MARKED: 1, Bailey and Swanger; 2, Coates. CINN. MKD.: 1, Shaw Bros.; 2, Coates. CINN. HEN: 1, Drake and Son; 2, Coates. YELLOW HEN: 1, Wilson; 2, Bailey and Swanger; 3, Drako and Son. BUFF: 1, 2, 3, J. Wilson.—B. BUCKLE, Sec.

WILLINGTON QUAY AND DIST.

This Fanciers' Association held their first show on Boxing Day, December 26th. Mr. Winter, the hon. sec., and his committee looked well after the exhibits entrusted to them and deserved better support, as they are all fanciers good and true, and ran the show to get little insight into things with the idea of holding a show of greater magnitude next year. However, they are not disheartened through being a little on the wrong side, and still intend to have another try. Mr. A. C. Allaway judged the cage birds and his awards gave every satisfaction.

SUFFOLK C.B.S.

Fifteenth annual show was held on December 26th, in the large club room, Globe Inn, Hyde Park Corner. There was a slight falling off as regards the number of birds staged, but the quality was well up to the standard. A Silver Cup was presented by the Society for the best Canary in show, and was won by Mr. T. Clarke, with a grand yellow Cinnamon cock. The birds were judged by Mr. C. Simpson, who gave every satisfaction.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL:

A Magnificent New Year Show Across the Border.

That great institution of the "land of the thistle," the Scottish National C.B.S., held a magnificent show on Jan. 1 and 2, in their usual hall, the Corn Exchange, Grassmarket, Edinburgh, admittedly an exceedingly fine and suitable venue. A wonderful entry was recorded the executive, which shows how their liberality and progressive policy, as regards the classification, prize-money, and specials, are appreciated by the Fancy. Every section was really well filled, as the following figures will serve to show: Norwich 372, Crests 143, Scotch Fancy 143, Belgians 18, Border Fancy 284, Cinnamons 20, Yorkshires 56, Greens 83, Lizards 26, Mules 105, British 447, Foreign 133, extra stock 10, Hyde's 22; total 1870.

The Weather and the Workers.

Edinburgh was not under snow when we arrived, in fact, it appeared considerably milder here than down south. The railway arrangements were consequently normal, which was a blessing to both birds and visitors, especially compared with last year's experience. The size of the Corn Exchange Hall allows for special facilities in the way of staging, and this is well taken advantage of by those in charge, n green cloth some eight feet high running round the outside tiers, showing off the birds to perfection. Exhibitors responded well to the splendid classification. The entries totalled nearly 1,900, being an increase of about three hundred and fifty above last year. This was very satisfactory, especially as it was brought about by a general rise in all the classes.

The enormous entry was handled with consummate skill and ease by the excellent fanciers who make up the Society, nothing whatever going unthought-of that could make the comfort of both birds and their owners as nearly ideal as possible. Foremost among the workers must be mentioned the secretary and treasurer, Mr. James Winter, as ardent a worker in the cause as can be found anywhere, with a cool head on his shoulders and a way of carrying things through smoothly and well that earns him the respect and admiration of both his fellow club-mates and every faucier with whom he comes in contact. He is backed up by a splendid president in Mr. A. C. Dandie, and vice-presidents, Messrs. J. F. Dewar and L. J. Arrighi, a trio of courteous and able gentlemen, with high ideals on the subject of running a cage-bird exhibition—ideals they try their utmost to realise. The success of to-day, need it be said, pleased them greatly. The committee is filled by the following names, well known in birdie circles, and workers to a man: Messrs. T. Todd, R. Craig, A. Cochrane, S. Buglass, G. Brown, E. G. Wright, R. S. Spence, J Gourlay, A. W. Watson, P. West, A. Gorrie, J. Kny, D. Kinlayside, T. H. Buchan, J. Smeaton, W B. Smart, W. R. Dunn, W. Mather, and W. Finnie. They had everything spick and span quite early in the day, and the cards up in record time after the judges' slips came to hand. The catalogue, with marginal awards, also came along from the printers in a remarkably short space of time. The list of judges is: Messrs. W. Vardy (Notts) and J. Ferguson (Glasgow), Norwich Plainheads; J. M'Lay (Kirkintilloch), Crests; T. Hogg (Oakley), A. Melrose (Galashiels), A. Patterson (Edinburgh), W. Rodger (Slateford), Scots and Belgians; Thos. M'Creadie (Dumfries), J. Watson (Selkirk), P. M'Kenzie (Kelso), Borders; H. W. Battye (Huddersfield), remainder of Canaries; and A. R. Langlands (Montrose), P. M.'Quiston (Ayr), Thomas Stewart (Edinburgh), the Hybrids. Brit. and For. It is our pleasing duty to record that their awards seemed to give satisfaction all round, and they are to be congratulated on getting through their onerous duties in so successful a manner.

Some Observations on the Sections.

The Norwich Plainheads, as usual, headed the list, and a right good muster they made, no less than 387 facing the judges. When we notice such world-renowned names as Trengove, Cleminson, Sandiford, Dent, Hirst, Dr. Herd, Bailey and Wilkinson, Seed, and many others from the English side, and Cameron, Chalmers, Winter, Howie, Scaife, Davidson, Holmes, etc., from the Scottish, we may be sure that the cream of the Plainheads were in friendly rivalry. Some of the winners were perfect marvels for beauty, and many a hard-fought battle waged in "Auld Reekie" on New Year's Day. The entry in the classes averaged well over 20, and some had even 40, so it will give one an idea what the judges, who were Messrs. Vardy and Ferguson, had to face. But right well did they get through this work, and both seemed to ho imhued with one single idea, namely, to do their very best. Their awards seemed to give every satisfaction.

Crests, with their nine classes, brought out the largest entry even seen at a Scottish National Show, over 160 birds facing that well-known judge, Mr. John McLay, and right well did he get through his classes. The quality in some of the classes was an eye-opener to all. We have been accustomed to see one or two good ones, and the rest nowhere, but in this instance the real good ones were in the majority, and caused the judge many a minute's hard thinking before he could decide on his winners. The well-known winners of Messrs. Roberts, Taylor, Colledge, Currnh, Godley, Dohson and Son, etc., were opposed hy the Scottish cracks, belonging to such well-known names as Messrs. Cairns, Noble, Adamson, Chalmers, Rohh, Mackie, etc., and some tough fights were seen. The awards seemed to give every satisfaction here also.

The Border Fancy classes made a grand display, birds turning up in strong force, the entries in this section numbering close on 300. Mr. H. Bennet had a grand team forward and scored a popular success with his yellow hen, and gaining special for best clear. This hen would have captured the B.F.C. Medal had her owner been eligible for it, but it fell to Messrs. Duncan and Logan's well-known yellow even mark to gain the club medal. This bird was runner-up to Mr. Bennet's clear yellow cock at the last Scottish National Show, so deserved to win in its turn. It is a real good one, without a douht. Mr. T. M'Creadie (Dumfries), judged clear classes, Mr. P. M'Kenzie (Kelso), uneven marks and fouls, and Mr. J. Watson (Selkirk) greens, and their awards were on the whole satisfactory.

The Green Canaries, of both types, did not muster very strongly, which rather surprised us, as these birds certainly seem to be becoming more popular. The Scotch Fancies were not exceptionally strong, but a few champions among them made up in quality for the deficiency in numbers. The smart little Border Fancies were very strong, especially the greens. As was to be expected, the Hybrid section was well filled, and among the birds we noted many exceptionally good specimens. The British were a hot lot in point of numbers, the Linnets and Non-lcd Greenfinches heading the poll with 42 grand birds in each class, and a double set of winners could have easily been selected.

Incidents and Happenings.

We understand a complaint was lodged against the Bullfinch exhibited by Mr. S. J. Nicholas as being a foreigner, and the protest was upheld hy the Committee.

The much coveted Dewar Shield was won by Mr. L. J. Arrighi with an excellent team mainly British. The Gibson Cup was secured by Mr. John McLellan and the Bennet Cup for best young hird in horder section by Mr. T. D. Smith, of Edinboro'.

The attendance during the dny was excellent and at times the holding cnpacity of the large hall was heavily taxed, it was a somewhat noisy but good-humoured holiday crowd, with plenty of enthusiasm, and the closest attention was given to the exhihits and the awnrds.

Mr. W. Cairn's well-known crest "Satiety," twice first at the Palace, fell dead during the show, it is supposed through excitement.

The Foreign section was well filled, the class for small seed eaters having no less than 35 cntries. The fine classification for these hirds would no doubt help cntries still further. The splendid Foreign Bird Trophy fell to Mr. L. J. Arrighi, with a grand team.

The Cup for Best Young Scotch Fancy was won by Mr. John Arnott, of Sauchie, while Hyde's specials went to Messrs. C. Roherts and J. Winter.

SAXMUNDHAM.

For the first time in the history of Saxmundham, an exhibition of Canaries and other birds was held on Dec. 27, in the Lodge Room of the Queen's Head Hotel. This enterprise is due to the energetic efforts of Mr. E. Gostling, formerly of Norwich, and an ardent Canary fancier. He has been supported by Mr. E. Underwood, and the result of this first trial has been most encouraging. A good number of people attended the exhibition during the day. The object of the exhibition was to form an association of Canary fanciers residing within a 12-mile radius of Saxmundham. The birds were, on the whole, well up to the standard, and in some sections were exceptionally good. Mr. George Vale (Leiston) undertook the office of judge.

PAISLEY.

A Grand Entry and a Decided Success.

The annual exhibition of cage birds was held in the new Drill Hall, on Wednesday and Thursday, January 1st and 2nd, and proved a decided success. The entries numbered 780, an increase of 50 over last year, and the quality was of the highest order, the cream in the various sections taking part in the competition. The Scotch Fancy Canaries were extra strong in merit, the entire lot being of great excellence. They were much in demand, but there was no buying, the owners preferring to retain them. The Scotch Fancy Canary has been seldom shown in 1907, and should be invaluable for breeding; that is a reason given for their being so much sought after. The cage birds were nicely staged at the far end of the hall, and were very cosy and comfortable. The members and visitors on the opening day watched the judging with intense interest, and they had an excellent view. The weather was on its good behaviour, and everybody, in Scotch fashion, wished each other all sorts of good things for the New Year. A glance at the list of winners at once discloses the fact that the exhibitors came from all parts, and many new winners distinguished themselves. It is encouraging alike to executives and the general fanciers to have fresh recruits coming forward. Competition was exceptionally keen, and standing in the hall, one could well fancy we were coming back to the times when the chief attraction centred in the "bird of circle." It is almost a pity the exhibition season is over. By this time next year, Mr. Secretary Baird's wish may be realised, he aiming at nothing short of a 1,000 cage birds at the show. The Belgians were a mixed lot. We heard it said more than once that when a bird is rather stiff to win as a Scotch Fancy, it is put into a cage with one perch, and it passes as a Belgian. Several very nice birds were on exhibition. The Mules were strong in quality, though they might have been stronger in numbers. The Canary-Bullfinch was a very nice bird. The Goldfinches were excellent, both in home and foreign products, rich in plumage, and well put down. The Bullfinches were a good average lot. The bold Greenfinch was well represented, and Yellowhammers, Linnets, Siskins, Redpolls, Twites and others were really of excellent quality, and present in goodly array. Only six foreign birds were on view, but they were all that could be desired, and were greatly admired by visitors.

The Norwich were a splendid class, the quality being excellent. Borders were a treat in themselves; although a shade down in numbers this year, they made up for it in quality, being in grand feather and condition. Crests were also strongly represented, and a grand lot they were. Crest-breds were also good. Yorkshires turned out well. The management did wisely in making two classes for this excellent bird. This is the first time Paisley has done the Yorkshires the honour of a class, but it is hoped it is not the last time. In the different sections some champions of the year were staged. All over the entries for the show were 50 in advance of last year. Mr. A. G. Cameron (Kelso) judged the Nor. and Yorks sections, and Mr. J. Mossie (Annbank) the Bor. Fey. sections. Both are gentlemen of proved ability, and their awards gave the utmost satisfaction The Bord. Fey. medal was won by Mr. T. McKean, with a lovely Clear Hen, in tip-top order, a popular win.

The Scotch Fey. cup, presented by T. Love, Esq., for best young bird bred and owned by a member residing in Paisley, was won by Mr. Urquhart, with a buff cock, of real merit. A handsome medal for the best young bird bred and owned by a member was won by Mr. William McClure, with a buff foul cock, another "good 'un." This same breeder also won eight firsts, one second, and a fourth, in all ten wins, not a bad record.

The success of the event is due to the indefatigable labours of the executive. Mr. Robin, the President, had divided interests, but he kept an eye on the cage birds. The cage bird secretary, Mr. A. M. Baird, is a strong man for the position. Every item of work was up-to-date, and he laboured with a will. Of a genial temperament, he kept cool and collected, and the business of the society under his care was conducted in the best possible manner. He was assisted by an able band of enthusiasts, ready and willing, and each a master of his work.

The judges spared no pains, and were most careful in their selections. For the Scotch Fancy the gentlemen who officiated were Messrs. J. Watson, J. A. Stewart, and G. Fulton (Glasgow), W. Muirhead (Bonnybridge), J. McLennan (Edinburgh), and D. Holden (Muirkirk), and for the Mules, Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, Mr. Craig (Tollcross). Their awards seemed to give great satisfaction. The show was a great success, and will be long remembered by those who had the pleasure of visiting it.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF CAGE-BIRD SOCIETIES.

A meeting of the Council was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Girlington, on December 21st. In the absence of the president and vice-president, the chair was occupied by Mr. J. Townend. A sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Clark, Townend, Clarkson, Gledhill, Armstrong and the secretary, was appointed to deal with the matter of railway charges on birds in transit to and from shows in charge of the owners.

Messrs. Cook and Son were suspended from showing at Union shows until March 31st next, for having knowingly exhibited a cock in hen class.

A charge of borrowing birds and exhibiting same was brought against W. T. Hall, Dewsbury, N. Rayner, of the same place, being cited as the lender. Under a smart cross-examination by Mr. J. E. Clark and others, the defence set up entirely collapsed and the Council unanimously agreed that the charge was proven, and suspended the two persons named for twelve months from date of meeting.

Re assistant judges for Bradford (West) and Huddersfield Show it was decided that the latter, having worked according to the instructions from the Union Secretary, be exonerated from all blame in having appointed a person not in the Union list, but that a letter of censure be sent to the Bradford (West) Society for having appointed one who had already officiated at one of the Union shows, thus violating Rule 11.

The resolution passed at Sandy Lane was then rescinded, and societies were granted permission to select their own assistant judges, when such are required, providing that no person officiates at more than one union winter show during the same season. In this connection the application of Manningham to appoint Mr. W. A. Cowgill was negatived, that gentleman being already the appointee for Brighouse.

Keighley were granted permission to alter the date of their show from February 8th to February 1st, in order to avoid clashing with the Palace Show.

The Bradford (East) Society was admitted to membership of the Union as from April 1st next.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Townend for the admirable manner in which he had conduoted the business of the meetng, and his reply, brought the sitting to a close.

Fred Hammond, Hon. Sec.

TWITTERINGS.

A Happy and Prosperous New Year to you all.

Messages of greeting and goodwill continue to reach us, and we have once again to record our heartiest thanks to the kindly senders.

I am well pleased with your LIVE BIRD LABELS, writes Mr. John Burdekin (Halifax).

I am much pleased with the Christmas Number.—HARRY CARTER (Congleton).

In the report of Lurgan Show my wins in the Yorkshire classes have been credited to Devitt, writes Mr. James Devins (Sligo).

My address for the present, writes Mr. Joseph Jones, will be until further notice, "Custodian," Municipal Buildings, Dudley.

Kindly ask fanciers to hurry up and give this Society a good entry, writes Mr. T. Vose, sec. St. Helen's C.B.S. Special given in each class.

I have removed from Harrington Street, New Cleethorpes, to 181, Grant Thorold, Park Crescent, Great Grimsby, writes Mr. T. Peplow.

The judge of the cage-birds at the Northern Ramsey I.O.M. Society's Show on January 9th next will, we hear, be Mr. H. Tams, of Longton.

I have only taken CAGE BIRDS in a short time, writes Mr. T. Liggitt (Belfast), and find it a splendid paper for a beginner. I wish it all success.

Hysou Green Show report gives the judge as Mr. Wm. Irvine, writes Mr. J. Bertie (Nottingham). This should have been Mr. Wm. Twine.

Please mention, writes Mr. J. McEwan, secretary of Larkhall Show, that Class 102, Soft-billed, should not be "members'"; this is a printers' mistake.

All open prize money has been paid for Barrow Show, writes Mr. Willison, the sec., and members will receive theirs on the next meeting night.

We hear from Mr. W. H. Bray, secretary of the Godiva Coventry Show, that the date of entries closing has been extended to first post Monday, January 6th.

Porth Show report credits Mr. Nicholas with 2nd in the Hybrid Class, writes Mr. James Shearn (Cardiff); it should read Shearn and Owens with Goldie-Bully.

Narberth Show report credits us with he in Goldfinch Class, write Messrs. Pudner Bros. (Kidwelly), but this is wrong, as our Finch was absent from the above show.

Owing to our open show being held on Jan. 4th, writes Mr. E. Kemp, sec. of the Manningham C.B.A., the monthly meeting will be postponed to Jan. 11th, at 7.30.

In our correspondence column last week "C.B.U. District 12," should have been the heading to Mr. F. J. Martin's letter; our printers managed to leave out the numerals.

Several letters thanking him for prompt despatch of prize money, and for the good management, have been sent for our perusal by Mr. A. Parks, the secretary of Leigh Show.

The balance sheet of the last Thirsk Show which reaches us from the hon. secs., Messrs. Bell and Long, is eminently satisfactory, the balance in hand being increased from £10 to well over £15.

We have fixed the same date as last year, viz., the first Saturday and Monday in November, the 7th and 9th, for our All England Show, writes Mr. C. Draper, the sec. of Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S.

I am a regular reader of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Snell (W. Stanley), and have been ever since I began to keep Canaries, and I find it is the best paper I can read concerning birds.

Will members of the Stoke Newington F.A. note, writes Mr. Geo. Dowden, sec., that there will be no meeting on the 7th inst. The date of annual general meeting will be sent by post to each member.

I have had so many replies to my advertisement for Crest-bred hen and Norwich hen, writes Mr. J. Ovenstone (Grangemouth), that I am unable to reply to every one individually. I thank you for the same.

We have selected October 20th and 21st, 1908, for our next annual show, writes Mr. T. Pope, hon. sec. Western Counties O.S., and shall be glad if you will put same in your "Show Dates Fixed" columns.

On the evening on the first day of the Wimbledon Show, on January 8th, at 8 p.m., writes Mr. W. H. Colman, sec., the whole of Mr. J. Wheeler's (of Kingston)) exhibits will be sold by auction without reserve.—ADVT.

I am very pleased, writes Mr. W. H. Bray, sec. Coventry Godiva C.B.S., that we have had plenty of applications for schedules through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, and we hope the entries will come up well at the close.

We have closed with a total entry of 315 birds, which we consider very good, writes Mr. W. Pawley, hon. sec. Plumstead and Woolwich Show. I should like to thank through your columns all who have enabled us to do this.

Through Mr. Irons omitting to put his name and address on entry form, writes Mr. A. Emery, hon. sec. of Burton-on-Trent Show, his name did not appear in catalogue, therefore he was not credited with any wins in the report of our show last week. They were: Nor. unevenly mkd, 1st; hen, 4th; nat. col. 2nd.

In future, writes Mr. R. J. Pretty, the meetings of the London and Counties A.C.B. will be held on the first and third Mondays in the month. The annual show of pairs matched for breeding will be held on Saturday, January 25th, at "The Bay Malton," Great Portland Street, when Mr. Geo. Gardner will judge.

Kindly state that I have sold my winning Goldfinch—1st Castle Douglas, and medal 1st Kilmarnock, 1st Hamilton and special under different judges—writes Mr. A. Porteous (Glasgow), to Mr. Gunnell, Railway Tavern, Woodside. In my travels I am always getting new buyers of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS.

We expected a bigger entry, writes the secretary of the Baildon Show, Mr. W. T. Dobson, but no doubt the Christmas holidays affected it. All prize money and specials were sent out on the day of the show. The principal special winners were: Best bird, A. Ambler; second best, J. D. Leigh; best unflighted, W. Spencer; most points, J. Wilson; second most, A. Ambler.

We hear from Mr. H. Hill, secretary of the Bradford (East) O.S., that the Society's first annual tea and concert will be held on January 7, in the Park Chapel Schools, West Bowling, when an excellent programme of music will be gone through. The chair will be taken at 6.30 o'clock by the vice-president, Mr. W. Cruise, and the presentation of prizes will afford a happy interlude. Friends will be welcomed.

Perhaps you are interested in the graceful Yorkshire Canary? If so, you will want to learn the secrets of its breeding, of its preparation for the show-bench, and the hundred and one other little "tips" that can fall only from the lips of a fancier who is right in the front rank. Send one shilling and twopence to CAGE BIRDS' office for the standard book on the Yorkshire, by Mr. H. W. Battye, president of the Yorkshire Union, and you will come into possession of a mine of information on every point appertaining to every variety of the bird you love.

The members of the Grimsby and District C.B.S., on December 11th, were treated to a very interesting washing exhibition by Mr. W. Clews, writes Mr. W. H. Moore, the assistant sec. Three birds underwent the process and came through looking grand. A great many questions were asked, and a great deal of useful information was derived from the exhibition, which was executed in a masterly style. A very enjoyable and instructive evening was brought to a close by a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Clews.

I was very pleased with the result of my last advertisement, writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall (Newcastle-on-Tyne).

Up to the time of writing I have only received two entries in the cage-bird section, writes Mr. C. W. Mead, sec. Walthamstow Show, and hope fanciers will rally round. I will accept entries up to the last post Saturday, January 4.

On looking over report of the Annan Show, writes Mrs. E. Jackson (Hamilton), I observe it stated that Mr. McQuiston's First Prize British Cock Bullfinch also gained first at Dundee, which is not correct, as the Dundee winning Bullfinch belonged to me.

Wimbledon Show, January 8th and 9th. Entries are very short indeed, and much against my wishes I have been obliged to extend entries till first post Monday, January 6th. Fanciers kindly help us in our trouble.—W. H. Colman, 40, Broadway, Wimbledon.—(Advt.)

We must make a genuine appeal for help, writes Mr. W. R. B. Richardson, the secretary of Neath Show, as despite the good schedule and plenty of specials, we do not at present muster one entry per class. Will fanciers please support us by posting entries at once?

A mistake has occurred in schedule of Wimbledon Show under Crested Canary Club specials, writes Mr. W. H. Colman, secretary. It should be 5s. each for best Crest-bred, not the owner of the previous winner of Crested in both Champion and Novice sections, instead of 2s. 6d.

In last week's twitterings, writes Mr. W. J. Douglas (Whitehaven), Mr. W. Irwen (Harrington) claims having won most points by a member at Whitehaven Show. I tied with him, having the same number of points, and had selling class points counted I had five points more than he.

OBITUARY.

Mr. G. H. Cordery, (Dulwich).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. Cordery, junior, that I have to inform you of the death of Mr. G. H. Cordery, at 11 a.m., Saturday morning, December 28, after a lingering illnes from cancer for the past twelve months. My father was a well-known fancier and was a member of many clubs, and I should feel glad if you could give them this intimation through your paper, which he had taken in from its first issue.

Mr. A. D. Sprules, and Mr. W. Hodson, the hon. secretary of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., also write recording their regret at the death of Mr. Cordery. Mr. Hodson adds: As an exhibitor he was always to the front, a good sportsman, sparing nothing to have the best. He was also an enthusiastic supporter of our local society from its inception, a kind and loyal friend, always ready to help. Members of the society and fanciers generally, will, I am sure, unite in tendering to Mrs. Cordery and family their deepest sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Bolton and District Ornithological and Roller Canary Society Open Roller Contest to be held at Joiners Arms Hotel, Deansgate, Bolton, January 10th and 11th, 1908, Schedules now ready. J. Stringer, sec., 27, James Street, Bolton.—(Advt.)

Kindly mention my change of address in your widely circulated paper, Cage Birds, writes Mr. J. H. Mills. It will save me a lot of trouble. I have taken the paper from commencement, and wish it every success. My address will be Old Manor House, Great Houghton, Northants.

The Glasgow and Western Counties Show report, writes Mr. A. Parks (Glasgow), gives my name as third with a clear Yellow Cock; the report states: "A New Purchase." Kindly contradict this, as I did not show any young which were not bred and moulted by myself, according to the rules of club.

From that old and respected Scottish Fancier, Mr. Jas. F. Dewar, of Edinburgh, an exceedingly pretty card of greeting reaches us, containing a charming photograph of his baby daughter, concerning whom Mr. Dewar writes: She is one of your youngest, well I can't say readers, but one who admires your lovely coloured plates—which are the admiration of all who know what a really good plate is.

At Hamilton Cadzow Oak Show we sent away in a mistake a Buff Green Border Cock, Class 26, No. 5, belonging to Mr. B. Smart (Loanhead), writes Mr. Richard Gadsden, the secretary, and are left in possession of the 3rd prize winning bird in same class, which I can't get an owner for. Some one does not know his own bird it seems! Anyone having the missing bird will oblige by letting me know.

I see that in "Twitterings" last week Mr. Midgley claims the credit of winning 4th prize in Class 9 at Gateshead Show, writes Mr. C. Corston, of Gateshead. If that is so, the Gateshead Society must be very liberal, for I have received 4th prize money, and I enclose for your inspection the prize-card that my hen had on her cage, also the cage-label (No. 3, in Class 9), and, further, the letter from the secretary that came with the prize-money. I do not see where the catalogue was in error, as my name appears opposite this number, and there is only one No. 3 in the Class in my catalogue. I wish your splendid paper, Cage Birds, a prosperous New Year.

The RESULT of our CHRISTMAS COMPETITIONS for best colored frontispiece, and for deciding where the two Norwich Canaries differed, will be ANNOUNCED NEXT WEEK.

Great National Cage-bird Show, Crystal Palace, 1908. R. A. Newley begs to announce that he will have a fine exhibition of bird-cages, aviaries, and sundries of all kinds on his stall at the above show. Inspection and patronage of fanciers and public visitors is respectfully invited. All goods can be taken from stall at time of purchase. Everything best quality; no fancy prices. Gentlemen wishing to exhibit their specialities on the stall during the show should write early. Terms on receipt of particulars. All communications to R. A. Newley, 24, Stockwell Green, London, S.W.—Advt.

Our members, writes Mr. V. Wynn, hon. sec. City and Suburban A.C.B., in their desire to enjoy the Christmas season, did not forget their poorer and older fellow men, but generously subscribed a guinea to be sent to the Old Folks' Christmas Dinner Fund, through Mr. G. Gardner. The sum of 14s. 6d. had been collected, and to commemorate the death of his devoted brother (a fancier) Mr. Jellico (Chief Engineer in Bombay, India, who is on holiday in England) made up the remainder to a guinea. A member who does not wish his name disclosed has presented us with a lovely silver-plated cup for competition at our pair show.

Canary breeding is a paying hobby to take up. Yes; that is true enough. But hundreds of beginners waste heaps of money every year by not knowing exactly the appliances to commence with, how to select their birds to the best advantage, and how to manage them on sound economical lines. This might easily be avoided. Every "new chum" can save himself the loss of money and valuable time by sending sevenpence to Cage Birds' office for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which will give him a start on the right track. There are hints in it, too, worth money to all seasoned breeders, that will help him to "set his house in order."

The N.P.C. Challenge Cup Won Outright.

Kindly state, writes Mr. J. Raynes, the hon. sec., that the Norwich Plainhead Club's Challenge Cup has been finally won by Mr. J. Trengove, of Rishton. He has won it three times, so that it now becomes his own property, and the same will be handed over to him at the Manchester Members' Show on Saturday, January 4th.

The Sad Side of Xmas.

A number of correspondents appear to have overlooked our notice last week that letters must reach this office by Friday morning's post, owing to the holidays compelling us to go to press very early, and in consequence a large number of communications had to be left out of our last issue—many of these communications indeed arrived after Cage Birds was actually printed and on sale, the vagaries of the Christmas post no doubt being responsible for this. Several secretaries suffered with their club notices, unfortunately.

Scotsmen make Merry.

The Edinburgh Western O.S. held their annual smoking concert in the Union Hotel, on 21st December, writes Mr. John Thompson, when there was a large turn-out of fanciers from all the surrounding districts. Songs and recitations were the order of the evening, and never before was there such a grand display of talent brought before the Western O.S. Great praise is due to the members for the support they gave. The president, Mr. Ballantine, as chairman, helped greatly to make everything a success, and a very pleasant evening was spent among the fanciers of Edinburgh. Let us hope that similar gatherings may take place for many years to come.

The Novice Defined.

The Federation of London Cage-bird Societies has adopted definition No. 15 in the following amended form, as that which shall decide who is and who is not a novice exhibitor at its shows:—

A.—A novice is one who has not won a first prize at three separate shows in Novice Members' Classes.

B.—An amateur is one who has won a first prize at three separate shows in Novice Member's classes and ceases to be such when he has won a first prize at three separate shows in Amateur Members' classes.

C.—A champion is one who has won a first prize at three separate shows in Amateur classes, or three first prizes in Open Novice classes, or one first in Open Competition.

All pairs and young bird shows excluded. Limit classes of over £3 shall be considered Open classes. There should be not less than three competitors for a win to count.

A Regrettable Illness.

It is with extreme regret we hear that Mr. J. Patterson, the well-known Chirnside Border Fancy Canary enthusiast, is confined to his room once again. Right through 1907 ill-health has had him more or less in its grip, and now scarlet fever has laid him low. We feel sure his many friends will join in wishing him a complete and speedy recovery. Mrs. Patterson writes: An epidemic of scarlet fever has broken out in our village, and our house was thoroughly disinfected, and we never dreamt it would be that, as it was only among the children. However, there is no doubt about it this morning. Will you mention this in next week's Cage Birds? I shall answer all his correspondence that I can, but your paper will reach more than I am able. He is as well as can be looked for yet, but it will just have to run its course, and I hope for a good recovery. It may be the means of curing him, for he has had but poor health all 1907, a year of trial I shall never forget.

NOTICE!

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

"Cage Birds" Annual for 1908

is now in course of preparation, and will be published early in February, as usual, and be on sale at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show and in the hands of all subscribers, we hope, by Saturday, February 8th, next. To enable us to keep our word we ask the generous co-operation of readers.

Secretaries of Societies

devoted to the interests of the cage-bird hobby should send us full particulars of same at once for inclusion in our Alphabetical List of Cage-Bird Clubs. We want the full name of the Society, the latest list of its officials, the place and time of meetings and the nights, the entrance fee and the subscription. As this is the only directory to those associations catering for cage bird fanciers in existence, no society can afford to be missing from the list. Members should make a point of seeing their society is included. Secretaries who have changed their addresses should not fail to notify us. We want our list to be thoroughly up-to-date, and thoroughly complete.

Judges of Cage Birds

who have officiated at any recognised show can have their name and address inserted in our list of judges by sending us particulars on a post card. There is no charge whatever. Any judge at present on our list who may have changed his address during the past year should notify us at once. This list is the only complete one of its kind, and is universally consulted by show officials, therefore, no judge can afford to be unrepresented on it.

The Bird Trade.

Our directory to the bird trade is a feature that no dealer in birds, or foods, or medicines, or appliances of any kind whatsoever, can neglect. It is a permanent record of his address, as well as his specialities, which is an invaluable guide to the fanciers in his own town as well as all over the world. No charge is made for the inclusion of any bona-fide trader, but the name can be thrown up in heavy black type on payment of 1s. (one shilling).

All Breeders and Exhibitors

should register their names and addresses in our "Directory of Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors," the charge for which is the nominal one of threepence only.

For Breeders' Cards, and other displayed Advertisements, business bringers from all over the world, see the low terms quoted on the back page.

Write us for any particulars you may require, and send us any suggestions you can make.

F. CARL,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

The secretary of Frome Fanciers' Show, Mr. C. I. Young, writes: The cage-bird fixture my society had intended holding in the present month (January) has been postponed until later in the season, and will probably be held next November in conjunction with the usual poultry, etc., exhibition. We find that a cage-bird show cannot possibly pay here.

A handy and tasteful little pocket diary, remarkable value for the small sum asked for it (sevenpence only), reaches us from Messrs. S. James and Co., of Church Lane, Hornsey, London, N. We anticipate a heavy demand for it by fanciers, as it has cash columns, besides space to record engagements and shows; also a liberal insurance coupon, entitling the holder, among other things, to £3 per week during sickness.

Show Officials Note.

The advantages attaching to deciding early the date of an annual show, and giving due publicity to same, are recognised by all wide-awake show officials. The important fixtures for the next (1908-9) show season are already making their appearance in our "Show Dates Fixed" column. Be wise, take time by the fore-lock, and let us include your show at once; it will probably save you endless worry and trouble later on.

CLUB NOTICES.

One notice of any forthcoming Society meeting inserted free. It should reach us by Tuesday morning's post. Specially printed Club Notice Postcard may be had free on application to our Manager. Secretaries should always use them.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 15, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—C. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c. Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

The Time to Mate.

H. Blanchard.—Three months hence, in a general sense. The middle of March is early enough in all save quite exceptional cases. Unless your room is very favourably situated to receive heat indirectly from some external source, or the birds are liberally treated with "extras" to the usual diet, I should say it was nothing more than healthy activity that affects the hens you think are in forward breeding condition. Do not dream of mating them yet. Give as much Epsom salts as will lie on a sixpence in the drinking water for two days. This and the climatic conditions that appear to be looming will doubtless soon bring these hens to a more sensible frame of mind.

On Going Wheezy.

A Young Beginner.—Get a chemist to make you a few pennyworths of a mixture of two parts each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, and one part each of tincture of lobelia and hyoscyamus. Give the bird twelve drops of the mixture in its drinking water every alternate day for a fortnight. Keep the bird in a room where the temperature is equable and not very low—say, not lower than forty-five degrees—and give a teaspoonful of scalded rape twice a week, and a small piece of bread dipped in hot milk, and pressed nearly dry once a week, in addition to its usual seed.

A Bird Not Singing.

Hartz Mountain Roller.—I am inclined to think that all your bird's troubles are due to being infested with red mite. Go on treating the cage, and the place where it hangs, with the fluid you mention for a little time. Feed on a staple diet of two parts Canary and one part summer rape, and give a teaspoonful of egg food once a week, and give ten drops of Parish's Chemical Food in the drinking water every second day for a fortnight. The fright you mention might stop it singing for a time. You will doubtless find it will begin again at the approach of spring. If not, a new singing cock would probably prompt it to "open out."

The Cause and Cure of Asthma

Canary.—No. 1. The medicine prescribed for "A Young Beginner," which see, will suit your bird's case, but it may not be necessary to continue it longer than one week. Try it for a week, and if the bird does not seem quite well at the end of that time continue it for another week. No. 2. It is more than probable that keeping the bird in a room where a fire is only kept on alternate days is chiefly responsible for the bird's condition. It would be better not to have a fire at all if it cannot be kept going every day. Fluctuations of this kind are very harmful. No. 3. A room with a temperature of about fifty degrees should be quite warm enough, and suit your bird well. Bear in mind that an even, low temperature is much better than a high one that is not even.

Is it Crest-bred?

"Silliw."—Yes, it is quite possible that the hen you have may be a genuine Crest-bred. All birds are not equal in the possession of prominent typical points, and your hen, being a Yellow, would naturally not appear so heavily browed as a Buff. Turn the feathers on top of the head backwards with a large pin, and see if the tips reach the tip of the beak, or go beyond it. If they do, I should certainly advise you to try her before discarding her. The cock you describe is evidently a Crest-bred of fair quality.

A Belated Moulting.

F.O.L.—You omit to say whether the bird moulted or not last autumn. If it did not, this is simply a belated moult, and from your description I think the bird will get through it all right. As the bird is active and healthy, leave well alone, but give a little egg food twice a week, and see it is protected from cold draughts. Do not overheat the room with the stove by day if it cannot be kept going at night.

A Broken Leg.

"Pet."—You seem to have put on the splints very fairly; therefore, if the bandage has kept on, and looks secure, do not touch it. Let it remain on for a month if it does not incommode the bird. Cut it a couple of perches about three-quarters of an inch wide in the cage, and place them low down, about three inches from the floor. You may put its usual perches in in a fortnight, but keep one low down until you see the bird uses its leg freely. Yes, if the job is well done, the leg will be almost as good as ever again. You may remove the splints a few days after you notice the bird can well grip the perch with the claws on that leg.

Questions of Mating.

Nil Desperandum.—Certainly you will do well to dip into Green blood. I do not think the Greens are more apt to the faulty tails you mention than other varieties of the same breed, and you should be able to get stock birds with good close-fitting tails. The price you name is none too high, and will not be likely to command birds good in all points. Why not use a rather heavily-marked bird bred off Greens? This should give you some nice ticked birds with better colour. I see no reason why the Cinnamon-marked Yorkshire should not do well in your room, especially if you took the precaution of procuring your stock from some one breeder who goes in for normal temperature—there are such. For the bird you mention, which is weak in head points, I would advise you to procure one exceptionally strong in these points from the same strain. You should be able to make a great improvement in this respect in the course of two or three seasons.

YORKSHIRES.

An Unsound Purchase.

Walter Williams.—You seem to have got hold of a hen that is unsound, and as you say you have tried several remedies (which you name) I don't think the bird will be of much use as a breeder. If she were mine, I should get rid of her. I don't know of an India-rubber syringe for injecting olive oil when a hen is egg-bound. And there is no necessity for one, as if you catch the hen and get a warm knitting-needle, or something similar, and dip it in the oil, and let about two drops fall on to the bird's vent from the end of the needle, it will quickly be absorbed. A Greenfinch is not difficult to keep, and as to feeding, write our British bird specialist, and he will advise you.

The Deadly Asthma.

G. Dear.—Your bird is evidently suffering from asthma, for which there is not much chance of a cure; at least, if not caught in its early stage. I don't think you can alter the treatment for the better. Keep warm and cover up at night until the warmer weather comes, when perhaps it may improve.

BORDERS

Various Matters.

T. W. Burger.—The temperature of your bird room is very low—too low, in fact, to keep your stock free from colds, etc. You must try further remedies by putting paper over any likely place where the draught or cold wind enters. You might try and separate your birds into smaller cages—say, three or four to one cage; cover over with cloth. When there are so many together, the aggressive ones get all the dainties, which are not good for them, and the others are left to starve. By separating them you will be able to regulate their feeding. Feed on best Spanish Canary seed as a staple diet; every other day a third German rape added. On the alternate day half a teaspoonful egg food with a pinch of maw seed; to the egg add 10 drops Chemical Food. Give in water for three days 10 drops tincture of quinine; then replace by a mixture of equal parts, whiskey, paregoric and glycerine. Mix well and give 15 drops to an ordinary drinker. Put a piece of mutton suet between the wires. (2) You helped to hasten his demise by giving the glycerine direct into beak. (3) I had told you how to pair your clears and marks. Regarding the Greens, which are, as I thought, light below, you must procure somewhere a bird that is dark and well pencilled down to the thighs to pair with. You can give the seed mixture in a separate dish twice a week.

On Pairing Up.

Drummossie.—I should be inclined to pair No. 1 cock to No. 2 hen, seeing that the one pair is small and the other large. You would then have a better chance of getting birds of the proper size and build. However, if No. 2 pair are the size of small Norwich, you should sell them out. The extreme length of the Border must not exceed 5½ inches. I rather prefer them under this for stock birds. There was a proposal before the general meeting of the B.F.C.C. last year to publish a cheap book for beginners such as you, and you may expect it shortly if the selected members keep well. The drawings will also appear after the show season. (3) Your shed will do now, only you might improve it with a good coat of tar or paint outside to keep out the weather and damp.

Answered by C. E. WESTON.

Concerning Canary Bullies.

Lucky.—1.: It is really most unwise to keep Mules or Hybrids together in the same cage. Some time or other a fight is inevitable. You were fortunate, I think, in escaping with a few lost flight feathers. These would not be pulled out by the aggressor (as apparently you think), but be knocked out in the wild dashes made to get away from him. I should think the cock Canary-Bullie was at the bottom of the mischief. The bird can be shown immediately the new flight feathers are plainly to be seen: they would handicap the bird slightly until fully grown again, but this would only take effect in keen competition. 2. You could try the hen Canary-Bullie at hatching eggs and rearing young. It would be an interesting experiment; have never personally been fortunate enough to have a hen C.B. to experiment with. Run a cock bird of some kind with her once or twice when she seems ripe for breeding. 3: I do not see any object in pulling out the other flight feathers of the hen Bullie. It would be, in any case, attended with danger when tried by an inexperienced person—a broken wing is easily accomplished. 4: Mealworms and soft-food occasionally only now. 5: I would rather be excused from attempting to value your bird.—so much depends on who is the buyer.

On a Muling Strain.

Anxious.—I do not advise you to purchase the almost Green cock, which is said to be the father of the Bull hen that bred you the almost clear Mule. I doubt whether you could get a clear, pink-eyed Norwich, or cinnamon-ticked either (I am speaking of a large, really typical specimen, of course), although you might at a longish price. If your own birds with cinnamon blood in them are clear-bred (or from very lightly marked), and of good size and substance, then a cock from amongst them might make her a good and suitable mate. If the hen belonged to me, however, I should get a clear Yellow Lancashire Plainhead cock, from a good, known strain, with some timber about him, to pair up with her. It would pay you to take two nests of eggs from the hen before running her with the Finch. She need not rear the young, or even sit the eggs for that matter. By the way, you say the young Mule is "clear Yellow," except for eye marks, and mark on back. It is curious that it should be a Jonque, seeing the mother of it was, as you say, a Mealy. Are you sure it is a Yellow?

Blackbird out of Doors.

Novice.—1: Personally, I never think it right to advise anyone to keep any bird—Blackbird or otherwise—out of doors all the year round, no matter what weather, in an ordinary cage. During very severe frost and keen winds the bird could hardly help but suffer, and you would have the utmost difficulty in keeping up an unfrozen supply of water. You ought certainly to remove the Blackie to a cold room indoors during unfavourable weather. Nine inches from front to back is smaller than I like for the stock cage of birds of this kind. 2: During very cold weather a little finely-scraped or minced suet, or cooked fat of beef or mutton, mixed amongst the stock food, is an excellent thing for softbills kept in cold rooms. 3: Have heard Linnets give a kind of "squeak" when nervous at the presence of human beings. Is this what you mean? There cannot be anything the matter with the bird if it is singing freely, and you will be well advised if you let its stomach alone. It may be a little fat, but that is much better than to have it thin—one soon knows to it unpleasantly then.

A Dunlin in an Aviary.

River.—You would have little difficulty in keeping a Dunlin in a suitable outdoor aviary, and I believe you could show such a bird with some hope of getting among the prizes—anyway, a Redshank has recently been seen in the prize list, and Sandpipers and other small Waders are not unknown on the show bench. It will certainly be well to have a good-sized shallow pan (or pool) of water in the aviary. With a little care and thought you could doubtless easily arrange a sandy, shingly "beach" round the sides; a grass-plot, or run, is also a very desirable acquisition where it can be compassed. A second-hand sink, for one thing, makes an admirable miniature "lake" for an outdoor aviary, and it is usually but a small expense to run a pipe from it, underground, to the outside, for flushing and cleansing purposes. The stock food would have to be a good game-meal (without grit), or a dog-food containing meat-meal (such as Melox, and the like), made into a crumbly mass with a little hot water. You could mix in suitable finely-minced table scraps now and again. I have lately heard of a few Waders which thrive admirably on the morning mash given by their owner to his poultry. You would probably have to get the bird on to this food by mixing with it small garden worms, red worms, marsh worms, etc., while gentles, straw worms, snails of sorts, and any such small life found around streams should be given in season. You would soon get to know what was appreciated.

Linnet not Moulting.

J. McC.—The possibility is you have made the bird ill by your persistent attempts to get it to moult. I don't think you need have worried over its failure to cast its feathers so long as it kept well and on song. No one can fathom why it is some birds moult all right and others fail to moult at all, although kept under precisely the same conditions; the philosophic (perhaps I might say sensible) fancier accepts it as one of the "hard lines" incidental to the hobby, and hopes for better luck next time. To force a moult, the way I favour most is to wait until a spell of real cold weather has set in, and to then remove the bird to a warm room, judiciously covering up its cage. It is very seldom this fails. There is always some risk attached to throwing birds into moult, however—a risk of losing them in its course.

Food for Siskins and Russian Goldfinches.

W.H.A.—A good stock mixture for Siskins would be: Canary and teazle two pints each, summer rape and charlock half a pint each, linseed a quarter pint. This should be varied with feeds (in a finger drawer, say) of hemp, maw, niger and wild seed mixture, while many become fond of a few cracked sunflower seeds. A good stock mixture for a Russian (or Siberian) Goldfinch, when newly imported, would be: Hemp, niger and teazle one pint each, Canary half a pint, linseed a quarter pint; with just a light sprinkle of summer rape, if you like. A feed of cracked sunflower seed should be offered daily, and as the bird gets on to it, the niger in the stock mixture should be gradually lessened. Maw seed is also relished, and very good for a tit-bit. Russian Goldies relish the same wild foods as our English Finch, viz., thistle, teazle and hard heads, dandelion, groundsel, etc. Many also get very fond of an occasional mealworm, once they have been induced to taste of them.

Loss of a Siberian Goldie.

Avis.—What a very clear account of the trouble you give—would all querists were such models in this respect. You did not feed your bird properly in the first place (see reply to "W.H.A." this week) and in the second place you made a fatal mistake in making his poor diet poorer still as soon as he showed signs of being out of sorts. Fancy feeding a sick Goldie, one "going light," on Canary and rape seeds—enough to make him drop off the perch without further ado! This will answer question 1. No. 2. For three days you should have dissolved as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Also have given niger and maw seeds ad libitum, have cracked his hemp if necessary, and have also given cracked sunflower. 3. No difference, except to feed him generously, and provide plenty of thistle and hard heads, seeding groundsel, etc. Keep in a good large cage when moulting. 4. If you use a double breeding cage (the most useful and practical type) the feeding difficulty becomes at once non-existent. When breeding, stimulating seeds have no harmful effect on hen Canaries.

Too Many Questions.

H. Clark.—It would take a column to answer your six questions fully; two or three at a time are supposed to be the limit. 1. Old Blackbirds' nests are a boon to the Hybrid breeder. Go out and get a few when the first "round" of young Blackies have flown, and tear them to pieces for the use of your Bullfinch, etc. hens. Old Greenfinch and Linnet nests are equally useful (many other kinds, too), but are not, of course, to be had so nice and early in the year. A bag of prepared nesting material (supplied by all bird and seed dealers) should also be given the birds. Many hen Britishers when kept in confinement like to line up and lay their eggs in a Thrush or Blackbirds old nest. 2. Egg-food, or a high-grade insectivorous mixture (to offer both is the best) with the usual seeds, and an unlimited supply of fresh seeding chickweed, shepherd's purse, groundsel and the like. 3. See another reply this week. 4. Bullfinches are largely bud and fruit eaters in a state of nature, and should be given buds off fruit trees and bushes, hawthorn hedges, etc., also berries (black, privet,, etc.) in season. A good stock seed mixture would be: Canary and teazle two pints each, summer rape, charlock and linseed, half a pint each. Vary with cracked sunflower, hemp, maw, niger, etc.; shepherd's purse, chickweed, groundsel, etc. thistle and hardheads in season. 5. Get the bird used to eating a little soft food, and then mix the colour food with this, and give during the moult. 6. Blue Tits are not good livers in captivity; they have a nasty habit of "going light" and dying, no matter how well fed. The usual soft food mixture used for small insectivorous birds must be given them, together with a plentiful supply of mealworms, well-scoured gentles and other live food as in season.

Larks and an Aviary.

A Sawer.—Your converted rabbit hutch aviary (I hope you have thoroughly disinfected and distempered it out) would hold 12 to 18 small birds in the ordinary course of things. For breeding, three hen Canaries and three hen Bullies, with two each cock Goldfinches, Linnets and Redpolls, and one Greenfinch would be almost more than enough. If you really feed your Larks on the same seed mixture as you give your Bullies, Redpolls, etc., there is not the slightest cause for wonder in the fact that they do not sing. You are rather lucky they live. In last week's issue I told a querist how to feed Larks, and if you follow the advice given him, I fancy you will soon have a different story to tell as to the birds' vocal efforts. It seems an extraordinary thing to give Finches "Chick Food" (small grain mixture)—even more so than to give it to Larks. If you want the Editor to write the advertiser you mention, you should comply with rule 8 at the head of these query pages.

Some Muling Crosses.

J.W.—By far the best cross you could try for would be the Siskin-Bullfinch, mating your cock Siskin with a cobby Bullie hen of suitable size, and good in colour. Other crosses you could try would be with either a hen Goldfinch, Linnet, Greenfinch, Redpoll or Twite. Your Norwich Cinnamons, seeing they are so good in colour and size, should be real good mating hens. To get cinnamon Mules, however, you should mate a cock cinnamon Canary with the hen British bird. Big, good-coloured jonque cinnamon hens are grand birds for breeding any kind of dark Mules from, but dark Linnet Mules in particular. Please to hear you find CAGE BIRDS so helpful, and I hope you have good luck in your attempts at Mule breeding.

Treatment of Linnets.

J.W.—A good seed mixture for Linnets is: Canary three pints, teazle two pints, summer rape, charlock and linseed one pint each. A feed of hemp, maw, niger and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little greenfood, especially rape seedlings, in the winter, and ripe seeding, shepherd's purse, chickweed, plantain and groundsel freely in the summer. When newly caught, cracked hemp (fresh made each day) and maw seed should be freely given, with some niger as well; likewise a pan of soaked rape (dabbed as dry as possible in a cloth) should also be provided. Many good makers put up a special Linnet (or Finch) mixture in packets, and a feed of this occasionally makes an acceptable variation from the ordinary stock mixture.

Brevities.

Seed from Thrashing Machine (Northumbrian).—The sample of wild seed you send is a good one in its way, but lacks variety, being mostly composed of "bird-rapes," therefore most suitable for Linnets, Greenfinches, Twites, and Redpolls. I question whether it would be worth while selling retail, but some wholesale (or large) seller of bird seeds might make you an offer for a quantity.

Capacity of Aviary (J. F. R. Eales White).—I am continually having to tell my correspondents that it is useless to send the heighth and length of an aviary, and ask how many birds it will hold. It is from the length (frontage) and depth from front to back that the holding capacity is gauged—the height has very little to do with it. A rough guide is one small bird (size of Chaffinch) to each square foot of floor space. If you take the Finch and Bunting groups and get a true pair of each species, you will have a collection at once varied, interesting and beautiful, and one that would winter out-doors in safety.

Mule Chaffinch (Payn).—From the detailed particulars you supply it seems evident some constitutional trouble is at the root of the sad feather condition of the bird. If the Chaffinch belonged to me, I should at once put it out of its misery; I can't see any object in letting it linger on. If you want to try a "remedy" then get an ounce of citrate of iron and quinine crystals from a chemist, and for a fortnight dissolve fresh daily as much as will lie on a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Give some cracked sunflower seed to eat. If any improvement, continue treatment, of course.

Linnet "Reeling" (J.R.).—You mean, I presume, that the bird is a "twirler," as fanciers term it. But this, I think, is due to the uncleanliness of your bird. In short, you have got hold of an "unkind" bird (its mad biting at the wires shows this) and until you get him steady the habit will continue. As you have had the Linnet since last Whitsuntide, you have a tough job on hand. You bought the bird too late in the year. My candid advice is to let it go, and buy another.

Linnets Going Wrong (New Reader).—Your feeding has not been correct; see another reply this week. Give a course of gentle saline medicine (sulphate of soda) as soon as you observe one looking dull and "thick," with plenty of maw seed, also.

Mixed Pickles (A Wetonian).—A Greenfinch-Hawfinch Hybrid has never been seen yet, but as your two birds seem so chummy, you may be destined to achieve fame by producing one for us. Good luck attend the attempt, say I, if you make it. The cock Chaffinch has (roughly speaking) a red breast, blue head, green rump, and a mixture of bright colours in the wings; the hen is ashy-grey (mouse colour) all over. So the sexing is very easy. The sexing of Greenfinches was dealt with in last week's answers.

Jay Losing Feathers (A. G. H.).—As you say he has not yet moulted, I should say he is just starting a late moult. You need not be alarmed, for doubtless he will go through without any ill-effect. The fault that he keeps so lively, and talks, is most promising. Every second day, stir a teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food into his drinking water. Don't expose to severe weather, of course, and keep out of all cold draughts. The latter is important. Let him have a raw egg occasionally.

Cage for Goldfinch (W.L.).—Write to any of the cage-makers advertising in our columns for a proper Finch stock cage—box pattern, with inside food trough and two perches on a level with same, and doors at front and side. They will know the pattern; it is about 14 to 16 inches long, by 10 by 8. For feeding, see another reply this week. The nervousness is due to the all-wire cage, a most unsuitable pattern.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

The Treatment of a Grey Parrot.

"Carolus."—You must not let the bird of course starve or suffer from want of food, but try removing the seed hoppers overnight and then the first thing in the morning only put the mixture in which I advised in my previous reply, an hour later, supplying it with some maize. Quite apart from this, keep two seed hoppers in its cage, one for the mixture and one for the maize, and when you find it eating freely of both, which it ultimately will do, let the maize form one part of the seed mixture. Re the water, as soon as you find the bird does not drink to excess, the water can be left in cage, two or three weeks should accustom the bird to it, and it will then take it only as nature demands. The danger with water is, that a bird which has been deprived of it for a time, takes it to excess at first if it has continuous access to same.

The Taming of a Grey Parrot.

A.P.—The only method is gentleness and kindness; as a rule, they soon learn to know the one that ministers to their needs. Be as quiet and steady as possible for a time while attending to it, and avoid (either yourself or members of your household) rushing hastily by its cage; the growling and screaming you speak of is mostly caused by fear, which you must combat as suggested above. If you make a cover to fit its cage, but there must be an opening left in top of same for ventilation, and put this over whenever it is very noisy, I think you will soon find a more satisfactory state of affairs. However, I must warn you, the cover must be quietly and gently put over the cage; to do this hastily, you would find the "remedy worse than the disease." On the other, quietly and gently carried out, the bird soon learns its meaning, and it is usually very effective.

The Pretty Grey Singing Finch.

"Bevanel."—(1). The Grey Singing Finch makes an ideal cage bird; it is only plainly clad, mostly in brown and grey-browns of various shades, but nevertheless a very pretty and neat little bird. Whatever it lacks as to showy plumage, is made up for by its beautiful song. You will not find it at all a nervous bird, but all new purchases have to get used to their new quarters and owners. Once this is over, you will find him an engaging and merry little fellow; in the meantime be quiet and steady in your movements when attending to it or passing in the proximity of its cage. Ordinary quiet passing by its cage would not cause it any alarm, and even if there are children running quickly past, though this at first might scare it, it would soon become accustomed to same. (2). Yes, a cage which would keep a Canary in, would answer also for this, but you must not keep it, where the wind can blow through it, or the little fellow be in a draught, or he will soon "shuffle off." A sleeping box is not necessary. There would be a good prospect of its breeding in a roomy box cage, either with its own mate, a Green Singing Finch, or a Canary.

Treating a Grey Parrot.

W.P.C.—Diet your bird as under, do not stint the ripe fruit, and let it have as much cuttlefish as it will eat; you can also let it have plain biscuit, raw carrot, boiled potato and nuts (shelled walnuts are best). Its staple diet must be a dry seed mixture of Canary oats, wheat, dari, small maize and sunflower seeds. Do not give any slops, table scraps or any kind of animal food. Note, you must stop the tea at once, and do not leave its water in the cage, but let it have a drink two or three times a day; you must not withhold water altogether. For one day only put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in its drinking water, letting it have only this to drink for that day; follow this by well colouring the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food for the next month or longer. Also slightly moisten a piece of plain biscuit and dust it with prepared chalk (from a chemists), two or three applications should suffice. If the looseness, etc. does not yield to this treatment in a week or ten days, you had better write again, as it may possibly be the precursor of some serious malady.

An Indisposed Blue-fronted Amazon.

Johnstone.—You are, I conclude, taking special precautions against draught. Spray the bird's nostrils or dab them with a camel hair brush, with diluted glyco-thymoline; if you use a brush, it must be well cleansed after each occasion and a fresh portion of the solution used each time—twice daily would not be too often to treat it—it will do no harm if a little is swallowed. Get the following mixture from your chemist: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts, one teaspoonful of the mixture in the bird's drinking water daily, for the week or ten day's should give relief. Follow this by a course of Parrish's chemical food, and provide against, as far as possible, sudden changes of temperature.

Some Parrakeets for an Aviary

Grimston.—(1). In addition to those you have at present, you would find many colours, Whitecared Conures, Blue-crowned Barnard's, Stanley and Meally Ito illa Parrakeets; the three latter species are more uncommon and costly than the others. It must be noted that there is a great deal of individualism in Parrakeets, and the mixture should not be too varied unless they have ample space in which to disport themselves; also a strict watch should be kept on each species when breeding time comes round, as many species become absolutely vicious during this period. (2). A good supply of old mortar rubbish, crushed egg shells, and cuttlefish are about the best preventatives of egg binding that I know and the precaution not to let a bird breed unless it is at "high water mark" as to health and condition. I do not think the Cockatiels and Budgerigars, though playing about the nest boxes and husks, will commence at present. If they do remove all husks and nest boxes till April. (3). The only means I can suggest is to keep a look out and write to the various second-hand booksellers. The cost of the book new is £2.

A Nameless Bird.

"Pete."—The following reply has come to hand from my friend in France:—"I regret I am unable to identify the bird described on the paper. I have asked a local bird-dealer here and he cannot assist. Three kinds of 'Chaffinches' are known in France—the ordinary, le Pinson, the Bramble, le Pinson des Ardennes, and the Snow, le Pinson Nivorolle. The last is found in quantities in the Southern Alpes, consequently within easy reach of Marseilles dealers. This may be the bird in question, and would explain the 'hundreds' which are on sale in that town. Did the man who sold it give its name, if only local? It is evidently a European bird and not rare, if to be had in such quantities. As to its song being equal to the Nightingale's, this is probably doubtful, and the statement must be swallowed with the proverbial grain of salt." To settle the matter definitely; did the dealer suggest or give any local name? If not, I should suggest dropping him a line and putting the definite question to him, though it appears pretty conclusive that you have one of the three species given above, most probably the last. There appears no doubt but that it is a European bird as I suspected at first.

Eupatorian Parrakeets and Mynahs.

E.F.G.—(1). Eupatorian Parrakeets are very similar to the Common Ring-necks, require much the same treatment, and once over the hardships of importation are fairly hardy and enduring. Like the Ring-necks they are rather noisy, but when properly tamed not objectionably so. (2). Mynahs make good pets, the only objection to keeping them indoors is that being large birds, their cages require to be roomy. A lot of attention is also necessary to keep them sweet. Many individuals make most excellent talkers and mimics; again others do little but whistle, but if pains be taken with them the Hill Mynahs, the large bird of a glossy black colour, with deep, yellow bill, legs and feet, have the best capacity for speech.

The Breeding of Budgerigars.

J. Brooks.—It is a very simple matter breeding these beautiful if common birds, providing you do not keep them in too confined quarters. As regards crossing the two varieties, this is simple enough; get say 2 green hens, and 2 yellow cocks, and turn them into your aviary together to make up as they choose. Or if you want some pure birds get a pair of greens or yellows as the case may be, and also odd birds of each colour and leave them to choose their own partners. Note, however you cross these birds, the major part of their progeny will throw back to the original stock and be to all intents and purposes pure greens. Canary, millet, oats, green-food, cuttlefish and grit, will suffice to keep them in health and condition. Supply at least double the number of husks as you have pairs of birds.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Crestbred Hen (T. B. Grey).—Chronic softening of liver, ending with rupture of blood-vessel of that organ—apoplexy.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

What Kind of Norwich? (A Member of the S.P.C.).—We have had to delete part of your letter. The name of the exhibitor in question was brought into the matter by another, and it seems somewhat hard that he should be taken to task because of this.

A Mule Breeding (P. Rorke).—We thank you for your kindness in sending this item, but the only Mules we think our readers interested in are feathered ones, and not the four-footed kind. Still, it is well to know that Mules of the equine persuasion have been known to breed in their turn.

An Approval Transaction (Goldfinch).—On the facts you put before us, it is clear you are entitled to the return of your money. There was no fault on your side; on the contrary, you kindly exceeded your obligations.

Memos (M. P. B.).—We do not quote price per dozen; this would be impracticable. We supply printed memos, worded as desired, and with a block of any variety of Canary, etc., at 2s. for 250, 2s. 6d. for 500. See page 562 last week's issue.

Ailing Birds (Edward Wheeler).—We are in complete sympathy with all you have to say, yet we think you must have overlooked Rule 7, under heading "Questions and Answers," which deals expressly with the case of ailing birds. Queries have to be sent along to our Specialists, and they, of course, require some small return for the time, etc., involved in replying. No fee in connection with questions answered is charged by, or goes into the coffers of this paper. We trust this answers your letter, though we are not exactly clear what it is you are driving at.

Singing Contest (John Mason).—Your letter unfortunately came to hand too late to be dealt with in our issue of last week.

Report (T. Duncan).—We are just as mystified as yourself about this report, but will make enquiries. It only reached this office late last week. We have to express our regret that such delay should have taken place.

An Address (T. Smith).—You would probably get what you require from Messrs. Crockett and Son, 7a, Princes-st., Cavendish-square, London, W.

CITY AND COUNTY OF PERTH O.S.

The annual meeting was held on 23rd December. The balance sheet and auditors' report were read and approved. The Secretary reported that all prize money had been paid. The date of next open show was fixed for 21st November, 1908, and the Club show for October 24th, 1908. The office bearers were then elected as follows:—President, Mr. David Brown; vice-president, Mr. Jas. Dougall; Treasurer, Mr. Alex. Borrie; auditors, Messrs. Forrest and Bolt; Secretary, Mr. James Kerr, 5, St. Catherine's Road. One new member was proposed. The next meeting was fixed for February 3rd.—JAMES KERR, Secretary.

BORDER COUNTIES N. AND C.C.

The competition for the club's special prizes was drawn to a close for the season at the Gateshead Show, and the following is a list of the winners for the season:—1, O. Grey, 151 points; R. Rowell, 110; A. Brown, 95; A. G. Cameron, 53; A. Hodgson, 36; H. Seeley, 32; Stanger and Herdman, 30; Lackey, 13; T. Floyd, 12; R. S. Bewick, 10; Dr. O. Neal, 7; A. Hay, 5; W. Miller, 2. Thus Grey, Rowell, and Brown take the medals for 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, most points. Grey also takes the bowl with 76 points, A. Brown running up with 69. Grey lost several points in bowl contest by not nominating his birds at Shields Show. Grey also takes Sandiford's Cup with 140 points, Rowell running up with 110. Hodgson takes the novice gold medal, while Dr. O. Neal takes the medal presented by Mr. A. Brown to the novice taking 2nd most points. It is disappointing to see so few novices competing for these two medals. If no objections be made to above winners within a fortnight, prizes will be forwarded to the winners.—ANTHONY HAY, Secretary.

CREWE O.S.

A very successful tea and smoking concert took place at the headquarters, Nag's Head, on December 30th. A splendid repast was provided by the worthy hostess, Mrs. J. Phillips, and after full justice had been done to the spread, a most enjoyable evening was spent, Mr. J. W. Lawton presiding. During an interval the host, Mr. J. Phillips, kindly made the presentation of medals to the successful members in the competition for the same. Mr. Phillips spoke a few words of encouragement to each, and hoped they would be successful on future occasions. The following gentlemen were the winners of medals:—Messrs. J. Crimes, gold medal and gold centre medal; S. Potts, gold centre medal and novice medal; T. Hancock, gold medal and novice medal; W. Bowker, silver medal; J. C. Heaton, silver medal; Bert. Bettley, silver medal. Mr. J. C. Heaton proposed a hearty vote of thanks to our host and hostess for the splendid tea they had provided, and this was responded to with musical honours. The chairman, Mr. J. W. Lawton, in a few words, said he was pleased to say the society would start the New Year with a balance on the right side. The following gentlemen contributed to the evening's enjoyment with songs, duets, etc.: Messrs. Glover, Mullock, Challinor, Chesworth, Lawton, Bettley, and others.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting at headquarters, on Dec. 23rd. Dr. W. A. Rowntree and F. Eaton were elected members and Mr. A. Head was nominated. Last year's schedule of pair show was adopted for this year's show taking place on January 25th (not 24th as has erroneously stated), and Messrs. Robson and J. S. Clarke were elected to be submitted to vote as judges. Notices of alteration of rules were as follows:—By Mr. A. W. Curtis: "That judges for the annual show shall be nominated at the annual general meeting." By Mr. J. Pooley: Add to Rule 13, "No judge shall be allowed to judge the annual show two years in succession; further, if a person judges the pair show, he cannot judge the young bird show." By Mr. V. Wynn: Add to show, Rule 9, at the end: "Points to count as follows: 1st 7; 2nd, 5; 3rd, 4; vhc, 3; hc, 2; c, 1; purchased, selling, and gift classes excluded." Also the new definition of a novice as passed by the delegates representing the London Societies. All the existing officials were returned unopposed for 1908, with the exception of the members of the Council, the candidates being as follows: Messrs. Curtis, H. Davis, Easterling, Hart, Lazarus, H. Offord, Pooley, Rennie, Prance, W. Shepherd, Vickery, Elgar, Morrison, Burton, Rouse, Sanders, Kelly, Wyse, Curry, P. G. Cooper, Pullinger, and Page. Subject to confirmation at the general meeting, Miss Rose Shepherd and E. C. Offord were elected scrutineers. For defraying the cost of filling in the diplomas, won at the recent annual show, Mr. H. W. Dickinson was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks, after which the Chairman presented them to the winning members.—VICTOR WYNN, Hon. Sec.

CITY OF GLASGOW O.A.

The half-yearly general meeting was held in Glasgow on December 21st, Mr. John Young in the chair. In submitting the balance-sheet for adoption, he commented on the most satisfactory results it showed, and expressed the opinion that we were the only society in Scotland that could show such a large balance on the right side. He invited the meeting to criticise the various items in the report, but only one question was asked, and the balance-sheet was passed unanimously. In calling for the election of office-bearers, he said, in regard to the position of president, he held that the honours should go round, and he asked the meeting to propose another gentleman for the position. After the surprise of Mr. Young's decision was got over, the names of Mr. Andrew Jardine and Mr. T. Thomson were proposed, but Mr. Thomson declined to stand, as he had held the honour before, and Mr. Jardine had not. Mr. Jardine was then unanimously appointed president. Mr. D. Black was appointed vice-president. The election of secretaries was next gone into, and the meeting assumed at once to elect the present secretaries. Their remuneration was discussed, and a vote was taken on a suggestion of an increase of £2 and £4 each, and it was carried by a small majority that the advance be £2 each. The secretaries are Mr. Alex. Macdonald and Mr. Andrew Muir. The election of auditors and committee then took place. Mr. Young then referred to the case of the exhibitor who had his bird stolen at our recent show, and thought something should be done to mark our sympathy with him in his loss. After a good deal of discussion as to the course to be taken, it was decided to grant an honorarium of £3, while not admitting liability in any sense. On the question of altering the date of our show somewhat later, it was decided to let it remain as it is. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought a most harmonious meeting to close.

L. AND L.F.A.

The following is a list of the three highest for cup competition. LANCASHIRES: J. Garner, 64 points; J. Oldham, 58 point; J. Vickers, 40 points. LIZARDS: J. Dearnaley, 82 points; Wm. Lawton, 81 points; J. Hampshire, 74 points. Next show, Crystal Palace. Mr. S. R. Compston judge. Members are requested to send as many entries as possible.—H. OLIVER, Sec.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE RARE REDPOLL-BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR,—Many have no doubt observed that at last, after many reverses, I have succeeded in rearing a male bird of this much talked of rare cross. Never before, I should say has so much been in print regarding this bird, and never before have so many endeavoured to produce it. Yet not many have seen the light of day. Only two have been heard of on the show bench this season. It is said in one issue that it is considered by some almost impossible, and a later issue calls it the most beautiful of all Hybrids and the two specimens reared by Mr. Dixon appeared on front cover of CAGE BIRDS,and again on the grand coloured plate recently, showing the male and female. Yet the grand bird I have exhibited many times, and now in grand form, is placed behind the commoner crosses—birds we see at the shows every year, such as Goldfinch-Bullfinch, Linnet-Bullfinch, etc. The report reads, "wants another moult," but if we must moult them another year with so many difficulties to surmount, where is the encouragement to persevere for such uncertainties? As is well-known, this department of the Fancy requires a lot of time, great patience and perseverance; yet at many shows we have to contend with poor classification, incompetent judges, and very often the merits of the exhibitor are judged instead of the merits of the exhibit.

CHAS. J. WARD.

SCOTTISH PLAINHEAD CLUB MATTERS.

SIR,—You were good enough to publish a letter I sent in answer to Mr. Aitchison's charge against me. In his answer in last week's CAGE BIRDS, he admits he has made a mistake, and makes what he calls an apology. But at the same time he says he is correct in what he states in face of the fact that Mr. Hector says no such conditions were attached to the contest. I wish to remind Mr. A. that Mr. Hector, more than any Scotsman arranged matters about contest. Had it not been for him, we would never have had the pleasure of seeing the contest. In face of the fact published in CAGE BIRDS, that such a proposed rule was brought forward at Manchester on October 26th, and confirmed at Preston in December 1906, no amount of contradiction on his part can alter those facts. All honour is due to Mr. Mackie and the officials of Scottish Plainhead Club for arranging the two previous contests, which both took place at Scottish National. What is more, had there been less letter writing to members by several members of the Scottish National, I can say, without fear of contradiction, the contest would have taken place at Scottish National last year. I wish to warn Mr. A., and all whom it may concern, that the backbone of the members of the Scottish Plainhead Club will not be dictated to as to how they should vote. As a lover of freedom, I, for one, decline to be bullied into anything against my will. Those who voted as they did in 1906, did so to show that they had a mind of their own. I wish also to say, I did not vote for Kelso. As to the assertions about minutes, Mr. A. states that no minutes are entered in a minute book from 1905 to 1906, which is equal to saying that no minutes were taken. It does not show much intelligence on the part of the Committee or the members who attended the annual general meeting, which includes Mr. A. Just fancy members attending committee meetings and getting no minutes read; the thing is so ridiculous that it requires no contradiction from me. I could retaliate with cheap sneers, the same as he has done, but two blacks won't make a white. I never professed to be anything but a humble working man. When I took the office of secretaryship, I made no pretensions to being a "Writer to the Signet." Those who were associated with me were genuine fanciers and of sterling quality, and whom you could depend upon, and with no ambition but to bring success; we were rewarded as soon as our position was gained; what was the result? Some, who knew as much about shows as the Wellington statue, came in and knew better than any other people. He now wishes to have the control of the Scottish Plainhead Club. I hold enough letters from members of the S.P.C., even from some of Mr. A.'s supposed friends to know that I have the full confidence of the members, and I can challenge him to prove anything unworthy against me in the law courts. The Press is no place to wash dirty linen in, and, if he has any more to wash, I decline to assist him. He has made serious charges against me and against the Scottish Plainhead Club, and I would have taken action against him before this had I not been prompted by a strong desire to have the truth told to readers of CAGE BIRDS. There is such a sense of fair play amongst the exhibiting fanciers, that I have every confidence of getting justice. Mr. A. is quite right; the show was past before he penned a line, at least before it appeared in CAGE BIRDS, but the circular was in his hand previous to the show, which makes all the difference. As to his name not appearing on the list of members, he knows the reason why. He was not a member, and he had no right to be there. Did he send any subscription in 1906? He did not. The members of the Plainhead Club are quite able to manage their own affairs, and will soon get rid of me when they wish. We hold an annual general meeting, which is open to Mr. A., where he can have his say; everything I have done has been open and above board. I have nothing to be ashamed of. There is one thing certain, Mr. A. will not get his own way without the consent of the members. He will be somewhat disappointed to know that all the old members rejoined with the exception of two members who were a double membership; those two gentlemen will be very pleased to tell him why they did not become members this year. Now about Mr. A.'s sneer re what he terms fleeting sort of members. He can appoint (with the consent of the committee) any two members he wishes to examine the voting papers, and it will surprise him to know that out of the 15 votes the Scottish National received, six of them were "fleeting members." I am very pleased he has referred to the Bills at Glasgow and West of Scotland Show, as it gives me an opportunity to explode another of the supposed actions against the Scottish National. Mr. A. is very hard up for grievances. For his information, I wish to say that the sole right of advertising inside of Hall, belonged to me. I paid rent for it. I was not aware that any bills for any show were put up in the hall, until the Saturday morning when, having a look round I saw that several bills belonging to S.N. had been put up. I also made it my business to find out if permission had been asked from the President, secretary or treasurer, to put up the same. I at once took them down, and informed Mr. Cochrane and several members of the show what I had done, as I did not wish any misunderstanding. I wish to say this; had Mr. Winter asked permission from the President of the Society, I should not have minded had they put them in every part of the hall. I acted on the principle of "if a privilege is not worth asking, it is not worth having." The bills were doing no harm, but people can't just do as they like. I wish, in conclusion, to say I shall not rest content until I get at the bottom of this attack on my name and character. If Mr. A. has not one to protect, poor as I may be, I am going to fight for mine. I shall not sell my independence to him or to any other man. Any more, including the former letters which have appeared in CAGE BIRDS, will be dealt with by my solicitors. I could easily have answered Mr. A.'s letter before this.

D. SMITH, Secretary.

RARE-FEATHERED BIRDS AND THE SHOWS.

SIR,—Considering Judge Weston and the Gateshead Committee grossly exceeded their duty in disqualifying my hen Greenfinch, I crave sufficient space in your valuable paper to insert this letter, so as to bring, if possible, to a satisfactory and definite settlement, one of the most important questions that the Fancy has had to deal with for some time, viz: Should rare-feathered birds be debarred from competition at shows, not having a special class for them? As a fancier with a life-long experience, as a breeder, exhibitor and judge of cage birds, I hold, according to the wording of Gateshead schedule, I was quite justified in entering my Greenfinch, which is only a little lighter in colour than the usual, and carries not one feather which goes to mark an Albino. And up to the present no specialist judge has moved me from the opinion I hold, that Albinos or rare-feathered birds are eligible for competition. That these birds are rare and valuable, and afford counter attraction at any show is an admitted fact, but it is hard lines for the owners of them to have them disqualified at some shows, while at others, under different judges and Committees, the same birds are allowed to compete, and win prizes, although the schedules for both shows may read the same. This bird of mine has been shown only in four classes, as follows: A.O.V. British Small, 1st prize, A.O.V. British Bird, 1st, A.O.V. British Small, 4th prize, and at Gateshead, disqualified; which I maintain is an unjust action towards the handsomest British bird that entered the show door. To think that these handsome birds are excluded from over 95 per cent. of the shows, that is, if Gateshead judging is correct, is, I say, unreasonable, and makes the birds absolutely of no value. And, as many owners of these birds are afraid to send their birds out, lest they should meet with the same treatment as myself, I do suggest for the benefit and guidance of all fanciers, that, as the Novice, ticked, etc. questions have had their amount of thrashing out in CAGE BIRDS, recently, the Press should take this matter up, and let us arrive at some satisfactory verdict. I should say that all judges' names that appear in last CAGE BIRDS' Annual, and 50 of the most prominent British bird exhibitors should be asked to put their "yes, or no" answer to a post card, worded, "Are you in favour of rare-feathered British birds being allowed to compete at shows not providing a special class for them?" A special adjudicator should be set apart to count the votes, the number of which should be inserted in CAGE BIRDS, with the names of the voters, so that fanciers will see how these people are inclined towards these rare birds. There is no necessity for any secret about their voting. Gateshead was under the patronage of the N.B.B. and M.C., what do they say about it? Also the C.B. Union, in whose hands the case is now. Below I put a few questions to Mr. Weston, in a courteous and friendly manner, which I hope he will see his way clear to answer in the next issue of your valuable paper:—

1. What clause or paragraph in Gateshead's schedule leads you to believe that a Greenfinch should be disqualified?

2. If in wrong class, what was its right one?

3. Do you consider it reasonable in a class scheduled Greenfinch, to award a prize to a bird artificially coloured (i.e., colour-fed), and disqualify one a little lighter or paler in colour than usual, although staged as nature produced it?

4. Have you always held the opinion that such birds should be debarred from competition at such shows?

5. If all the birds in class had been coloured the same as mine, what would you have done with the lot?

6. If, in judging a class of Blackbirds, one bird had the smallest of neck feathers "just visible" pure white, another had one pure, white feather in tail, and another a pure white tail, what would you do with these three birds if they were perfect in all other ways?

I hope you will give this letter full publicity.

ANTHONY HAY.

REPORTED LATE ARRIVAL OF EXHIBITS AT WESTMINSTER SHOW.

SIR,—At the above show I made two entries in Bullfinch Hybrid class, which, according to report of show, arrived too late for judging. This I cannot understand, as they left here, Uttoxeter, the day previous to the show at 2.46, due St. Pancras 7.40 p.m. same night. My birds duly arrived back the following Monday about 2.30, leaving St. Pancras 10 a.m. I did not have a catalogue, but was surprised on unpacking them to find both minus prize card, and not even a card notifying too late for classification, if such was the case. All I got was a card written on: Ward, two birds, basket. I wrote to Mr. Tyson, enclosing stamp addressed envelope for reply, and received a post-card saying he had written to the steward who checked them in, and Mr. Houlton's steward, and would advise immediately he heard from him. This is dated December 12th, and although I have repeated my inquiry,I have had no reply. I am, however, communicating with the Midland Railway Company, at London, and intend claiming on Railway Company, or, if duly delivered before class was judged on show officials. The judge informs me that had they not been missing at time of judging, both would have been in the first three. CHAS. J. WARD.

(The above quartette of letters had unavoidably to be held over last week, owing to the early hour we had to go to press.—EDITOR.)

BRITISH BIRDS AT KIDDERMINSTER SHOW.

SIR,—In answer to your reporter's letter, we should like to ask him if he noticed ten entries in the Hardbill class and four Softbills competing with them? If he had done his duty he would have pointed it out to the secretary, or at least have put it in his report. Perhaps he did not see No. I rule in schedule, which reads: "The committee reserve to themselves the right to refuse any entry, or to amalgamate or reduce prize-money in any classes where the entries are less than eight in number." Is it fair to us Hardbill exhibitors to have to stand down and be hedged out of our prize-money for the sake of four Softbills? I called the secretary's attention to it, and he said it was due to late entries, and told the judge to judge the Hardbills by themselves, which he did, awarding us first and second, with Hawfinch and Bullfinch respectively. Your reporter is well-known to us, and, being a British bird exhibitor himself, and a member of the Cage Bird Union, he should have reported these facts. According to Rule 9 of schedule, no one is allowed in hall during judging, let alone to receive slips from judge. Where were the stewards at the time?

MESSRS. POTTER & BRACEY.

WAXBILLS AND AVADAVATS BREEDING IN CONFINEMENT.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Sprankling's letter in your last issue, I beg to say that broods of Green Avadavats, Orange-breasted or Zebra Waxbills and Cordon Bleus were successfully reared in the Bedfordshire aviary. I am not in a position to supply details at present, but may do so in a later communication. I beg to thank him for publishing the details of his interesting success, and only wish more would give publicity to similar occurrences which take place in their aviaries. I should be pleased to correspond with Mr. Sprankling if he would kindly forward me his address.

THE RECENT LAMP DISASTERS.

SIR,—I was very sorry to read of Mr. A. C. Brotherhood's and Mrs. B. J. Monger's terrible losses, but fail to see why artificial heat is required, as I have an outdoor aviary 9ft. by 4ft. by 7ft. high containing Goldies, Linnets and Canaries, and they are hardy enough, and have had to break the ice before they could drink. The front is match-boarded 3ft. 6in. up in front, and the remainder is ½in. netting. In severe weather I put up glass shutters (as at time of writing). I should never think of putting a lamp in my aviary, in fact, I could not sleep if I went to bed knowing I had left a lamp alight. It is what the birds are used to, and artificial heat is quite needless.

C. MARTIN.

GAS AND CANARIES.

SIR,—In reference to the letters which appeared in CAGE BIRDS, signed F. Camp, re Gas and Canaries, I beg to forward you the following particulars. I have kept Canaries in our living-room, the kitchen, for about six years. The gas is fixed in the centre of the mantelpiece, and is burning full every night. My birds are hanging about eight inches from the ceiling all round the room, and one bird in particular is only about four feet from the gas. Yet, notwithstanding the conditions referred to, they are in the best of health, and in fact in breeding condition. I have bred successfully with my birds, and last season I left the gas burning through the night to enable the birds to feed, and one hen reared three nests of Mules. I think Mr. Canworth will have to look elsewhere for the true facts of his birds dying, as in my candid opinion, gas is not that death dealing fiend which it is thought to be by a great many bird fanciers. I know a number of fanciers who breed high-class Canaries under the same conditions as I, yet they make no complaints. I trust, Mr. Editor, some other fanciers will give us their opinions of that deadly but very useful article, Gas.

R. ROBINSON.

A MOST ENGAGING AND PRETTY LITTLE PET.

SIR,—I have been most interested in the article in last week's CAGE BIRDS entitled "My experiences with birds in India," and especially in reference to the Himalayan Goldfinch. A friend of mine brought one with her from India five years ago. It was a most beautiful bird, about the size of a Russian Finch, but instead of the tan colour of our British bird, it was mostly of a very light grey and only a small amount of black on the head. It was not known whether it was a cock or hen until last summer; my friend having put it into a cage with a hen Canary, it paired up at once. In time three Mules were hatched, two in the first nest and one in the second. Unfortunately this bird has just died, its last moult being too much for it. He was a most beautiful bird, very tame and always in the pink of condition. I often asked his owner why she did not put him on the show bench, but she did not seem to care to. Some years ago I had given me a pair of Green Singing-finches, the cock was the most handsome bird of its specie I have ever seen. In fact, they had won a 1st prize before I had them. I put them into a Canary-breeding cage and early in the spring the hen built a nest exactly like a Canary with cotton wool and moss. The hen laid several eggs, which were quite white, without any spots on them and very pointed at the ends. These she did not sit on long, but laid several more clutches. As she would not sit I put several of the eggs under a Canary, but they were turned out instantly every time. So I put an end to all nesting operations for that season. Next spring she again nested, but after laying one or two eggs the little hen died through egg-binding. She would only nest early in the year (February) at no other time, and being so cold this was the cause of her death. I procured another for her little mate, but she, soon dying, I did not get another. The little cock lived for some years alone and sang most sweetly. I think a cock Singing-Finch one of the most engaging and pretty little pets one can keep, and very hardy, too, but inclined to be quarrelsome with other birds.

CONSTANCE TOWNEND.

REMARKABLE BEHAVIOUR OF GOLDFINCHES.

SIR,—About four years ago Mr. H. Bargess, Cruockenoch (a beautiful quiet spot up in the Drumfriesshire hills, near Gatehouse of Fleet) obtained a couple of Goldfinches, which in a remarkably short time became very tame. The cage door and room window were left open, and every facility for their freedom permitted, which the birds took full advantage of by going out and always returning. This year the pair took a fancy for housekeeping on their account and nested outside and were known to have brought out one bird. In course of time, the family returned, frequently visiting the house of adoption, but the young bird could never be induced to enter. One day the trio mysteriously disappeared, and no more visits were made. However, after an absence of three months the male bird lately returned, but alone. He came into the house as formerly, and entered the cage, which had been left open, and he now again occupies his original home in solitary state, but evidently quite contented with his old quarters. T. LOVE.

WHAT KIND OF NORWICH HAVE WE TO BREED?

SIR,—I hope for the good of the Norwich Fancy, no one will look to Mr. Young for much enlightenment. By his letter, he requires much tuition himself. I cannot say whether Mr. Ferguson knows Norwich or not, but I hope he has always the same courage to put out what he considers a wrong one. Regarding his offer to Mr. McFarlane for his buff cock, he was told it was a good one, hence the reason he went to buy him; but, alas! Mr. McFarlane knew too much for him. Regarding the yellow cock at Palace of Scotland show; it was really a Palace show and a Palace of Justice. I cannot say anything of this bird's winnings, but I can vouch for his card that day, as he stood head and shoulders above all in his class, and gave great credit to his young breeder. The next part of the letter I will pass over, as the writer simply blows about himself and proves at the same time that he does not know a bird when he sees one. Dear "St. Mungo" and "Keutite," I hope, are not so soft as to take Mr. Young's advice as to where they should buy, as the best birds ever possessed by him were purchased and bred in Scotland. He has proven to his many friends that he knows them best after they have been placed by any of our Norwich judges. I sincerely hope Mr. Ferguson is not worried about this. I would advise him not to be, as he will soon be up at Mount Florida drinking tea, giving good counsel and pouring balm on Robert's head, he is not a bad Chappie after all. "TRUE TYPE."

SIR,—Having followed the correspondence in CAGE-BIRDS, I am amused at the Birdie men's remarks. I think "Top Knot" in your issue of the 28th, although not clearing up the case as far as the birds are concerned, has come to a very fair conclusion in the matter. I am a novice in the Fancy, as birdie men term us; but at the same time, I, along with other novices, claim to be the backbone of the Fancy—the men to whom the professionals look for their fancy prices. Although a novice where birds are concerned, I have been sharp enough to observe the show tactics. I may be wrong, and would be sorry to think it was so, but it looks as if the personal friends of the judges are about the only ones that get tickets at the shows, irrespective of the quality of exhibits, and I would suggest that no Scotch judge be allowed to judge any open Scotch show, or exclude all his followers exhibiting birds bred or sold by him. I think if this were done, there would be less disappointment and jealousy in the Fancy. D.M.

SIR,—I was much amused at reading Mr. Young's letter re the above. I would like to ask him a question. How does he manage to christen Mr. McFarlane's Buff cock a champion? Where has he met and defeated anything to style him as such?

A MEMBER OF THE S.P.C.

SIR,—Since writing my last letter to CAGE BIRDS concerning "What kind of Norwich have we to breed," I have given up keeping birds altogether, and since I have no interest in them now, there is no use in carrying on the correspondence. I wish Mr. Wallace a Happy New Year, and I trust if he is going to keep non-feds he will prosper in the way CAGE BIRDS has done. I hope CAGE BIRDS will be as prosperous in the future as in the past. SOME NEW SOCIETIES.

ALNWICK AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—A very successful meeting was held in connection with the above at the Brewers' Hotel, on Dec. 18th. Some very enthusiastic fanciers attended. Mr. A. Moir took the chair, and some good work was got through very quickly. We enrolled fourteen members, but surely there are more fanciers in the district than this. It is hoped that a good number will turn up at next meeting; fanciers and friends are kindly invited.

R. F. RENNISON, Hon. Sec.

WEST STANLEY AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—At a recent gathering of fanciers, numbering about twenty, it was decided that a Members' Society be formed at West Stanley. Further, it was resolved that a meeting be called on January 11th, at the Royal Hotel, in a room kindly lent by Mr. Messenger, the landlord. The meeting is to commence at 7 p.m. All fanciers are invited to attend. J. SNELL, sec. pro tem.

NEWPORT, MON.

SIR,—I write to inform you of a new society for Newport (Mon.) District, as Fanciers here have decided to start a Cage Bird Society. Will Fanciers who wish to become members please send name and address to to N. Barnes, 3, Redland Street, Newport, Mon.? I hope you will help us by finding a little corner in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, which I most heartily appreciate. N. BARNES.

THE CHAMPION LINNET.

SIR,—Re Mr. Allen's statement in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, as to his having the best Linnet in the World, I beg to contradict him, as we sent to the Prince Albert, in Newtown, a bird that Mr. Allen called a penny bird. He simply walked away with the match before his own judges. Notwithstanding, Mr. Allen had five birds at the match himself, he had to be content with 2nd and 3rd. I have known Mr. Allen to have seven out of a possible nine birds, and the other two did not sing, so there is no wonder at his getting more prizes than any three men as he hangs more birds than any. It is not often that the man hangs more than one bird, and it is something extraordinary if they hang two at our bird house. I could mention five or six birds that would like to sing with this so-called Champion of Mr. Allen's, but not with these judges. We will freely give £2 to any charitable Institution he wishes if his bird can do what he represents it to do. T. SUMMERS, hon. sec., King's Head, Shannon Street Bird Club.

SIR,—I see in last week's CAGE BIRDS that Mr. Clark is trying to impress upon the minds of readers that I have not got a Champion Linnet. Well, I will leave that to all readers of this paper. No true Fancier could call a bird of his description as Mr. Clark is trying to do. I have informed all Fanciers that I have retired him from all singing contests. For proof of his qualities readers should please look up last year's CAGE BIRDS, and they will see him 1st prize week after week. Mr. Clark wishes me to sing in the King's Head; well, that would be the last thing to enter my mind. No one hears me call a fellow Fanciers' birds because he his winning.

WHAT CONSTITUTES THE "BEST BIRD" IN THE SHOW?

SIR,—It was with great pleasure I read Mr. Broome's letter relating to the best bird in a show, especially referring to the Golden Pheasant at Barnet in the Cage Bird section. I never saw such a piece of judging in my life, for the Pheasant was so wild it dashed about its cage (I beg pardon, "pen," for a Duck pen was put up for its reception) until it made its head and face bleed and knocked all the feathers off round its beak trying to get out. I took the judge to task about it after the judging was over, and asked him if in the whole course of his life (and I guess he is twice as old as I) he had even seen one in a fancier's bird-room or a lady's drawing room in a cage. He had to admit that it was not really a cage bird; none the less for that it was awarded the special for the best cage bird in the show. Still, it did not get it, as our specials go to members only, and the exhibitor of the Pheasant was not a member. But it had 1st prize all the same. I think it would have done the judge good to have been about in the evening when the boys left work and came round to see what their pets had won! I believe we have one or two here that know what a Canary is, although we are only a young society, as some members have been sending out to open shows for years. I think it is quite time that something was done as regards a man's sanity and capability to judge, and I should very much like to see some of the Fur judges that take our cage birds filling up the slips that Mr. Broome refers to, as regards the points the birds gain in their respective classes. I am wondering how many points the Golden Pheasant would have gained for steadiness and perfect feather? I hope the cage bird Fancy will take the matter up and oust these so-called "cage bird judges." Could not the Cage Bird Union take the matter up, and issue a list of the judges they know are somewhere near the mark?

WILD BIRDS BREEDING IN AVIARIES.

SIR,—It would be interesting if your correspondent, Mr. J. H. Verrall, would give us particulars of the breeding of the Bearded Tit by Mr. Swailes, as mentioned in your issue of Dec. 28. Many aviarists have been partially successful with the species, but I have always understood that no one had ever reared the young to maturity, though Mr. St. Quintin saw one young bird leave the nest in his Yorkshire aviary. With regard to Mr. Sprankling's enquiry: The Cordon Bleu has been frequently bred. In 1906 I had two nests of young reared from a single pair. The Golden-breasted Waxbill was first bred, I believe, by Lady Dunleath in 1903, in Ireland. I bred two young of this species in 1905 which are still flourishing, and in the same year three young Green Avadavats. The common Avadavat, with which Mr. Sprankling has been successful, has of course often been bred. In 1904 two hen Avadavats in my aviary built a nest on the co-operation principle. Both incubated the eggs and both fed the young—two in number—which both attained maturity. W. E. TESCHEMAKER.

APPEAL FOR A FANCIER IN DISTRESS.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space to thank all those who have so kindly responded to my appeal made on December 21 on behalf of Mr. Benj. Spiers, in his sad affliction. I took him that which I received to date on Christmas Eve. What a glad surprise it was for them. If subscribers could only have seen him and his wife as I read the kind letters of sympathy received with the donations, or could have felt the grip of his hand after I had handed him the money! He said: "Thank them for me, Ted; if I do again get my sight"—but he could get no further, for tears of joy began to fall. Being Christmas time (and you all know what a railwayman's life is then, bed and work), I could not complete my task of acknowledgement before. I have received the following sums: E. Baker (Cowes), £1 1s.; R. P. Harpur (Stoke Newington), 5s.; Cornishman, 5s.; W. Marsh (Keston, Kent), 2s. 6d.; G. W. Saunders (Sutton, Surrey), 2s. 6d.; W. Portman (Cardigan), 2s. 6d.; J. A. CAN THE YORKSHIRE IMPROVE THE LANCASHIRE?

SIR,—While perusing your columns I read in Mr. T. C. Crawhall's lecture on the Yorkshire Canary, a paragraph where he states "he was considerably surprised to read that the Yorks itself had been used to improve the Lancashire by giving it more length of leg, and when we have that on the authority of Mr. John Robson we may be sure that there is some measure of truth in it." Allow me to point out that it is simply ridiculous to think that such a thing has ever been done to improve leg qualities in the Lancashires. There is not, in my opinion, a Lancashire breeder that would ever dream of doing such a thing, and I am sure Mr. J. R. would say the same. I believe Mr. R. mentioned it some time ago some way or other, but I really forget the exact words he used. But Mr. T. C. Crawhall may depend that neither Mr. Robson or any other Lancashire Fancier would ever advocate using Yorkshire blood in any way with the intention of improving the Lancashire variety.

ALLEGED NEGLECT OF AN EXHIBIT.

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to a letter in CAGE BIRDS of Dec. 7th, written by an exhibitor at our late show. In justice to our Committee, I beg to be allowed space to reply. We admit our system of staging and penning was not perfect, and that the Committee are not infallible. The Cage Bird section was under the charge of Mr. George Capewell, a lover of birds with thirty years' experience. The fountain of exhibit No. 342, Greenfinch, was not noticed when being staged, but the bird was, and it was fed and watered from Messrs. Hall and Capewell's fountains both days by members of the Committee. I deny incivility as inferred by Mr. Latham, and on being approached by him gave the permission and asked a Committeeman present to attend to Mr. Latham, being exceptionally busy myself. The death of the exhibit is unfortunate, and to be regretted especially seeing that Mr. Latham admits it was his first attempt at showing. Yet, in the hall he says the bird won 1st at Bromsgrove. The insulting show rule he infers applies to us, and his sneer re secretaries and management showing and winning themselves, we treat with the contempt it deserves. In concluding, I would remind him that the rule of our show (not printed but practised), is to deal fair and square with exhibitors and exhibits, irrespective of position or value, and judging from the letters received, and the reports in local papers as well as CAGE BIRDS, we succeeded in our first attempt obtaining a record local entry and gate. We have no axe to grind, yet unfortunately, four of our local show Committees have lost over £30 this year, in attempting, as fanciers, to please successful and disappointed exhibitors. I conclude with best wishes for the New Year to CAGE BIRDS and its readers. H. GRAINGER, hon. sec. of Cradley Heath Show.

ARE THEY RECORD LATE EGGS?

SIR,—As a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS, I am writing to say I think this will be a record. I have a cock Greenie and hen Canary with three eggs, now sitting, and also Canary cock and hen. Each nest has three eggs, first of each were laid Dec. 23rd, 24th, and 25th, so I'm hoping for early birds in 1908. If I'm fortunate enough to get them hatched and brought up, this will be A1 I think. They are here for anyone to see who wishes to. JOSEPH W. PARKIN, Eldon Lane, Bishop Auckland.

SIR,—Having noticed in CAGE BIRDS for a few weeks different records in egg-laying on the part of Canaries, I think my experience will beat all previous records. I have a Crestbred Norwich Canary hen; on going to the cage on Saturday morning I found she had dropped an egg in the bottom of the cage. She laid again on Sunday morning, and was on the nest again at the time of writing. Is there any reader who can beat this? G. GREATBATCH.

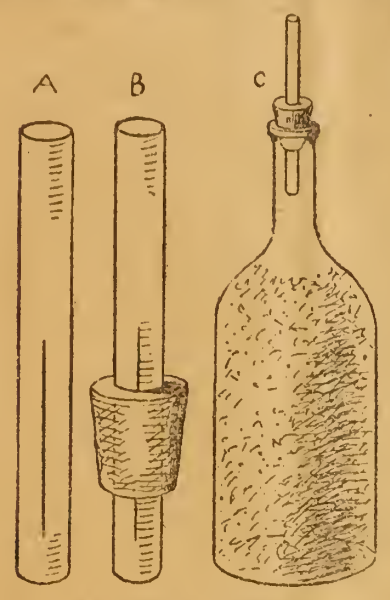
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

KEEPING SEED FREE FROM DUST.

Sent by W. Higgins, 54, North Road, Brighton.

Enclosed is a sketch of an idea of mine which keeps the seed free from dust, and out of the reach of mice. It also prevents waste when filling the seed boxes. Take a piece of half-inch compo gas piping, about 6 inches long, and cut two slots with a pocket knife about 2 inches long in one end of it. Then get a cork and bore a hole in it large enough to let the pipe go through. Put the pipe through the cork and push it into a quart bottle. The seed will flow down the pipe when the bottle is inverted. Sketches show the pipe with the slots cut in it, and the pipe in the cork, in the bottle ready for use.

A: Tube with Slots cut.
B: Tube with Cork Fitted.
C: Bottle Completed.

No. 168.

METHOD OF TAMING BRITISH BIRDS.

Sent by Williams Bros., Mason's Cottage St. Clears, Carmarthenshire.

The following idea we find very useful for taming British or other birds. Get a Norwich show cage, with fixed perches from the back to within half-an-inch of the wire front. Cut a piece of plain glass one inch longer than wire front, and the same width as wire front.

To Steady Wild Birds.

Cut a hole in the glass for the bird to get at the water tin through. Cut two thin strips of wood the same width as inside of cage, and fix one at each end of the cage to hold the glass up in its place. Afterwards put the wire front back. The glass can also be taken down to the cross-bar only (as shown in the sketch), in which case a slot can be cut in the cage sides, and this is useful for Canaries. It costs but 3d., and we have found it very handy to keep birds from the wires, having tamed two Greypates in less than a week fit for show.

How I Breed my Yorkshire Canaries.

PLAIN HINTS ON EVERY-DAY PROCEDURE.

By F. ALLEN.

First to be considered is the room. I prefer one with the window or windows facing south-east or south; then you get both plenty of sun and plenty of light. To be without sun and light means death and disease.

Next we come to cages, which should be at least 18in. by 18in. by 11in deep, with a door in the centre. I like loose wire fronts, as the cages are easily got into, harbour much less filth, and look a deal smarter. Perches should be 11-16th in. broad, and 3-16th in. thick.

The Selection of Stock Birds.

We then select the stock birds, which above all else should be sound and healthy. The cock birds should possess plenty of length, should be well up on leg, vigorous and should have a nice round head. If I am breeding for marked specimens, I prefer the markings to be on the cock side, although I have bred good marked birds off marked hens and clear cocks.

The hens should be typical, slim and lady-like, with plenty of life in them. They should show no hollowness in neck, or else probably the progeny will have the same blemish or fault.

The feather in hens is of importance, more so than in cocks. Of course, if both cock and hen are good, smart feathered birds, all the better. The tails should be well folded and compactly made, and should not hang or drop under the perch. I like hens of medium size; as a rule, if they get so big, they generally get lazy and refuse to feed their young.

The feeding should always be good sound Spanish Canary seed in hoppers twice a week; equal parts of egg and biscuit mixed together should be given, and also a little mixed seed, as follows:—Hemp, Summer or German rape, Inga, Maw and Linseed—a good spoonful per pair of birds on the opposite days to those on which you give egg food. During winter months a little ripe apple or boiled carrot should be given as a change from egg food. Always have the cage bottom covered with good sea sand and grit and a piece of cuttle fish bone between the wires.

When to Pair Young Stock.

The best time for pairing is the last week in March or the beginning of April. Always pair yellow to buff or buff to yellow; there is then plenty of time to have three nests before the moulting season commences. At this time a few dandelion leaves may be given; it will bring them on sooner and will also prevent egg-binding. A piece of old lime thrown in bottom of cage is also very good at this period.

When the birds have been put up three days a nest box or pan should be placed in the cage, with a little moss, cowhair, dried grass, etc. It should be placed at one end of cage, with edge or rim of nest level with the perch. Then the parents can feed their young off the perch. It should also be in the quietest part of the cage, at the opposite end, from the direct rays of the sun or light; then the hen keeps moving and turning the eggs over, which is essential to ensure success.

The Eggs and the Young.

After your birds have been paired up from ten to twelve days you may expect eggs. These should be taken out each morning as laid and placed in bran or Canary seed, point downwards. Then the eggs should be returned to the nest on the evening of the day the third egg is laid. The nest should be well dusted with insect powder.

The young birds may be expected on the 14th day, although some hatch earlier. On entering the room you will soon know whether there are any young or not by the "cheep," "cheep," if all is right.

Then a supply of egg food should be given the parents with which to feed their progeny. When the young ones are ten or twelve days old you may put them in a clean nest, and you can give the parents a little green food. I like dandelion as it acts as a tonic; young lettuce may also be given as a change, but I think it makes the old birds drowsy and sleepy, although some feed freely on it. I also give plenty of crushed hemp seed and soaked Canary seed. The oftener you give the egg-food, etc., the better, as it induces the hens to come out of the nests.

The Second Nest.

When the young are from 17 to 20 days old a fresh nest should be provided and put in the same place as the old one, and the nest with the young should be placed on the opposite side. As a rule, hens want to nest again when their young are about that age.

Give the hen some nesting material and a little cotton wool. I may say that since I used cotton wool not even a young one has been plucked, and some hens like their first brood's feathers to build their second nest with.

If the hen has laid when the young ones are about 23 days old, and they are hopping about, I take them out, put them in a clean cage, give them some egg-food damped, place the cock in with them, and if he won't feed them or begins to pluck them (as some cocks do), I take him out. Then I mix some egg-food very soft and place it on a small stick with a flat end on; I keep teasing the young with it by touching them under the beak till they peck at it. Once they taste they will always follow it. When they have pecked at the soft food on the stick a few times, gradually bring it nearer to the egg-pan until they peck out of it. As a rule no further trouble will occur, as once they know where the food is they never forget.

Always keep the young on soft food till they leave it themselves, and that is not long after they taste Canary seed; always keep the hopper full so that the young birds can see it. When about 5½ weeks old they will be able to crack seed for themselves, then their egg-food should only be given twice a week.

At the age of eight weeks some begin looking lumpy and sleepy; it is like a distemper they have; should one start, as a rule all in the same cage have it. The best remedy I have found is to give them a good dose of treacle in the drinking water. The next day, as a rule, they don't look like the same birds.

In breeding and rearing Canaries care should be taken to keep everything as clean as possible, and trouble the birds as little as possible. If the birds won't feed, to keep molesting them will not make them do so. Avoid all sour foods and musky seeds; give plenty of clean, fresh water and use the bath freely.

Bird Notes from Ramsay.

On October 16th, from 1.30 to 3 p.m., the sky became very dark. A storm passed over without any rain from the east, until 2.30, when a slight rain came. The clouds were very high and were travelling at a great rate. About 20 Swallows or, I should say, Martins, came with this storm, and when over the town they circled about, flying very high up in the clouds. I could not at first say whether they were Swallows or Martins, but after watching them for over an hour, they came down lower, and at last, when they had just passed over the house-tops, rain began to fall. I then could see they were Martins. These were probably young birds and had not gone with the majority to more congenial climes. I have been a very close observer of these birds for years, always booking the time they arrive and their departure, but never before have I seen any so late as the 16th of October, although I have seen a few odd ones during the first week in October. But still, this Autumn has been an exceptionally mild one, and that may account for their lateness. Whether the birds are weather prophets I will leave, for at the time I first saw these a large flock of Plovers went over from the East to the South, also about 20 wild ducks. I do not know that as a rule the migratory birds generally go with a storm or strong wind. Perhaps some of your numerous readers may have noticed this instance, and can verify my statement. I pointed them out to several, but as they do not study Nature, they merely remarked "What of that?" This year their arrival was later by a week than usual, but this year the Spring was very cold, which no doubt delayed them. After 3.30 not a Martin was to be seen anywhere. The rain continued most of the afternoon, and the weather turned very cold. No Swallows or Martins have been seen since the 16th. Some Redwings were seen here on the 17th, but only three or four. This is early for them. A few Bramblefinches have been seen feeding with the Linnets in the field. There are generally plenty of these birds about here until Christmas, when they go.—T. H. KINCH.

RUTHERGLEN.

The Rutherglen and Dis. O.A. held their first annual show in the Reehabites Hall, East King Street, 21st Dec. Office bearers: Pres., Wm. Moffat, M.A., Vice-Pres., J. J. Manson, L.D.S., F.F.S.G. (President of the West of Scotland Association). The Sec. and Treas. is Mr. F. Wilson. This is a new society, and this being their first public appearance, the turn out of birds was very creditable, there being close on 200 entries. For a start they have a large membership, some well known breeders of Borders and Norwich, etc., being included. There were 37 classes. The principal prize winners were:—Silver medal for most points, all over show, Lappin; silver tea pot, for most points, Bord. Fcy., Brownlie, also for best young bird, jelly spoons. Some very handsome donations in prizes were presented to the Society. Silver inkstand (by G. S. Munn, Esq.), was won by T. Lindsay. A clock and a silver mounted hair-brush (by Mr. Lappin) and numerous other valuable prizes were offered, including a very handsome silver teapot, the gift of "a friend." There was a large turn out of visitors, including many ladies. The staging of the birds, and the general management of the show reflects the greatest credit on the Sec. and Treas., Mr. Wilson and his assistants. One pleasing incident of the show was the presentation by the members of a valuable gift to Mr. Wilson, in recognition of his services, and the high esteem in which he is held by his fellow members. The representative of CAGE BIRDS was asked to make the presentation, which he did, in a few appropriate remarks, which were well received. Mr. Wilson, who appeared both pleased and surprised, acknowledged the kindness of his friends in a few racy remarks, thanking them heartily for their kindness. The judges were:—Canaries, Mr. Campbell, Glasgow; Brit. and For., Mr. Pettigrew. The judge's awards gave general satisfaction. The For. section was a fine turn out, Mrs. Manson with a lovely collection, being the principal winner, a well known fancier. The awards here seemed to cause a difference of opinion, but we did not see much room for complaint.

BUCKIE.

Annual show held in the Fishermens' Hall, on Dec. 25th, in ideal weather. The hall is all that could be desired for such an exhibition, beautifully lighted from both sides, very high in the roof, and free from draughts. The entry was a good one, though showing a slight decrease on last year's figures. The Canarics were staged rather too high above the other pens to enable visitors to view them with ease and comfort, and the committee would do well to find a more suitable spot in this nice hall to stage them. The entries numbered almost 200 cage birds. The committee of management are all trusted and well-known fanciers in the North, and a "crew" of harder workers would be difficult to find, consisting of ex-Provost Simpson (convener), Councillor W. Clark, Messrs. Robertson, Cuthbert, senr., Knowles, J. S. Simpson, Symon, McIntosh, Mitchell, McKenzie, Smith, Elrick, Scott, Chalmers, Philip, Booth and Son, Wright, Geddes, Esson, Fraser, Smith, Merson, S. J. Simpson and W. Stewart. The secretary and treasurer, Mr. Geo. Stewart, deserves all credit for the able manner in which he handled such an exhibition. The attendance was a large one, and we trust the show may turn out a financial success. Mr. John Lyon (Aberdeen) judged.

SCOTCH FANCY (3): 1, Shand, A1 quality, fine, stylish bird, good substance, and full of action; 2, 3, Whyte, 2nd, very shapely, rare top end, deep throughout, full in back, very free and good style; 3rd, we missed. NORWICH YELL. NAT. COL. (6): 1, Scott, typical, teeming with quality, well rounded chest, beautifully put down; 2, Hay, deep colour, good quality, nicely carried wings and tail; 3, Herd, best of quality; 4, Banks; 5, McTavish; 6, Wiseman. HEN (5): 1, Junner, thick-set hen, well rounded chest, good quality feather; 2, Cuthbert, another typical bird, grand substance and quality; 3, Wiseman, good Norwich properties; 4, Hay; 5, Banks. BUFF CK. (5): 1, Scott, in front of anything in class, runner up for Cup, very short and chubby, well rounded, very sweet quality of feather; 2, Herd, well up in size; 3, Raffaw, good head and neck; 4, Cuthbert; 5, Duncan. HEN: 1, Herd, good type and quality, closely followed by 2, Duncan, real good one for type and quality. Mr. Chalmers showed a very good green, and it would pay the fanciers in that district to go in for a few greens to put through their stock, as they are losing colour. CREST (4): 1, Cuthbert, var, wonderful size, crest of splendid shape, good droop and centre; 2, Edwards, marked wings, again a bird of wonderful size, good quality of feather, crest of neat radiation, grand droop and centre; 3, Merson, good green; 4, Murray. C.B.: 1, Scott, heavy var, nice substance, good length of feather. VAR. CK. 5): 1, Herd, yell. var, very sweet in quality and typical, good head and neck, nicely placed wings and tail; 2, McTavish buff, well up in size; 3, Glass, marked eyes and wings; 4, Wiseman; 5, Cuthbert. HEN (8): 1, Campbell, marked on saddle, grand substance, rare head and neck, good front and back, well turned out; 2, Scott, a good one, looks a youngster, will yet improve, lovely short wings and tail; 3, Glass, marked both eyes; 4, Junner; 5, Herd; 6, Hay. COL.-FED CK. (6): 1, Cup for best in show, Strachan, a buff var, of grand type and teeming with quality, fine under-colour, and meal perfectly coloured wings and tail; 2, 3, Thomson, two very sweet exhibits; 4, Herd; 5, Boyd; 6, Merson. HEN (5): 1, Strachan, yell, A1 type, best of colour, grand chest, very neat wing carriage; 2, 5, Thomson; 2nd, typical buff var, good stamp; 3, Hay, A1 quality, good type; 4, Rennie. CINN: 1, Merson, nice exhibit. HARTZ CAN: 1, Herd; 2, Rennie. A.O.V.: 1, Merson, good Yorks. cl., wonderful length and shape, finely drawn, in rare bloom. PAIR (4): 1, Cuthbert, buff var. cock and cl. yell. hen, nice balanced pair; 2, Merson, both typical, in good condition; 3, Herd, both fine buffs; 4, Chalmers. SISKIN, ETC: 1, Gifford, very pretty Siskin, in lovely bloom, and rare colour; 2, J. Merson, nice Redpoll, staged to perfection. BULLFINCHES (5): 1, 2, Watt, two outstanding exhibits, first excels in size, colour and markings; 3, Raffan, good wing bars, nice cap; 4, Kyloch; 5, Glass. GOLDFINCH (8): 1, Campbell, large Siberian, huge blaze, square cut, forward in colour, richly tanned body, A1 buttoned; 3, Todd, nice square-cut blaze, good polish and steady; 5, Raffan, lovely Britisher. LINNET, ETC. (6): 1, Campbell, Linnet, rare size and markings, turned out in nice bloom, closely followed by 2, Plenderleith, charming Twite, grand polish, nicely marked; 3, 4, Mersou; 5, Kiloh; 6, Grass. VAR. SELL. (3): 1, Merson, yell. Yorks. cl, nice shape and style, all quality; 2, Watt, clinking Bullie rare crest colour; 3, Cuthbert nice crest. GIFT: 1, Watt, 2, Chalmers. MULES: 1, Watt, Linnet-Canary, well up in size and colour; 2, Raffan, Goldie-Canary, nice size and blaze; 3, Merson; 4, Rennie. MEMBERS' (3): 1, Merson, yell. var, good size and colour, best of quality; 2, Grant; 3, Cuthbert.

WHITBURN.

The annual show took place in the Town Hall, Close upon 400 exhibits faced the judges, who were: Mr. J. F. Dewar (Norwich and Borders), and Messrs J. Kean and A. Mackay the remainder; their awards seemed to give general satisfaction. Mr. Shields won the prize for best bird in hall with a grand dark Crest of great quality. The Norwich classes, although small, contained some of the first water. Border Fancies were the outstanding feature of the show. Classes were well filled, many noted winners making their appearance. The A.O.V. class was the best of all, Mr. McWatt again scoring first with his Falkirk Cup winner. In the British section (Linnets, non-fed Greenfinches), and in the Foreign Goldfinch section quality was of the best. All over the show was a great success. The secretary, Mr. Thos. Duncan, managed everything in a businesslike manner, and is to be heartily congratulated. Mr. R. Calder (president) and Councillor Lambie, two well known fanciers, did yeoman service, as did also the following, who composed the committee:—Messrs. Wm. Duncan, Thos. Hamilton, Wm. Johnstone, C. Anderson, R. Edmonston, J. Anthony, W. Lambie, W. Livingston, P. Easton.

MANNINGHAM C.B.A.

Members' show held on Boxing Day at head quarters, Mowbray Arms. This was the third of a series of member's shows for silver challenge cup, gold and silver medals. Great enthusiasm was shown by the members, over 150 birds being staged. The exhibits, taking them all round, were of good quality. Special for best bird in show went to Messrs. Holroyds Bros. Mr. M. Broadley (Windhill), judged and he placed the birds as follows:—

SWANSEA AND DIST. C.B.A.

A 12-miles radius show was held on Boxing Day. The entries came up very strong, over 200 birds facing the judges, who seemed to handle them with the greatest care. The exhibition, under the able care of Messrs. Jenkins, Robbins, Taylor, Steins, Heal, Hammacott, Phil Jenkins, Recs. Evans, Hocking, and the energetic and indefatigable secretary, Alf. Hitching, was a distinct success, both financially and for quality. Mr. Harding Williams judged Canaries, and Mr. John Blackey the British Mules and Hybrids. The awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

TRURO.

This old-established fixture was held in the Market House on December 26th. Competition was confined to the county of Cornwall, yet some very handsome exhibits were staged, showing an appreciable increase on last year, numbers were also good, and the show generally may be voted a success. Norwich had five classes and came up remarkably well, totalling sixty-five, whilst the quality was quite in keeping with the numbers, there being a complete absence of coarseness amongst the exhibits. Cornish fanciers evidently believe in compact, silky feathered Norwich, as opposed to what some style the good big 'uns. Crests and Crestbreds made good average classes, whilst Cinnamons well maintained Cornwall's reputation for colour and quality of feather in the breed which has long been a favourite in the county. Yorkshires made quite the best display we have seen at a Cornish show, all the winners being most typical. The charmer which captivated Mr. House in the hen class was so overjoyed at winning first that "she" burst into song, and suffered the penalty of being disqualified for posing as a suffragette. Mules, although few, were very high-class. Finches are usually strong at Cornish shows, and once more came up well. Competition in all these classes was very keen. In the Variety British were staged two Owls and a Water Rail, but in the opinion of the judge, they were not cage birds and were passed. The birds were nicely staged and their wants well attended to by the committee, which was composed of Messrs. J. Pollard (chairman), W. R. Lobb (vice-chairman), A. Allen, J. Bray, T. Bennetts, A. Bluett, W. T. Eastlake, W. T. Hall, R. J. Hawken, J. Hicks, J. T. Jacob, F. Lowry, J. Moss, W. H. Murton, G. Murton, W. T. Michael, A. Nicholas, G. Sandall, C. H. Toy, E. Webb, and E. A. Woolcock. Mr. J. Tippitt, the hon. sec., was most courteous and obliging to all, and everything went as merrily as wedding bells.

Critique.

NOR. YELL. (13): 1, hc, spl, Clemence, very chubby in head and body, close and compact in his feathering, beautiful rich, level colour, and very nicely staged; 2, res, Coad, not quite so much colour, but a gem for shape and silkiness of feather; 3, Trevena, beautifully level in colour, compact and short in feather, nice chest and back; vhc, White; c, Gaved. BUFF (11): 1, res, vhc, Coad, very short and compact in body, rich quality of feather, sound deep colour, and beautifully marked; res, grand bodied bird of lovely colour, but a trifle horned in the drying; 2, Clemence, most lovely, rare shape and colour, grand quality and sheen, not so chubby in head; 3, White, splendid colour and quality of feather, hardly so deep and wide in chest; hc, Trevena; c, Gaved. TICKED YELL. (10): 1, White, very neat cap and neck marked, not a large one, but brimming over with colour and quality; 2, res, vhc, Gaved, grizzled tail, very sweet and neat, rare feather and colour, shown in the pink of condition; res, wing-marked, grand shape and colour, not so tight in feather; 3, Trevena, eye and neck ticked, capital colour and feather, hardly so short; hc, Kemp; c, Ferrell. BUFF (11): 1, vhc, spl, Rickard, eye and wing ticked, very neat and compact in shape, close in feather, rich colour, and well frosted; 2, Clemence, wing marked of grand colour and quality, not quite so short; 3, Ferrell, grizzled cap, capital shape, colour and feather, not so handy with his wings; res, Lawry, variegated, rare stamp of bird for breeding; hc, White; c, Gaved. HEN (20): 1, c. spl, Clemence, grand little buff, very short and chubby in body, neat, tight fitting jacket, nice even colour, and well mealed; 2, Menadue, sweet little yellow, lovely colour and quality of feather, neat and smart in body, and nicely shown; 3, hc, Coad, grizzled tail, grand little bird, but not put down in the same form as her owner's clear buff; res, Trevena, variegated yellow, just the hen to put colour and quality into a strain; vhc, White. CREST (8): 1, vhc, spl, Symons, well-known even-marked, noted winner, capital centre, neat droop and even radiation, dense feather of nice quality; 2, Davies, very heavy front, nice droop, not so much of it; 3, Rahey Bros., nice shaped Crest, good centre, not quite so densely feathered; res, hc, Bellman, big spreading crest, needs a bit more droop; c, Lee. CRESTBRED (9): 1, 3, Menadue, green and a variegated, two grand shaped birds, with hoods well covered with long, dense feather, plenty of body feather if nice quality, the latter looked like a hen, if so, she is a gem; 2, vhc, Symons, cap and wing marked, very heavily feathered, not quite so much substance of skull; res, Lee, nicely feathered green, not so wide in entrance; hc, c, Davies. CINNAMON (8): 1, vhc, c, spl, Medlin, grand, even, sound coloured yellow, splendid head, good back and thighs, full of quality, a Cinnamon all over; 2, 3, Burton, another beautiful yellow, rare quality and colour, nice body shape, but lacks the grand head of the winner; 3, fine, big buff, of splendid colour, needs tightening up; res, hc, Trerise. YORKS. YELL. (9): 1, vhc, hc, Thomas, grand shape, close, tight-fitting jacket stands like a soldier, a typical Yorkie; 2, Pincombe, more colour, grand quality, and fit of feather, stands well, but does not use tail quite so nicely; 3, Webb, very warm in colour, grand feather, not quite so nicely tapered; res, Symons; c, Wills. BUFF (13): 1, res, c, spl, Thomas, splendid shape and carriage, very tight and silky in feather, full of nerve; 2, Wills, greater depth of colour, beautiful silky feather, not quite so finely drawn; 3, Symons, good head, shoulders and back, capital feather and style, trifle thick in waist; vhc, Opie; hc, Richards. TICKED, ETC. (10): 1, Pincombe, eye and wing Cinnamon-ticked, a real gem, his clothes fit him like a suit of silk tights, he is full of colour, and has all the swagger and style of a guardsman, a really good Yorkie, and quite the best bird in the section; 2, vhc, hc, spl, Thomas, head, neck and wing ticked buff, beautiful shape and quality, nice style, but like all the birds from this stud, not over-done with colour, still colour is a minor point in a Yorkie; 3, Boak, heavily-marked yellow, grand, racy bird of capital shape, quality and style; res, Lobb; c, Webb. HEN (9): 1, vhc, hc, Thomas, slim, smart yellow, deceitful young thing, deceived her owner and the judge, but an exhibitor had had his eye on her, caught her vocalising, gave information to the authorities, and she lost her character, consequently the rest move up a peg; 2, Wills, cheek-ticked buff, grand shape and style, but needed a wash; 3, Webb, nicely modelled buff, good feather, very pale in colour, and needs handling; res, Menadue; c, Lobb. SCOTS (5): 1, 2, 3, res, spl, Biddick, hot yellow; 2nd, foul-cheeked buff, two grand birds, which bring their heads well down, and griping the perch hard, bring their tails well under, plenty of top-end, and full of nerve; 3rd, yellow, nice nerve and length of side, but like many others carries its head a bit too high; vhc, Richards. PAIRS (10): 1, spl, Lee, green Crest, and clear Crestbred, well matched, useful pair of birds; 2, White, very shapely, high quality Norwich; 3, Coad, again good useful Norwich; res, Thomas; vhc, Climas; hc, Biddich; c, Pincombe. MULES, LIGHT (6): 1, 2, 3, vhc, spl, Collins, noted team, oft described, put down in a condition reflecting the highest credit on their enthusiastic owner; res, Gaved; hc, Lowry. DARK (6): 1, 2, res, hc, spl, Collins, hot Greenfinch-Bullfinch, rare shape and feather, capital colour; 2nd, Gold-Greenfinch, grand shape, colour and quality; res, Linnet-Bullfinch, beautifully marked, grand colour and feather, a really fine team, and put down in good form; 3, Gaved, very nicely marked Siskin-Greenfinch, shows his parentage well, capital feather and colour; vhc, Furneaux, very high quality, nice shape, rich coloured Jonque Greenfinch-Canary. BRIT. GOLDFINCH (14): 1, Miss Giles, very rich, deep coloured square-cut blaze, nice bright body colour, good buttons, capital bars, very steady; 2, Chinn, blaze if anything rather larger but not quite so clean and evenly cut, grand body, beautiful bars, and very steady; 3, Webb, smaller in blaze, but a real beauty for general colour, smartness and quality; res, Burton, splendid head, nice buttons, beautiful chest, rather pale in bars; hc, Veale and Pond; c, Gaved. BULLFINCH (17): 1, vhc, Jordan, not the richest in breast colouring, but very clean and bright in both cap and breast, lovely back and bars, in perfect feather; 2, Oatey, beautiful, rich coloured breast, nice glossy cap, but not so deeply cut, capital back and good wings; 3, Anstiss, very deep, dark coloured breast, nice glossy cap, good tight feather, not so delicate in his mauve; res, White, grand colour and shape, not quite so steady; hc, Tippitt; c, Burton. A.O.V. FINCH, ETC (16): 1, vhc, Jordan, very large and beautifully marked Chaffinch, splendid crest, very steady, not up in breast colour yet, but in perfect feather condition; 2, res, spl, Collins, very rich, lustrous coloured Bramblefinch, grandly spangled, nice shape, and in rare feather; res, nicely marked yellow Bunting, good, natural colour, splendid back and rump colour, good tail; 3, Webb, sweet little Linnet, grandly marked, nice rich colour, very steady and in good feather; hc, Langdon; c, Neale and Pond; wrong class 190, Miss Giles, a Goldfinch. A.O.V. SMALL (8): 1, 2, res, spl, Thompson, the leaders a very handsome Wryneck and a charming Blackcap, both very nicely marked, and in good feather; 3, Pellew, large, well marked, sound coloured Skylark, in nice feather; vhc, Climas; hc, Harris; c, Painter. LARGE (11): 1, Thompson, very handsome Chough, rich, deep, brilliant colour, capital beak, good eye; 2, 3, Veale and Pond, rich, lustrous coloured Magpie, very clean-cut in his marking, and a very nicely marked Jay of good size and feather; res, Mitchell; hc, Pellew; c, Anstiss. SELL (20/-) (13): 1, vhc, Thomas; 2, Carbis; 3, Johnson; res, White; vhc, Ferrell, Symons, Lee; hc, Coad. (10/-): 1, Roberts; 2, Ferrell; 3, Collins; res, Robey Bros; vhc, Thomas, Biddick; hc, Coad, Lobb.

GRANTHAM.

The annual radius show in connection with the Grantham and Dis. F.A. took place on December 14th, when some very good specimens were staged in the cage bird section. Norwich and British were excellent in quality. The committee worked hard and well, and the arrangements under their direction were admirable; great credit is reflected on them.

NOR. (6): 1, Dale; 2, vhc, Jackson; 3, Mackinder; 4, Mrs. Wilkinson; hc, Smith. YORKS. (2): 1, Hedworth; 2, Musson. NAT. COL. (7): 1, 4, hc, Ratcliff; 2, Hedworth; 3, Musson; vhc, Smith; c, Kirkham. NAT. COL. (6): 1, 2, Ratcliff; 3, 4, Smith; vhc, Kirkham. GOLDFINCH, ETC. (4): 1, Hedworth; 2, Millhouse; 3, Mackinder; 4, Dale. A.O.V. (3): 1, Hedworth; 2, 3, Mackinder. SELL. (4): 1, Hedworth; 2, Ratcliff; 3, 4, Sneath. MULE OR HYB. (3): 1, Hedworth; 2, 3, Dale.

HIGH WYCOMBE.

A nice little show, promoted by the High Wycombe Fanciers' Association, and confined to a radius of twenty miles, was held in the Oakley Memorial Drill Hall on December 27th. The birds were staged on top of the pigeons, and their wants well attended to by the committee. Mr. S. C Pearce again acted as hon. secretary, and his urbanity, coupled with his great experience, led to the arrangements being carried out in a most effective manner. The special for the best Canary fell to a very nice buff Norwich shown by Mr. Ineb, of Aylesbury, who was making his debut as an exhibitor. The British were a very smart lot indeed, Goldfinches and Greenfinches being particularly nice. The special for the best British fell to a grand coloured Blackbird shown by Mr. Stone. A good number of visitors attended the show, and there was every indication of its being a success. Mr. C. A. House judged.

YORKS. (5): 1, Spring, very slim racy yellow, wing ticked, stands well, and is nicely feathered; 2, 4, vhc, King, neatly feathered buff, of nice shape and carriage; 3, Miss Stevens, a longer yellow of good carriage, but a trifle slack in feather. NOR. (8): 1, hc, spl, Inch, nice shaped buff, beautifully frosted on a rich ground colour, very tight in feather; 2, 3, Wood, very nice bodied yellow, rich colour and good quality, and a grizzle-shouldered buff of grand quality and nice shape; 4, vhc, Spring, very neat bodied, close feathered buff; c, Austin. MULES (5): 1, spl, Fullbrook, nice shapely variegated buff, beautiful quality, rich colour, in rare form; 2, Wood, nice tight-feathered dark Goldie, good shape and size; 3, Smith, another nice close-feathered variegated; 4, vhc, Spring. BRIT. GOLD. (7): 1, 3, Smith, 1st very bright and rich in his colour, all through, large well-cut blaze, good bars and buttons; 3rd, splendid colour, not so large in blaze; 2, vhc, Fullbrook, large, deep cut blaze of rare colour, good feather and size; 4, Pearce; hc, Wood. BULL. (4): 1, Fullbrook, rich bright breast, nice glossy cap, rare shape and feather; 2, 3, Wood, nice shape and size, neat caps and good breasts; 4, Smith. GREEN (5): 1, Fullbrook, very rich body colour, splendid wings and tail, very steady, and in rare condition; 2, Smith, grand colour, shape and feather, hardly so much of him; 3, Wood, magnificent colour, nice shape and style, but needs steadying; 4, Pearce; vhc, Manders. LINNET (5): 1, Fullbrook, capital shape, very steady, beautifully marked, nice colour and feather; 2, Pearson, nicely marked, good colour, shape and feather, rather wild; 3, Moody, shapely and well feathered, nice markings; 4, Manders; vhc, Smith. A.O.S. (5): 1, spl, best British, Stone, large, tight-feathered, grand-shaped Blackbird, capital colour and good beak; 2, Fullbrook, the Reading winning Crossbill, in good order; 3, Beeson, nicely marked, good-coloured Siskin of compact feather; 4, vhc, Bailey. SELL. 5/6 (4): 1, Miss Stevens; 2, Pearce; 3, W. Spring; 4, H. Spring. GIFT (4): 1, spl, W. Spring; 2, Abbott; 3, Pearce; 4, H. Spring.

BAILDON (Yorks).

The annual open show was held on December 28th, in the Mechanics' Institute. The birds were nicely staged down the centre of the room, and with plenty of light. Judging was over in good time, and the secretary, Mr. Dobson, who is to be congratulated on his successful management of the show, had the cards up immediately after the slips went in. The stewarding was in the able hands of Messrs. J. Pickard, W. Anverton and F. Jagger. Entries came fairly well, considering it was Christmas week, and averaged nearly 16 per class. A good number of visitors too, attended, and we think the show may be considered a success in every respect. Mr. H. W. Battye judged.

YORKS. CL. YELL. (9): 1, spl. for best in show, Ambler, well-known in grand order, neat head, wing and tail carriage, fine shape and length; 2, Cooper, fine shape, another long, shapely York, good wings, well on leg; vhc, Priestley; hc, Ross and Robertshaw; c, Walsh. NOTTINGHAM PERMANENT O.S.

The Nottingham Permanent O.S., an old-established society, held its annual show on Dec. 26th. It was a great success and the officers of the society are to be congratulated. The President is Mr. F. Cooke, the Vice-President, Mr. C. Wayte. The committee consists of the following:—Messrs. G. Hill, J. Wood, J. Birch, E. Houseley, J. Pick, J. Bowers, T. Whyler, and H. Davis. The entries were hardly up to the average, but some beautiful birds were staged, both in Norwich Plainheads and Crests. Some of the latter are exceptionally good exhibits, and not a bad bird was staged. There were also some very cheap birds in the selling classes and some of them were quickly claimed. Mr. George Clay is a courteous and obliging secretary, and one of the right sort. Mr. J. H. Scothern placed the cards and gave general satisfaction.

NOR. CL. YELL.: 1, 2, Hill, 1, young bird, beautiful type, carriage and colour, 2 similar bird; 3, Birch, really good bird. HUDDERSFIELD.

The annual open show of the Huddersfield O.S. was held in the Primitive Methodist School Room, on Dec. 28th. The room is a good one for a show, and is quite central, being only one minute from the station. Only the meagre entry of 317 put in an appearance in the 25 classes provided, giving an average of short of 13 per class, due probably to the Christmas holiday. But cheer up! fanciers of Huddersfield, you will come up to a good date next year. The management is all that could be desired, the secretary, Mr. S. Lodge, knowing what is required, and he has an excellent under-study in Mr. W. L. Biler. These two worthies, to whom very great credit is due, were well backed up in their endeavours by Mr. W. Gledhill (President), Mr. G. Cartwright (vice-president), and Messrs. Lawford, Haigh and Morris, as stewards. The placing of the cards was in the hands of Mr. J. Dawson (Gt. Horton), for the Yorkshire section, and Mr. Geo. Levell (Huddersfield) for the Norwich section.

CROOK.

Annual show in connection with the Crook and Dis. C.B.S., was held on Dec. 28th in Mechanics' Hall, Crook. The entries came up fairly well considering the time of the year. The Norwich and Yorkshires did not come up as well as was expected, but the quality was uever better. Mr. Harland won special for best in show, with a grand Norwich. Mr. H. Wilson took Sandiford's for hottest moulted. The British classes were excellent, and many well known faces had to take a step down for the new ones. Messrs. Rutherford and Bright won gold centre silver medal for best members' British, and silver medal for most points throughout show. The bad weather spoiled the gate a lot; it was snowing nearly all the afternoon. There is a good working committee, who had the hall cleared and all the exhibits on rail by 7 p.m. Mr. Brunskill judged, and a hard task he had to separate some of the birds, especially in the A.O.V. classes, but he got through his work well, and we heard no grumbling. Mr. W. Rutherford makes a capital secretary, being both efficient and courteous.

DENHOLME AND THORNTON.

This society held a members' show on Dec. 28. This show was the last of the season, and great interest was taken in it, as it was the show that had to decide who should hold the members' cup for the next twelve months. The champion classes were not well patronised, and the novices agreed to let them enter their birds in their classes, and the interest was all the keener. The coveted trophy was carried off by Mr. Arthur Ingham, a novice who has just taken up the Fancy, gaining 32 points for three shows, the highest three winners counting for cup. Mr. Ingham also took special for most points in show. Mr. T. Murgatroyd made an excellent judge and placed the cards as follows:—

PWLLHELI.

Pwllhell and District held their annual open show (confined to Wales) on Dec. 26th, in the Town Hall. This hall is very central and beautifully lit from sides and top, is free from draughts and is well adapted for the purpose. There was a good entry in the cage bird section, about 200 in 15 classes. The Norwich Crest and Yorkshire classes brought out some very good specimens The Borders were a treat, some real beautics being shown. In the British section some real gems were to be seen, especially in the Goldfinch class with an entry of 27, almost every bird fit to show in the keenest company. Mr. W. H. Davies, the Secretary, assisted by a very willing hand of stewards, had everything well in hand and deserves great praise for his able management. The judging was over and the cards were up in good time. Mr. S. Hadwin (Liverpool) judged.

WEST BROMWICH.

The first annual open show in connection with the above newly formed society was held on Dec. 27, at the Dartmouth Hotel, and must rank as one of the best shows ever held in the district. No doubt its being held under C.B.U. Rules helped to swell the entries, which came up well in all sections. It also brought a lot of fanciers from the surrounding districts, amongst whom I noticed Messrs. Tonks, Howes and Osborne, Jones, Raybould, Machin, and Paddock, who all spoke well of the management. The exhibits were of exceptional merit. The Norwich and Yorkshires were aa very fine lot indeed, and Mules and British made a grand display. The foreign were also a very fine lot and the winner in this class was the now noted "King Bird of Paradise" shown by Mr. Williams; it ran a very tight race for best bird in show, being just beaten by a very fine Crest shown by Mr. Wilkins. The special for best British was won by Mr. Hingley with a grand Wryneck. Mr. Lees captured first in both the classes for Mules and Hybrids, with two very good birds, both well-known winners. In Mr. Duffield the society have a very hard working secretary, and one who does all he can for the success of the show, being backed up by a capable lot of stewards in Messrs. Viles, Palmer, Stevenson Smith, Lea, Carter and Plant. All worked like Trojans and cards were very quickly up. There were no less than 93 names which did not appear in catalogues, and which caused a lot of trouble to visitors and CAGE BIRDS reporter. No doubt they will remedy this another year. Mr. Russell judged and gave every satisfaction.

NOR. YELL.: 1, hc, Broadhurst, good varg., hot colour, nice chubby, good head and wing carriage, perfect; 2, Symond and Son, very fine clear, almost equal, grand pair; 3, Gwilliams, nice head and neck; vhc, Hall. OVER, WINSFORD (Cheshire.)

The Over, Winsford (Cheshire) and Dis. held their ninth annual open show on Boxing Day at the Black Bear Hotel Assembly Rooms. A strong committee, made up of genuine, good fanciers, carried out all the arrangements in the best possible style, and the unanimity of spirit prevailing allowed everything to pass in perfect harmony. It is good that with a somewhat small classification, and it being Boxing Day too, there was a fine display of real, good class exhibits. Christmas is a bad time to attempt to travel birds. Still, some very choice birds were sent from Longton, Hale, Newport (Salop), Crewe, Northwich, Middlewich, Nantwich, etc., whilst quite a number of Winsford and District fanciers patronised the show with a good entry. The British birds take pride of place here, and many very large shows would gloat over such classes as were to be seen here. Goldfinches were a real treat, and to such good class birds are not seen in one class every day. Each bird was very smart indeed, which means a lot. The Bullfinches were very good, and equal to those of an average show. Linnets, too, were excellent, and it was a treat to find 23 first class birds doing duty here. Merit ran very high and close, and it took a long time to divide them, for here it should be said that the judging had to be done between incandescent and day-light, such as could creep in at the side windows. The A.O.S. British saw some capital birds out, and the noted Newport Waxwing seemed first after a tough struggle with Mr. Weedall's excellent Redwing, whilst a splendid Greenfinch ran third. The Yorks. were not numerous, but some beauties were in the classes in fine form. The Norwich were very good, but they, too, did not care to travel in abundance at this season. The Canary Hybrid class contained a very mixed lot of both light and dark Hybrids, Messrs. J. D. Leigh, H. Tams, J. W. Weedall, H. Grime, J. W. Bower, and G. Robinson, all putting on view good specimens. Mr. F. Wigley, the hon. treasurer, and Mr. G. Baker, the hon. secretary, handled the reins in a quiet, unostentatious manner, and got through their work with ease and satisfaction to all concerned. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged.

YORKS., CK. (6): Rule II applied here, hence 1st not awarded; 2, J. and E. Perry, most stylish yell., very tight feather right through, well up on legs, small neat head, full of nerve; 3, vhc, Boote, 3rd ticked nape and thigh, buff, very round body, nicely drawn out, neat head, good carriage, well up on legs, grand quality of feather; vhc, lovely shaped var. yell., good legs and stand; res, Brotherhood, very fine, thin, slim, typical, long drawn out bird, good erect stand, neat wings and tail carriage, and fine neat head, in sound condition; hc, E. Weedall, very long slim specimen; c, Tomkinson. HENS (5): Rule II again in force; 2, 3, Boote, yell and buff respectively, former most stylish lady, showing all essentials of a top sawyer, stand, shape, carriage and condition, fine as a wax model to-day, latter big buff hen, well up; r., E. Weedall, smart yellow, good contour; vhc, J. and E. Perry, very fine racy yellow, plenty leg, well up in body, nice on top; hc, Bennett, very high shoulders, straight up on perch. NOR. COCK (7): 1, 3, Crimes, 1st var. yell., very cobby shape, fine size, neat and full in feather all through, good clean head, compact wings; 3rd, ticked on left wing, a most compact type, clean as a cone through from head to tail, shown in grand feather and condition; 2, Grime, rare cobby big clear yellow, massive head, good shoulders and back, rich colour, smart in condition; r., J. and E. Perry, very neat in type; vhc, Perry, long bird; hc, c (no names). HENS (7): 1, Brotherhood, very prim, bouncing yellow hen, excellent shape, colour and feather, bold head, neatly carried wings and tail feathers; 2, vhc, T. Crimes, fine cobby buff, ticked on left ear or cheek, nice size, full of bloom and condition, very good above from head to tail; 3, Grime, long, big-headed yellow, nicely feathered, rich in colour, good body and condition tight; hc (no name); Mr. W. Spilsbury's birds were absent. CAN. HYB. (11): 1, 2, Leigh, lightly ticked yellow Gold-Canary, and dark yellow Greenfinch-Canary, both looking very well, in full colours, feather and condition; 3, Tams and Son, eye ticked, almost clear pale buff, very tight feather and condition, good as it is big; r., J. W. Weedall, bonny dark yell. Gold-Canary, rich colour, good shape, well put down in clean condition; vhc, Grime, very large dark Siskin Canary, bully shape, nice markings; hc, Bower, rather on the soft side to-day, yellow Goldie and Can.; c, Robinson, eye, wing and head marked, buff Gold-Can. BRIT. GOLDFINCH (15): a smart lot, all in fighting fettle; 1, Bower, a very tight showy Finch, big, rich-coloured blaze, neat body, brown, nicely spread down chest and sides, good even moons and bars, silky feather; 2, E. Weedall, almost equal to 1st, and a real good conditioned bird, moons bars brown, neat; 3, Lawton, splendid body shape, Java-like feather, deep, well-defined blaze, nice moonings and bars, very little behind in richness of chestnut body colour; r, Bennett, very big face, fine body, looks like a hard nut to crack when in perfect dry condition; vhc, Tams and Son, fine drawn, rich in all colours, clean cut blaze, good moons and bars; hc, Kennerley, like and almost equal to vhc; c, Wigley. BULLFINCH (9): 1, Wigley, proper cobby body of good standard size, lovely shade of level blue colour on back, nice full breast, nice neat deep cap; 2, Davies, very massive head and cap, bold big shoulders and chest, bright clean colours right through, best of feather and condition; 3, J. W. Weedall, bonny bird, fine cap, wings and tail, good back colour, bread; vhc, Bradburn, fine shape, bit nervous; hc, Rogerson, very good sort of hen; c, Siddall, rare fine head and shoulders and chest. LINNET (23): great class for holiday time, and probably three sets of good-class birds; 1, Bower, real beauty to-day for size, colour and markings, very glossy in feather, tight in feather and condition, stands up bold and fearless, shows for all he is worth; 2, 3, Tams and Son, grand pair, hard to separate, former carried brighter and better colour and markings, both in tip-top condition; vhc, J. Taylor, very large, well-marked bird, in best of condition; hc, Crimes, facsimile of former; c, Clark, well put down, in condition, fine size, steady, nice shape, good markings. A.O.S. BRIT. (12): 1, Brotherhood, Waxwing, in beautiful form, feather and condition, very steady, well shown. Some were saying this gem was the lucky one to recently escape death from the owner's recent lamp accident in his bird room; 2, Weedall, magnificent, rich, bright-coloured Redwing, in perfect condition, runs right on heels of former for first place, real good one, takes spl for best members' C.B., and spl for best members' Brit. in show; 3, Bower, very grand-conditioned Greenfinch, nice shape and size, quite silky, and level as a die in feather and condition; r, Oliver and Blackburn, one of the clearest marked and prettiest feathered Reed Buntings one could wish to see; vhc, Grime, good-sized Bramblefinch, nice spanging; hc, Siddall, really smart Lesser Redpoll, in beautiful feather, colours and markings; c, Schofield, another good Greenfinch.

BROXBURN.

Broxburn and Dis. C.B.S. held their annual exhibition and competition on December 21st. The show, which was held in the Public Hall, was very attractive, as it included a grand entry of the various breeds provided for. Entries totalled about 300, which was considered very satisfactory. This is a fresh start for this society, it having been in abeyance for a few years. However, with the aid of some fresh blood in the shape of some keen and willing fanciers, we hope to see this society keeping well to the front rank as one of the best shows outside "Auld Reekie." The Norwich section was fairly well represented in numbers, while quality was very much in evidence, some well known winners being staged. Crossbreds were a grand lot, and the winner, belonging to Mr. G. Davis, is a bird of grand substance and feather, with a good head well cushioned. Piebaldheads were a fine lot, and Mr. A. Chalmers' clear yellow cock was a bird greatly admired. The hen classes had a few really good birds in them, very level throughout, and of fine quality and finish. The Border Fancy section came out in strong force, and here a run could be seen a deal of type and quality. Messrs. Duncan and Logan led off with a very fine Yellow cock. The Yellow hen class first was again captured by Mr. J. Patterson with his neat Yellow Pearl, who also scored several firsts, besides other honours, he having a splendid team here to compete for the points cup. Buff cocks were a very select lot, and the winner turned up in a grand specimen shown by Mr. J. S. Wilson, which also secured the B.F.C.C. medal, for which it was closely pressed by Messrs. Duncan and Logan's Yellow cock. Mules and Hybrids had some very valuable specimens in their classes, Mr. L. J. Arrighi, of British and Mule fame, securing 1st in light Mule or Hybrid class with a very fine uneven Goldie Canary. The Dark Mule or Hybrid class was a good one, Mr. J. Ross here scoring with his well-known Can. Bullie, shown in lovely feather and good colour. British were strong in numbers, and many of this season's winners were here. Goldfinch classes were the select ones of this lot; it must have taxed the judges not a little to separate some of them. Greenfinches also were a treat to see. The vice-president is Mr. P. Hutchison; treasurer, Mr. J. Workman; committee, Messrs. G. Wotherspoon, T. Aitken, W. McLearn, D. Anthony, J. Coulter, H. Kinnear, A. Baillie. The above fanciers gave the painstaking and efficient secretary, Mr. W. Neilson, who worked like a Trojan, every help, and we must congratulate them on their venture, trusting that outside fanciers will continue their support and send in a bumping entry on the next occasion. Mr. J. McLay judged Norwich, Mr. H. Bennet the Border classes and Messrs. J. Brown and J. Livingstone the British and Mule classes. Their awards gave general satisfaction.

GREAT HORTON GOOD INTENT O.S.

The last of a series of members' shows was held in the Church Schools, December 21st, when prizes to the value of 25s. were won as follows:—1st, A. Holden, value 10s., with 74 points; 2nd, A. Firth, value 7s. 6d., with 68 points; 3rd, H. Schofield, value 5s., with 48 points; whilst A. Atkin and G. Newell tied for 4th, value 2s. 6d., with 37 points each. Mr. Fred. Allen (Cleckheaton) judged, and gave general satisfaction. CL. YELL.: 1, Schofield; 2, Firth; 3, Atkin. BUFF: 1, Firth; 2, Newell. TICK., ETC., YELL.: 1, 2, 4, Firth; 3, Holden. BUFF: 1, 2, Firth; 3, Atkin; 4, Ketteringham. CL., ETC., YELL. HEN: 1, 2, Firth; 3, Holden; 4, Newell. BUFF: 1, Schofield; 2, 4, Holden; 3, Atkin. CINN. MARKED: 1, Holden; 2, Schofield. HEAVILY MKD. GREEN, ETC., CK.: 1, Atkin; 2, Schofield. The society is not one of the largest in numbers, but financially it is in a sound condition. Friends are welcome at the meetings held at the church schools last Saturday in each month. —A. Holden, secretary.

BRADFORD (EAST) O.S.

The Society held the 5th and last show of the year on Boxing Day, at Park Chapel Schools, to determine who should be winners of the extensive list of the special prizes that have been put up for competition. The entry was a splendid one, no less than 135 exhibits facing the judge—Mr. J. Wilman (Shipley). Competition was again very keen throughout both sections, and in many classes it was a hard task to select the coveted winners. The quality of the birds was of a very high order, many noted winners being staged to do battle for their owners in the race for points. The winners of the Specials in the Champion section, were Messrs. W. Cruise, with 103 points, J. Farrar, 76, C. Cowgill, 43, G. R. Rushworth, 31, H. Hill, 29, F. Gelder, 13, W. Mann, 11; and in the Novice section, Messrs. W. Stables, with 70 points, G. White, 50, J. Northrop, 45, O. Priestley, 34, W. Laycock, 31, H. Peacock, 30, Chapman and Bateman, 21, Wilkinson Bros, 18. Four extra Novice classes were added for this show for those who had not previously won a money prize, and the winners were Messrs. R. Lowes, with 24 points, J. Stobart, 18, C. Walker, 12. There was a good turn up of visitors to the show during the afternoon, and several expressed their approval of the efforts that this Society has made for its members. The prizes that have been won at these shows throughout the year, and which included four Gold Medals and £3 in money, equally divided between the Champion and Novice sections, will be presented by our worthy President's wife, Mrs. E. Suddards, at the tea and concert on January 7th, at Park Chapel Schools. The following is a full list of the judges' awards, which gave satisfaction to all.

COVENTRY F. & F. S.

The Coventry and Dis. F. and F.S. held their 16th annual open show on Dec. 27, at the Sydenham Palace, Fort Street—the same room as that used by the C.O.S. It is an admirable room for our section. There were not quite so many entries as on previous occasions owing to the executive having to cut down the classes; but the quality was quite up to the usual standard. The show was opened by Mr. Councillor Armishaw, supported by Messrs. Councillors Batchelor and Manner. There was a good attendance of exhibitors and visitors at the opening ceremony. The committee is a hard working one and consists of the following:—Messrs. A. H. Ashley (chairman), W. Hyde (Vice-Chairman), E. Bell, W. F. Holland, E. White, M. Shakespeare, C. Jones, J. Harris, A. E. Stringer, F. Parker, A Baker, A. Booton, and C. Kilby. The Treasurer is Mr. Conn. W. H. Batchelor, and the Hon. Secs. are Messrs. Sheffield and Gilbert. To those latter much of the success of the show is due. They worked admirably and they are to be congratulated on having had the arrangements so well in hand. Mr. E. Noakes (Leicester) judged, and his awards seemed to give general satisfaction.

MALTON.

Malton and Dis. held their twelfth annual show on Boxing Day in the Corn Exchange. Entries in cage bird section came up well, averaging over 16 a class. Quality was also well in evidence all through. The management, under the able direction of Mr. Horsley, was all that could be desired. Judging was concluded by 1.30, and cards were up as each class was judged. The show-room was crowded during the afternoon, and all things point to this being as successful a show as any held previously. Mr. H. W. Battye judged.

YORKS, YELL. UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

BRADFORD West Show, held on Dec. 21st, is considered one of the crack events of the season, and again this year proved a great attraction, fanciers visiting the exhibition from all parts of the country. It was well worth a long journey to see the grand display. The Yorkshires were a hot lot, the pick of the county of broad acres being assembled to do battle for their owners. The Greens turned up well, a big majority, of course, coming from Liverpool. Norwich were not strong in numbers, but some fine specimens were on view, the British and A.O.V. were a very interesting lot, some examples being shown that Bradford fanciers do not often have the pleasure to see.

THAT young and energetic Society, Bradford East O.S., have been accepted as members of the Yorkshire Union, and this, I think and hope, is a step in the right direction. They have now over 50 members, and, no doubt, will try to get over the 60 mark, so that they will have full representation on the council of the Union. It is hoped that several other societies will not be long in following the lead of these pushful fanciers, so hurry up Harrogate, Otley, Baildon, East Bowling, etc., and do not let your juniors leave you in the lurch.

THE Council of the Yorkshire Union held a meeting at the Bradford West headquarters on Dec. 21st, and in consequence of the enforced absence of both President, Mr. H. W. Battye, and vice-president, Mr. J. Greaves, the council had to elect a chairman for the meeting. Mr. J. Townend was elected unanimously to that position, and I hear that he very creditably filled the office. The case of Messrs. Cook and Son came up before the meeting, and the council decided to suspend them to the same date as the C.M.Y.C.C., viz., March 31st, 1908. A case of borrowing birds for exhibition was gone into, the parties implicated being Messrs. Hall and Raynor, Mr. Hall for borrowing, and Mr. Raynor for lending. The parties being proved guilty to the satisfaction of the council, they were each snspended for twelve months from the date of meeting. The complaint in this case was laid by Messrs. Cook and Son.

ON Tuesday, Dec. 16th, Mr. L. Wilkinson gave a washing exhibition before the members and friends of the Keighley O.S.; 6 birds were washed, and all present were very pleased with the method. Mr. W. prefers a good sponge for washing, and uses three basins of water, one for the soap and two for rinsing purposes. Particular care was taken to get the water just to the proper heat, which should feel warm to the back of the hand. After washing, the birds were wrapped in cloth and placed before the fire to dry, this taking about twenty minutes. He then placed birds in show cages to finish off. Messrs. Shackleton and Morris proposed a vote of thanks which was carried with acclamation, bringing a thoroughly enjoyable evening to a close.

MOST of the societies in Bradford and district held members' shows on Boxing Day. Every one of them seems to have been very well patronised, and a better way to spend a holiday could not be devised, as it brings a lot of Fanciers together and as a rule results in a very pleasant time. Another good point about these members' shows is that they are the making of exhibitors. Times without number does a novice show a bird or two, and if he should beat one or two birds that have been counting at open shows, he is not long before he also puts down in the open and blossoms out a full-blown exhibitor.

HUDDERSFIELD and Baildon were each holding shows on Saturday, Dec. 28th. The first named society obtained only a poor entry, due in some degree to the holidays. This is about the fourth show this enthusiastic society has lost money at, but no doubt the members will come up smiling next year. Baildon had just a nice entry and should be about able to make ends meet.

MALTON and District Open Show was also held on Boxing Day, and the Cage Bird Section was very well supported. Ten classes were provided and one of these was cancelled, but the remaining nine contained 146 birds, or thereabouts. "Well done, Malton," you are to be congratulated on the success of your venture.

The Yellowhammer.

How to Select and Keep it.

By F. TURNBER.

A Paper read before the Members of the City and Suburban Association of Canary Breeders.

Your secretary, Mr. Wynn, has asked me to give you a few details of my methods of treating and keeping the Yellowhammer. I am not going to weary you with a long paper, but will endeavour to put before you, in as few words as possible, my experiences with this bird.

The species, I am sure, is too well known to you all to need a very minute description from me, but I would like to point out that what might be a very good bird for making up a collection in an aviary would probably be quite useless for an exhibition bird.

Points of a Show Specimen.

In picking out a specimen for a show bird, take the largest and richest in body-colour you can get, and one showing a large amount of yellow on the head, cheeks, throat and under parts. The cheek marks should be as black as possible, and the head-markings should run from the bill to the back of the head in the shape of a V. The crown between the black lines should be clear, if possible; this, to my way of thinking, is the most difficult point to get, and when a specimen showing it is met with on the show bench, it ought to be pretty high up in the tickets.

In the spring it is not such a difficult matter to get such a bird as I have described, but after the moult, well, the ideal specimen will probably have a pretty dark head and be not worth twopence as a show-bird.

Many birds have quite clear heads in the spring, like a Norwich plain-head Canary, but personally I am not much struck with one of this sort, as they do not moult out at all satisfactory show birds, or anything like what they were before the moult.

On Colour-Feeding.

For exhibition, a Yellowhammer should always be slightly colour-fed; if moulted out naturally, the yellow looks very washed-out and the bird is not "in it" at all, if compared with a well colour-fed specimen.

They are not difficult to get on to colour-feed; I mix the colour-feed with the Canary seed at the start, sometimes chopping up a few meal-worms with the colour-feed to get them to eat it, and after that they get used to it.

Of course, you want to start before the moult, the same as you would in feeding Canaries, and gradually bring up the strength of the feed. They do not want feeding on hot pepper; the tasteless sort seems to suit them best. When possible to get it, I mix about half of yellow feed to the same quantity of red pepper, and keep it up some time after the moult, also giving plenty of meal-worms.

The Finished Article.

The bath should be freely used, and this is the finest thing to put on the polish, or, as it is called, condition. If it is not convenient to give a bath, the spray should be freely used every day, and, when available, there is nothing to beat rain-water, which must be quite clean.

I myself always filter it. To do that you can get from any photographer's what are called filter papers; they are four a penny. Put one or two inside a large funnel. Stand the funnel in a large bottle and fill up to the top of the filter paper, and it will gradually drip into the bottle; then fill up again and so on, and the rain-water will be as clear as crystal and fit for use.

These birds vary very much in temper, and you should never try to start on an old bird, as they are very difficult to steady. But if a bird of the year is taken in the winter, it usually gets tame quickly.

The one I was so successful at the shows with was a caught specimen and took to captivity well, and won three first and special prizes before the moult and never broke a feather in the process; and in the hands of its present owner, I fully expected it would be first at the Palace last time.

On the Treatment of New-Caught Birds.

I might say, when I get fresh-caught specimens I usually put them in a long flight cage with one or two others, and get them on to seed; and after a few weeks cage them up in a box-cage, such as is usually described in the fancy papers, for a few more weeks or so, and then give them a fly in a flight-cage again, as it freshens them up, and so on till they get steady that way. Some never do get steady, of course; the best thing to do is to let that sort fly, as they are no use as show birds unless steady.

I was successful, as most of you here know, with a Yellowhammer at our show a year or two ago—a fresh-caught specimen—and that also moulted out successfully and got a card at the Palace; and, as you all know, I got second this year with a Yellowhammer, which I have sold, and it has also won with its new owner.

Do you Spell it with an H?

The Yellowhammer may be called a bird of many names; its proper name is, of course, the Yellow Bunting. It is called in Shropshire Yellow Amber or Yellow Omber; in the north the popular names are Yellow Yowle, Yeldren, Yeording and Yite.

Of course, everyone who has taken a stroll along a country lane has no doubt seen the bird under discussion flitting along the hedges and perching on the top-most branches, where it utters its plaintive little song, which is commonly rendered as "a little bit of bread and no cheese," and these words seem to fit the notes of the song as well as any phrase I know.

I may say that in Gloucestershire they call it "pretty-pretty creature." If anyone chances to see one of these birds sitting on the top of a furze bush singing, let them repeat one of the above sentences after the bird has uttered his quiet, plaintive notes, and they cannot fail to be struck with the resemblance of either of them to the song.

There seems to be some doubt among some writers on bird topics as to the correct way to spell the common name of the bird, and in many articles and books it is referred to as the Yellowhammer. Perhaps the initial "h" makes it more euphonious and supplies something that, at first glance, seems to be missing in the form of "Yellowammer."

Some of His Relatives.

There are a great many relatives of our bird, either residents or seasonal visitors, in this country, such as the Cirl Bunting, Lapland Bunting, Snow Bunting and Reed Bunting. The Bunting family are easily distinguished by their angular gape and apparently toothed bill, or horny excrescence on the upper mandible.

The most distinguishing feature of the family lies in the remarkable markings of their eggs, known to nearly every schoolboy in country districts. Though the ground colour of the eggs varies in different species, they are all marked with irregular lines, varying in thickness, as if someone had tried to scribble on them with a pen.

When I was staying in Scotland I was told the children seem to treat this bird with contempt. It certainly seems the bird is evilly regarded by the country-folk, and it suffers in consequence. The nest is seldom spared, and the young are tortured in some places.

Fortunately, with the growth of education and greater interest taken nowadays in nature study, these unreasonable and strange antipathies to certain birds and animals are fast disappearing, and the consequent barbarities perpetrated by the village children are becoming things of the past also.

I forgot to mention show cages. Of course some have a fancy for one colour and some for another. I myself like to show them against a light green; some prefer a dark blue enamel for the background.

Many Questions.

Many questions were asked Mr. Turnber as to if there was any trouble with scaly legs. The answer was that the Bunting family were great sufferers from this complaint, which could be avoided by scaling the legs by soaking well in warm water and using the finger-nails to remove the scales, and after the operation Zam-Buk was very useful to prevent soreness. Some remarks as to the difficulty of getting the Yellow Bunting to eat colour-feed were made. The answer was, Mr. T. found no diffienlty in doing so. There were also questions asked as to the age when Yellowhammers are in their prime for show. Answer: About three years; it was generally understood the majority of British birds were in their prime then, especially the Finch tribe. Mr. Wynn asked if there were any suggestion to be made as to the best way to steady Corn-Buntings, as he possessed a very wild specimen. Answer: A steady, fresh Corn-Bunting is rarely met with. They invariably take about two cage moults to get them fit for show. Of course, some settle down to cage life better than others. Mr. Curtis told a tale that he had heard of a man making the remark of the Yellow Bunting being used to get size in Crests, which of course is easily understood. The Yellow Bunting cross with Canary was unknown yet. Mr. T. said he thought the only possible cross with the Yellow Bunting which was likely might be with a Reed Bunting, if tried for in a huge aviary.

A very enjoyable evening was spent and was greatly appreciated by one and all, as, though this club was at one time only Canary men, it is now getting very strong in British bird exhibitors. A vote of thanks was passed and finished the evening.

FOR LOVERS OF OUR WILD BIRDS.

Bird lovers who feed the wild birds in the garden should take the trouble to make a proper bird table. To do so, procure a piece of board, say about four feet long (but any length will do) and fasten at each corner an upright piece to form legs, allowing them to project about six inches above the top of the table; a piece of thin wire should be stretched from each of these, which will prevent the impudent sparrows from taking the lion's share of the good things spread out. Any scraps from the table will do; to these can be added, barley meal, mixed crumbly, moist bread, hemp seed and sunflowers. A lump of fat or suet suspended to the branches of a tree will quickly attract the active and intertesting Tits.

I would like to say that I have taken CAGE BIRDS since I started to keep Canaries, writes Mr. W. Dutton, of Somerville, Seacombe (one of the novice prize winners in our late Breeding Competition), and I find it very useful in helping me to get good results. I hope this coming year to have more than one pair, and to enter your competitions if you have any. I recommend your paper to all my birdie friends, as I would not be without it myself.

A Good Plate for a Id.

An Ideal Wagtail Aviary.

By LICHEN GREY.

The Wagtails are a most delightful family to keep in confinement, sprightly in all their ways and beautifully coloured, and they have, moreover, the further recommendation in the eyes of many people, that it is only seldom that we see them turned out in really good condition. In order to ensure satisfactory results, plenty of room in a Wagtails' aviary is a sine qua non, and the ideal place in which to keep such birds is, without doubt, a kind of modified greenhouse.

For many small birds glass is infinitely superior to wire as an enclosing medium. It does not damage plumage in the same way that wire does, and affords, besides, a welcome protection against draughts and inclement weather. A glass-house, too, can be heated in winter to any desired extent. Such a house is an addition to any garden, no matter how small its dimensions. It can be used as either aviary or greenhouse, or simultaneously as both, and with very little care will give excellent results.

A Desirable Stream of Water.

Ventilation is, of course, an important consideration, but this is easily arranged for by windows in the ordinary way. The best form of opening and closing is, perhaps, to have the sashes made to slide up and down rather than to fold, door-fashion; they are then more easily protected with wire when open.

For Wagtails, and most of their near allies, plenty of water is a necessity, and if this can be provided in the form of a natural stream, as in the instance described below, so much the better; quite sufficient can be done, however, with a very limited supply from ordinary pipes. The chief drawback to the use of such water is its purity. All water exposed to the atmosphere for a considerable time, abounds in lower forms of life, which constitute a large proportion of the natural food of such birds as Wagtails, and if a supply from some ditch or pond can conveniently be introduced into the aviary, it will be constantly bringing in food such as the birds love, and than which nothing else will conduce more to their health and general welfare.

If "tap" water has to be made use of, such food must be introduced artificially; and when this has to be resorted to, the most economical plan will be found to have as large a pool as possible, either in the house or outside, in which insects may be induced to deposit their eggs.

A Garden Inclosed.

Such birds as Wagtails are so dainty in all their movements that they do scarcely any perceptible injury to even the most delicate flowers; but the beginner, who would start an aviary somewhat on the lines sketched out below, would be well advised to limit his ambitions to some of the freer-growing plants. Even confining himself to these, his choice of subjects is a very wide one. If he does not care to go to the expense of purchasing from a nursery, there are hosts of pretty flowers which can be had for the gathering from the banks of almost every stream. Forget-me-nots, cresses, and marsh-marigolds, only to mention some of the most common, are all admirable for the purpose, and though these may be regarded as "flowers out of place," certainly they are not open to that description, when grown in the aviary.

For him with greater ambitions in the way of horticulture, there is open an almost unlimited field from which he may select. It is only a question of taste or fancy; the beauty of any flower garden is heightened by the presence of a few birds moving amongst the beds, and in the aviary the birds will always do best, if they are not too numerous, and have for their surroundings as much of plant life as possible.

The house which to my mind has always appeared the beau ideal of all that a Wagtails' aviary should be, was on rather an extensive scale. It was an old greenhouse which the ingenuity and personal labour of its owner had rendered almost perfect for its dual purpose. It stood against a high wall, and in the grounds beyond there was a lily pond from which it was easy to lead a supply of water, through a common drain-pipe.

A Garden of Eden.

The water entered the house by gravitation, some four feet above the floor, and in a succession of little falls and pools was carried over and through a large central bed of rock-work, which was thickly covered with saxifrages, primulas, gentians, dwarf azaleas, and ferns. These, and many other plants, flourished in the pockets amongst the stones as well as if they had been upon their native mountains, while in the pools which surrounded the bed, and abutted upon the pathway, trailed all sorts of water plants. These pools were all upon a foundation of concrete, but so skilfully designed as to disguise their artificiality; in some of them there was sufficient depth to afford protection from their feathered foes to the fresh-water shrimps and other creatures which inhabited them, while they all shelved out to a shallow margin when they touched the path, affording beautiful wading and fishing ground for the birds.

The wall at the north end of the house was covered with roses and some other climbing plants, which extended over nearly half of the roof, and round each side ran narrow borders all filled with flowers. The paths were of concrete, as were also the "stopping-stones" which cropped up here and there above the water, in order to give a ready means of access to all parts of the central bed. There was always a steady flow of water which prevented any of the pools from becoming foul, and coming as it did from the lily pond outside, it was constantly bringing with it fresh supplies of insects and their larvæ as food for the birds.

An Insectile Feeding Plan.

To supplement these, shrimps, water beetles, caddis flies and any other kind of gnats that could be obtained were constantly being added to the pools, while the moisture and vegetation always attracted a certain number of insects on fine days. Wagtails are especially fond of "blue-bottles," and common house flies—most of us have doubtless observed them skilfully running about our roofs in pursuit of these—and many devices were taken to beguile these to enter the house. Honeycomb and other sweet-smelling things were occasionally laid about and always attracted flies.

In addition to natural food of that kind the birds did well upon the stock mixtures for soft-billed birds, with occasionally finely shredded meat, gentles and meal-worms whenever procurable. Small water-beetles, Wagtails seem to be particularly fond of, and they are so lively in their movements in the water as to afford the birds considerable diversion before they are captured. Earwigs, wood-lice (the "slators" of schoolboy parlance), centipedes, and in fact almost all "creepy" things are much appreciated.

Wagtails also eat small worms rapidly, especially in winter when other animal food is scarce, and they will then too, take an occasional small slug. Shell-snails they will eat at all times, when small enough to be swallowed whole, or not too hard to be broken. While Pipits will dash a snail, Thrush-fashion, against a stone, in order to fracture its shell, Wagtails do not seem to have acquired the necessary knowledge to do so; at any rate, I have never seen them attempt it.

An Aviary Conservatory.

The door of the house described was made to open outwards, so that it did not interfere with any of the inside arrangements, and inside was a wire-covered rustic porch, clothed with creepers, and having an inner door of wire netting to guard against the escape of the birds when entering the house, and also enabling the door to be left open when desired.

A number of plants in pots could be placed upon the pathways when occasion required, and in this way the aviary was made to do good service as a conservatory. There was no better way of treating a plant that had become attacked by green fly, elsewhere, than by leaving it to the birds for a day or two. A Wren, which occupied the aviary along with the Wagtails, was the chief instrument in this connection.

How I Manage My Canaries.

By TOM ELSEGOOD.

The Canary year is supposed to commence in October. Choose from the year's breeding what you want to breed with next season and you will then know what you have for sale. Now we have nothing but the stock birds to consider during the winter months. A little niger seed (a ¼ teaspoonful) twice a week in the coldest weather will keep the hens from being egg-bound when breeding time comes round; but be sure that it is good.

It should be black and bright, not a grey and dull. Do not get the penny packets as sold on market stalls, but buy all your seed at a shop where they sell large quantities; it will be much fresher and more reliable.

Be very particular about the cages; keep them clean, and fresh sand on the bottom every week; seed and water fresh every day, and when you fill up the seed hoppers blow out the chaff first and wipe out the water glasses with a clean cloth before you fill them again, or they very soon become slimy and bad. Start to give the cocks a little egg-food about twice a week, say in the middle of February, and the hens a month later.

When to Pair Up.

The middle of April is quite soon enough to commence breeding, and gives ample time to get three nests from each hen—unless the breeder has kept birds a year or two, as he is able to tell better if there is anything wrong with the birds; of this there is a great risk when breeding early.

Be sure you do not pair up before your birds are ready. The cocks will all be on full song and should be kept in separate cages until you pair. The hens do not matter; let them fly together in large, roomy cages, and this treatment will bring you success later on.

Make a list of your hens when you put them into their breeding cages; number them so that you will know them all through the season, as you are bound to change them into different cages. Thoroughly clean the cage you had a nest in or you will be troubled with red-mite.

I never saw a nest of young brought up in July without there being some in the nest, but you can keep them down if you clean the cages after each nest. The cocks will help to bring the hens on with their song.

When they are ready they will flap their wings as if they were going to fly to the top of the cage, and will put their heads out over the water glass and call to the cocks. But sometimes a week or two of fine bright weather in February will be followed by frost and cold easterly winds later; this is injurious to them, resulting in egg-binding and the starvation of the young.

When you do pair up put a little treacle in the drinking water for the hens, and give egg-food (½ teaspoonful) per day to each pair. Do not give too much or you will get them too fat and they will be unable to breed. Give them a bath every other day, also twice a week when the hen is set. If the hen does not lay in 14 days after pairing stop your egg-food, and if she lay, stop it after the first egg. Do not put any treacle in the water after she has finished laying.

Concerning the Nest.

Hang the nest on a screw inside the cage the day after they are paired. Do not give too much nesting material or some hens will make a large nest, and that is sure to sweat the young.

Get a few pot eggs, and when the eggs are laid substitute a dummy until the evening of the third day. Place the real eggs in a box containing some bran with a number on the box corresponding with the one on the cage; you will then know which they belong to. When the third egg is laid replace them and mark the date. The fertile ones will all hatch out 14 days later.

Take out the cock when you replace the eggs. Give egg-food three times a day when feeding young, and lettuce and groundsell when three days old. Be sure that it is perfectly fresh, and on no account let it be frosted or it will kill both the hen and the young.

Remove all old green food every night so that they will have nothing but fresh to start with in the morning. There is a difference in hens; some will feed and some will not. That is impossible to tell until the first round. If you have a hen that will not feed, next time let the cock stay with her; he will generally feed, but I do not like it unless the hen will not feed, as the cock feeds the hen as well as the young, which causes her to stay on the nest too much, which sweats the young.

The Young Ones Hatched.

The down on the young should be dry and should resemble a ball of wool. If they are sweated it sticks to the body and looks wet, and they are almost sure to die.

When the young are about 14 days old and the nest is getting dirty outside get another one ready. Make it yourself with not much material in it. Take out the old one, transfer the young to the new nest and hang in the same place. Take the old nest out of the room and clean and disinfect at once, in order to get rid of the red-mite which will be in the nest.

When the young leave the nest stop all green food. Put a vessel with crushed hemp and another with water on the cage bottom between the perches, so that the dirt from the birds does not drop in. Continue with the egg-food, and in about another ten days they should be pecking hemp. Then spread a little maw seed on, or among the egg-food, and in a few days more they will be ready for taking away. But continue to give the egg-food once a day, adding more biscuit to it, together with ordinary white seed with the hemp. Of course, you must have white seed and water outside the cage in order to teach them to put their heads through the holes.

If you have a garden grow some Nasturtiums and let the young have plenty of the flowers; they are a splendid thing.

Before you pair again go through the cages and thoroughly clean them. I will not dwell on the subject of moulting, except to say that if a bird needs any special care at any time it is, in my opinion, when they are moulting. Keep them free from draughts and let them have free use of the bath. This keeps them much tighter in feather.

If you are going in for colour feeding make a point of getting a good reliable brand of colour-feed, as this goes a long way towards perfecting a show bird.

Egg-Food.

Boil an egg 15 minutes; just crack the shell and drop it into cold water until quite cold. Then take off the shell, cut the white in two and take out the yolk. If there is any dark substance covering it be sure and wipe it off with a cloth. Then I use a small tin sieve; the bottom is perforated with small round holes, and the sieve is sold at the penny stalls in markets. Put the yolk in this and press through with your thumbs into a basin.

Get some common tea biscuits (four to one egg) and put them through a mill. Mix well together or the birds will pick out the egg and leave the biscuit. Keep your food in a cellar where it is cool, and do not use it if it is at all sour, or you will regret the consequences.

It only remains to be said that the mouth of a pipe bringing water into an aviary, as here described, ought to be securely guarded by close netting, or gauze, to keep out undesirable intruders. It is safer that this should be done both at the point of entrance and exit; and, when circumstances permit of a choice being made, it will be found that if the rose of the pipe in the pond is kept in shallow water, more insect life, etc., will enter it than if it had been situated in deeper water.

Wagtails were the birds for which the aviary was originally constructed, but it is easy to call up many other species for which such a house would be equally well suited. Most of the small Warblers, Pipits, Chats, and Flycatchers would be harmless, and at home, in such surroundings, and even some of the smaller Sandpipers would be a welcome addition. The great temptation is to overcrowd an aviary with inmates, and few things, as many bird-lovers know to their cost, are more fatal to real success. Verbum sat sapienti.

A Chat on a Few Fascinating Foreign Birds.

By R. J. WATTS.

One of the most fascinating and instructive hobbies of the present time is Aviculture, and one branch of this in particular, viz., The Study of Foreign Birds. Owing to the large importation of foreign birds to this country during the last few years many people are now able to keep small collections in aviaries and cages.

It is a great mistake to think, as many do, that because some of these little creatures are natives of warm countries, they cannot live out of doors in our climate; but of this I will write later.

The Construction of an Aviary.

I will take it for granted that the reader is about to start an aviary for foreign birds; a few hints about the construction of same will be the first thing to mention. A nice warm corner or wall is necessary, well sheltered from north-east winds.

But how many birds and what species are you going to keep? I can imagine someone saying: "Oh, I want a mixed collection." Well, you may keep them, but it will not do to turn in any birds you chance to buy, or there will soon be trouble, owing to the quarrelsome nature of some birds.

If you have sufficient room divide your aviary into two parts, and this will enable you to keep a larger variety than if you had only one place.

A shed must be built for shelter from wet, and an extension should be erected for the birds to fly about in. A framework of deal can be made and then covered with wire-netting of half-inch mesh.

Some aviaries are double-wired as a means of protection from cats, but it is not necessary. My aviaries are only single-wired, and although cats abound in the neighbourhood, I have not lost one bird through them.

A word about the door. Do not make it the whole height of your building, but just sufficient to walk through when standing upright, so that when you enter, a bird does not attempt to fly out above your head.

Some Further Aviary Matters.

We will now suppose that the aviary has been built with the wire division down the centre making two parts which we will call A and B; these will want fitting up to suit their tenants. For instance, in the A division keep small Parrakeets, Love-birds, etc., as these birds do not require any cover for nesting purposes. A good number of strong twigs and sticks should be nailed about, preferably with the bark on, as all the Parrot family are extremely fond of something to nibble at and it is always good policy to keep them well employed.

Water and seed should be given in pans. The best for the purpose are the ordinary flower-pot saucers of about eight or nine inches diameter and about two inches deep. These are suitable for both A and B. divisions.

A word of warning here with regard to the water pans; keep them well scrubbed every few days or they will soon get very green, and this is not good for the health of the birds.

In the B division some small Finch-like birds should be kept; the names and treatment of suitable inmates I will mention later on. As the majority of them build large nests of dried grass a considerable amount of clover will be necessary.

The Shrub Difficulty.

After trying many shrubs, etc., which unless continually renewed soon get pulled to pieces, I found that large bunches of furze (gorse) or broom to be most suitable, as it lasts a long time and does not cost much to renew. In spite of its prickly nature small foreign birds readily build in it. If possible a piece of turf or grass should be allowed to grow, but unless the aviary is a large one, it is best to do without it and keep the floor covered with sand. I use the red building sand and have a cartload at a time, this only costs a few shillings and lasts nearly a year.

One of the secrets of the successful keeping of birds is cleanliness. Keep your aviaries and cages clean and you will be amply repaid by seeing your birds in perfect health and condition.

The Popular Budgerigar.

I will now describe a few birds suitable for the A division. The Budgerigar: This small parrakeet is one of the most popular and well known of foreign birds. To those who are not acquainted with it by this name, it is the little green and yellow bird so often seen at the street corner waiting to tell you your fortune for a penny.

There are two varieties of this bird, the green and the yellow, the green being the commoner of the two. A good pair can be purchased for six or seven shillings. The yellows fetch almost double the price. Their treatment is very simple, the staple diet being Canary seed and white millet, with a little green food such as a piece of apple or a few heads of grass (with seed on).

These birds do not bathe, but in a wild state run in the wet grass. Another name for them is the Warbling Grass Parrakeet. They are most prolific breeders, often rearing 15 to 20 young in the season. No nest is built, but their eggs are deposited in the hole of a tree. The best substitute for this is a cocoanut husk, which can be bought (already wired for the purpose) for a few pence.

A little soaked bread and a few groats should be given when young birds are about. It is quite easy to determine the sex of these birds, the cere of the male being a bright blue and that of the female white or nut-brown during the breeding time.

Some Pretty Love-Birds.

The Madagascar Love-Bird, or, as it is better known, the Grey-Headed Love-Bird, is another pretty but decidedly nervous bird. At times these birds are so plentiful on the market that they can be bought for 2s. 6d. a pair. The male bird's plumage is as follows:—Head and shoulders Lavender grey, wings dark green, breast pale green, tail dark green with black bars. The female is all green. They require much the same treatment as the Budgerigar, with the exception that they line their nests with bark. A pair in my possession have nested twice this year. Although so common it is a nice bird for the aviary.

The Red-Faced Love-Bird is a decidedly handsome bird, the colour being very deep. But the bird is not quite so hardy as the preceding species.

When well acclimatised these are of very little trouble. White and spray millet is the best food for them, and it is difficult to make them eat any other. The plumage of the male bird is rich velvety green, with a deep red square on the front of the head. The female is very similar, usually a little pale red. But the most reliable way to tell the sex is by the shoulder or butt of the wing; this is dark blue on the male and yellow on the female.

The Blue Wing Love-Bird is another nice little bird, smaller than any of the others mentioned but requiring about the same treatment. It is rather delicate on its arrival here.

The Peach-Faced Love-Bird is not likely to be met with, as of late years few specimens have reached this country. But should the reader be fortunate enough to secure a pair, I advise him to keep them in a cage, as they are very quarrelsome in the aviary. In fact, all the Love-Birds are very nervous and will sometimes turn on their companions without any known reason.

Many other birds can be kept, but it depends on the size and accommodation of the aviary; a few of the larger parakeets that can be easily kept are Cockatiels, Red-rumps, Rosellas and Blossom Heads, but all these require a considerable amount of space, and unless this can be provided, it is best to keep them out. Above all, do not overcrowd, or you will have a chapter of accidents.

We will now see what tenants will be required for the B division. As the varieties to choose from are so large it will be best to mention a few of the most desirable and least expensive.

A Showy Little Chap.

The Zebra Finch is a little bird and is a native of Australia. The male, a showy little chap, is full of pride. His plumage is very pretty, wings brownish grey, beak red, breast has black and white stripes across. The under parts are white, the sides are chestnut with white spots, the tail black with white bars. There is also a bright chestnut patch on each side of the head.

The hen bird is nearly all grey, with white markings on head and tail. The male bird has a peculiar little call which he is very fond of rehearsing.

These birds are extremely good breeders in a small aviary, building a large nest of hay. They lay four or five pure white eggs (nearly all the small foreign finches lay white eggs) which are hatched in about a fortnight. The young birds on leaving the nest are like the hen and do not assume full plumage until the first moult. The food consists of Canary seed, white and Indian millet.

The Waxbill Family.

This includes many birds, the majority of which are very small, and I must say they are most beautiful and interesting. The following are most frequently met with:—The Grey Waxbill, St. Helena Waxbill, Orango Cheek Waxbill, Zebra or Golden Breast Waxbill (do not confuse this with Zebra Finch) Cordon Bleu, Lavender Finch and Avadavats (two species green and red).

The Zebra, or Golden-Breasted Waxbill, is one of the smallest foreign birds, being only two or three inches from tip of beak to tail. The Cordon Bleu is also a very handsome little bird. Many of these will build nests and lay eggs, but very seldom rear young. Sometimes one is fortunate. Last year I successfully reared in my aviary a nest of the red Avadavats and they have again this year built a nest.

The food is chiefly millet, both white and Indian; also a little Canary seed. Some live insect food should be given such as small meal-worms, and this is greatly appreciated.

*A Brave Cockatoo.

The following story is told of Charles Durand, who owned a Cockatoo. He was asleep in his tent, his Cockatoo with him, when he was aroused by the bird saying "Time to rise," before his usual time. He looked about and found a deadly snake coiled against his bed which reared up and prepared to spring at the defenceless man. The brave bird sprang from his perch and seized the reptile's neck. The snake was then killed. —Sent by ARTHUR RICHARDSON (age 13), Pollington, Snaith, S.O.

*A Hawk and its Prey.

A friend of mine lives in the country, and being a lover of birds, purchased two brown Linnets from a shop in our town. He hung them in the daytime on the wall outside his house, the house being in a quiet place surrounded by a large garden. He was standing outside listening to the birds singing and fluttering about, when he was a little surprised on turning round to see a Hawk sailing round about watching the two little birds in the cage. He was fearless, coming nearer and nearer. My friend did not want to go into the house to frighten the Hawk away, so he called to his wife to fetch him his gun and two cartridges. The Hawk only being about twenty-five yards away, he got a fair shot at it and brought it down to the ground in pieces like fluff and feathers.—MAY BEADNALL (age 13), 7, Albany Street, Middlesboro.'

The Misfortunes of a Hot Day.

When walking one day through a rookery near Repton, I saw sitting on a tree about five feet from the ground a young Rook, looking very weather-beaten; his parents had evidently deserted him. I caught him, took him home, and kept him in a large box cage for about a fortnight. I fed him on bread and milk. Then I got tired of him and let him go, doing my best to frighten him away, but he would not go. So I continued to feed him, and he fed himself on strawberries, cherries, etc. I then brought him to my home in Derbyshire, and he lived in the garden for about eight weeks. One day I went to feed him. He was nowhere to be found. It was a hot summer's day. In trying to get a drink from a tub, the water was too low and he overbalanced; being in the dead moult he couldn't fly out, and so was drowned.—F. C. NODDER (aged 15), Ashover Rectory, near Chesterfield.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Wintry Weather.

The cold north-east wind has been blowing for the past week, and there is now every sign of incoming bad weather. Such a complete change from the damp mild conditions prevailing since the early autumn cannot but affect the wild life of the countryside. Somehow, under the present cold snap birds appear more numerous than usual. Blackbirds, Thrushes, and Finches crowd the hedgerows and sheltered places. The grassland is dotted with groups of Redwings, Fieldfares, and Starlings, while the bigger Rooks are plentiful everywhere. Evidently the wild birds have deserted the outlying fields and woods, and are drawing nearer the houses and open gardens. I can easily count a dozen or so of Thrushes busy upon the grass round the house; big bold fellows they are, with prominent spotted breasts and quick alert ways, for they are now full of health and condition. They have fared sumptuously, and many of them have been in song. If the frost continues they will need a big reserve of flesh to help them through a wintry spell. When crossing the Downs yesterday we picked up a dead Redwing. The bird had apparently been wounded by gunshot, and fallen in a cart rut, and evidently died quickly. When examined he was found to be loaded with fat, so much so, that the breast-bone could hardly be felt by pressure. One wonders how many of his companions lost their lives in the same way. The Redwing is a full, plump, broad-shouldered bird, quite differently shaped to the other Thrushes, but he is every bit as handsome, the bright eye stripe and rich splash of red by the side of the body and under the wing making identification an easy task to the most ignorant in birdy matters. Although the Redwing is a native of more northern climes, he is not by any means an exceptionally hardy bird. While food is plentiful, he is able to keep himself in excellent health and condition, and to do so he will be continually upon the move, invariably getting further south away from the frost and snow. When a general frost prevails all over the country he is as badly off as any of the Thrushes, and it is doubtful if under such conditions our resident birds are not better able to withstand the hard times. These latter will forage round the houses, gardens, and farm buildings, but it is very seldom the Redwings and Fieldfares leave the shelter of the hedgerows and the security of the open fields.

Variable Colour of Eggs.

I have seen it somewhere suggested that the cause of some species of birds producing eggs varying so much in colour and markings is explained by the food they eat. No doubt some birds vary their food considerably. Whitethroats inhabiting a certain district may feed upon an insect greatly infesting the underwood, others may feed upon something quite different. Possibly the greatest variation in the colour of birds' eggs is found in a colony of Guillemots. Now these birds feed exclusively upon fish, and as far as one is able to judge there is no apparent difference in the fish they catch, and yet in the same colony one is able to find an extraordinary variation in the egg colour and markings. The ground colours are white, cream, pale blue, yellowish green, reddish brown, dark green, with almost every other shade between these that can be imagined. The markings vary almost as much, ranging from brown to pink. With all this variation in colour and markings, the eggs are invariably pear-shaped.

When Birds Mate.

No doubt many wild birds pair during the autumn and winter months, for we are constantly having evidence of this brought home to us while roaming the fields and hedgerows during the short days. Sometimes it is a small flock of Linnets we disturb from the stubble, or a gathering of Missel Thrushes from the meadow land. In each case we notice how they invariably fly off in pairs. During the last few days the Robins have been having some curious pranks; it certainly is early for courting, as we are a long way from the time of wild primroses and sweet violets, but one can give no other name to the cut-cries of these Redbreasted tyrants. Master Robin evidently knows that his red waistcoat is a big asset in his courtship business, for he pushes it to the front, throwing back his head until it almost touches the root of his tail, twittering sweetly the while to his lady. No doubt, if we were able to watch other wild birds as closely, we should find this early pairing much more common than we suppose.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

To Messrs. AVISINE CO.

"Many thanks for the Bottle of Avisine. The first bottle used did my Finch so much good. He had been very bad with bronchitis, but the Avisine gave him great relief, and he is wonderfully better. I think without doubt it is the best medicine on the market for birds with colds, etc. I shall recommend it to all my bird friends."—A. B. Craddock, Buctgerell Lodge, Honiton. "Please send me another 2/6 bottle of Avisine by return."—F. Bishop, Water Street, Martock, Somerset. "Enclosed find 2/7 for another bottle of Avisine. The Cock Canary mentioned is getting better and I want to try it on some birds that are in the soft moult and want to show them."—W. H. Davies, 4, Powell's Houses, Blackwood, Mon. "I have tried your Avisine on one of my birds which was ailing and it has made a Wonderful Cure, after several medicines for birds. It is indeed the best I have ever tried and I shall recommend it to all my fellow fanciers. Please forward 8 sixpenny bottles and 2 shilling ones for my friends."—John Lingard, Piccadilly Road, Burnley. "I have given your Avisine three days' trial, which has proved wonderful."—Yours, C. Curtis, 6, Olive Square, Nottingham.

Avisine has made for itself a name and will go forward as no other bird medicine ever has done. Avisine has a future; and is no flash in the pan; it has Solid Merits which are every day asserting themselves. Send to-day for a bottle; to-morrow you will swear by Avisine. We would ask those who received free Samples for their opinion either to us or to this paper. Sir,—Please send following. The birdlime I had from you is best I ever used. I caught a Greenfinch one day, and while it was hanging on twig a Hawk came along to take it, but he got caught as well, and with all his trying to get off he could not. Yours, A. Searle." "21, Belgrave, Wilnecote. Sir,—The two Linnets I had off you are in grand song day and night, and as tame as Robins. Please send following. Yours, D. Hare." "1, Ranson-terrace, Haswell-Moor. Sir,—Received three Linnets all right, and they are champions. They were singing in box as I carried them. Yours, J. Marman." "Bridge-street, Nailsworth. Sir,—Its a pleasure to do business with you. The two special Siberian Goldfinches arrived safe in splendid condition, they are perfect beauties, one having already been singing. With thanks for the way you have always served me. Yours, C. Dauncey." "143, Church-street. Sir,—Siberian Goldfinch arrived in fine condition, and I am exceeding well pleased, he is hard to find fault with. The one I had from you two years ago won first prize in a class of 11 is still in fine form and song. Yours, W. McQueen." Please note everything is sent on approval on CAGE BIRDS deposit rules, or on receipt of cash, and money fully refunded if every satisfaction not given. For honest value at fair price, I solicit one trial.

YOU NEEDN'T BELIEVE

a word of what I say about my Rollers unless you like, but the letters given below say more for them than I could ever say myself. It must be admitted that there is something special about my "Leipzig Rollers," otherwise the sale of them would not go on year after year like it does. I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in United Kingdom. The public know when they hear a good bird, therefore my sales keep increasing by leaps and bounds. I have a grand stock of St. Andreasberg Hollow Rollers, all direct from Leipzig. All guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long, hollow, double rolls, sweet silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, nightingale jug-jug, bell harp, and du-du pipes, etc., etc., and guaranteed entirely free from linnet, lark or any other harsh notes, price 7/6 and 5/6 each. Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass rolls, 10/- each. Also a few special Seifert strain, contest masters, price 15/- each. These contest birds are not Seifert strain simply because I call them so, but are guaranteed pure Seifert blood from the original strain, and are gems of the very first water. Pure Roller hens, guaranteed same strain as above cocks, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple. Also a grand lot of exceptionally loud, free-singing Hartz cocks, in full vigorous song, every bird guaranteed to sing for 20 hours out of the 24, price 5/6 each, three 15/-, or seven 31/6. Hartz hens, 2/- each, 3/6 couple. Roller song cabinets, with folding doors, made specially for my Rollers, 2/6 each. Magnificent solid brass drawing-room hanging cages, with ruby cut glass round, opal feeders, richly-decorated bottoms, 5/-, 6/6, 7/6, and 10/6 each. These cages are being sold at wholesale prices, and every one is quite new, direct from factory, and worth double price asked. See following few letters:—"88, Trafalgar-street, Sheffield, January 6th.—Sir,—Received Seifert cock Friday last, and going on very nicely; please send two hens to match.—Yours, A. Hukin." "Lampeter, January 6th.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe and commenced singing as soon as unpacked. I am quite satisfied, and shall always give you my orders in future.—Yours, L. Davies." "I, Silk-street, Salford, January 5th.—Sir,—I am perfectly satisfied with the contest Roller you sent. I have tried several, but he is certainly the best I have ever heard, and well worth the money. It is not necessary for me to have a week's trial, I find two days quite enough.—Yours, W. McDonald." "32, Podlands-street, Leek, January 4th.—Sir,—Received Roller all right, and was singing when I went home at night; I heard him as soon as I opened the door. I am very well satisfied, as he is a good one. —Yours, W. Leedham." "Fleur de Lys, January 2nd.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe and in good condition despite the cold weather. Thanking you for same.—Yours, F. Tanner." "Gt. George-street, Godalming, January 3rd.—Sir,—Birds arrived safe. I am very well pleased with them. Good value for money.—Yours, W. Hayward." "23, Sparshalt-road, Barking, January 3rd.—Sir,—Birds arrived safe, and very satisfactory.—Yours, E. Drayton." "The Siding, Rogerstone, Newport.—Sir,—I have instructed Editor to hand you deposit for Roller, as I am quite satisfied with him.—Yours, R. Hugh." "55, Darwin-street, Bolton.—Sir,—Roller was singing five minutes after I unpacked it, and I am quite satisfied with it after having it a full week. —Yours, H. Ledwards." "Nottingham.—Sir,—Roller quite satisfactory, and continually singing.—Yours, H. Richardson." "382, High-road, Tottenham.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and am well pleased with him; he commenced singing this morning.—Yours, H. Goodman." "Lampeter.—Sir,—Roller turned out very satisfactory. Have sold it for a fair profit to-day. Shall order again shortly.—Yours, L. Davies." "High-street, Berkhamsted.—Sir,—Roller is an excellent songster, and gives every satisfaction. Am sending for few more shortly.—Yours, W. Rickard." "21, Derby-street, Burton.—Sir,—Received Roller safely. I am delighted with it, and have never dealt with a more straightforward man than you; in fact, I defy anyone to get a better songster than the one you sent me. It started singing before being caged five minutes. I would not take double the money for it, although I have only had it to-day.—Yours, P. Catchpole." "2, Pit-row, Lintz, Burnopfield.—Sir, —Rollers arrived safe, and am well pleased with them. The cock started singing soon after arrival, and they are in pink of health. I shall want more from you.—Yours, H. Cresswell." "329, Cardiff-road, Aberaman.—Sir,—Received Roller quite safe, and am well satisfied with him.—Yours, J. Laurence." "2, Graham's-buildings, Hillhouse-lane, Huddersfield.—Sir,—Received Roller safely, and am very well pleased with him. This bird has the song I wanted.—Yours, E. Schofield." "Thornhill, Dumfriesshire.—Sir,—Received Roller safely, and am very well pleased with it. He is a nice bird and sings very sweetly. I shall be pleased to recommend you to any friends wanting a songster.—Yours, R. Davidson." "St. Paul's-road, Jarrow.—Sir,—Roller arrived all well, and is singing splendid. He wasn't five minutes in the house before he started. An uncle of mine got one from you two years ago, and it still sings splendidly.—Yours, Mrs. Sigswell." Every Roller sold by me is sent on full week's trial either on receipt of cash or deposit with CAGE BIRDS, and unless fullest satisfaction is given money fully refunded. I do not merely say these "Leipzig Rollers" are as good as others; I distinctly say they are better, and to prove this to your own satisfaction I ask you to have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price, test them side by side for a week, and keep the one which suits you best. Unless I was confident that my birds were better than others, I could not afford to make this offer. I am sole importer of this strain of Rollers, and if you would be certain of getting a genuine Leipzig Roller, see that the name "Hans Weber, Leipzig," is stamped on the bird's wing. Remember, no one else can get one feather of this strain unless purchased from me, so send to the fountain head and be sure of getting what you want. Bear in mind, full week's trial allowed at my sole risk during the whole time, and every penny of your money returned to you if bird fails to come up to your every expectation.

Hummel Rollers.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll, vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12s. 6d.; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3s. each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15s. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5s. and 7s. 6d. each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 26s. each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, Loudon.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill, December 1st, 1901. Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it. Miss F. Blockett. December 1st., Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire. Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song. W. Glover, to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London.

These have come from birds I have sent hundreds of miles from Preston. Mrs. Downs, Chelmsford Road, Dublin, writes, Oct. 30th, 1907—"Thanks for the beautiful Roller. He arrived safely about 11 today, none the worse for the journey. He is a beautiful colour, and has a lovely voice. I like him well; he is singing over my head this moment. I want a nice cage for him; send on price of one." Mr. Glenny, Bachelors' Walk, Dublin, Oct., 1907—"Sir, am pleased with Roller, which arrived safe. He is singing continually night and day since he arrived. Scores of testimonials like this. If above not proof enough, send for catalogue and scores more testimonials. Mr. J. Patterson, Cork, Ireland—"Sir, I think it only right you should know that the Roller you sent me won the All Ireland Roller Singing Contest, held here November 8th and 9th." Mr. McConquodall, Greenock, Scotland—"Sir, received Roller and box cage safe; he was singing half an hour after I got him. He is the best songster I ever had. The cage is most suitable." Mr. H. Brooks, Wakefield, Yorks.—Sir, the Hartz Roller to hand. He is a splendid bird and sang under three minutes after caged. He sings in the gaslight; first thing in the morning. I have given twice as much for German Rollers not half as good as this from you." Proper singing Roller box cages, 1/6; enamelled inside and out, inlaid fronts, sand drawers; beauties, 1/16 each; approval with any; established 1879.

. THE . TRUTH.

When I tell you my stock of Birds, Cages, Aviaries, and other Birds' Requisites is the largest and most varied in the United Kingdom you are hearing the plain unvarnished truth. If you only pay a visit you will see it is correct. Customers who have done so have told me that the size of my premises and stock has far exceeded their expectations. Everybody should know that I can give better value for money than anyone else in the trade. It will save you money if you will only heed this point. I keep a wonderful variety, but my lowest quality starts at good and goes up. All my goods are choice, none more excellent.

The prices are as hard to match as the birds.

All birds are sent out on the understanding that, if after one week's trial they do not satisfy the customer, the bird can be returned and exchanged for another.

I solicit a trial order and guarantee satisfaction.

To all who read this I am anxious to give an opportunity of seeing my 104 paged catalogue. Fully illustrated with requisites needed by all who are interested in birds. I will send this on receipt of two penny stamps to cover postage.

YORKSHIRES. YORKSHIRES.

Finest and largest collection in Great Britain of this variety. Excellent choice in clears, ticked, and Cinnamon-marked, all of the correct type and quality. 1908 Unsolicited Opinions 1908

Please look the following through, it proves the Testimonials I publish are not the exception, but the RULE. I am open to display thousands, all recently received, to anyone wishing to see them. My stock is by a very, very long way different to anything that ever has been seen or that can be seen now anywhere, independent of all the "Bluff" and absurd claims of some. When such will come out into the open, and stop hiding their shining lights under the proverbial bushel, whether it is no name or a phantom one, I will contradict their challenges in a very practical manner, if no one else will.

Yours the prettiest.

9, Hyde Park-st, London, W., Jan. 3rd, 1908.—Mrs. Kelly begs to thank Mr. Rudd for the two lovely looking birds just arrived, none the worse for their journey, and they were beautifully packed. I have put with my other birds, but yours are the prettiest.

No chopping.

NOTICE.

When you require Birds for breeding, it is no us purchasing good Birds if not correctly matched. Hence the great necessity of having them selected by a person that you have every confidence in as to that knowledge. If you know yourself say how you wish them matched. If not, leave it to me and you shall have the most careful attention, and they shall be right.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be preceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

SINGING CONTESTS.

LEEDS.

Usual weekly contest was held at the King's Head, Shannon-street, when 18 birds sang for three good prizes given by Mr. W. Tillottson: 1st prize, C. Bibs; 2nd, T. Johnson; 3rd, W. Fisher. Judges, Messrs. Hardcastle and Cooper.—T. SUMMERS, hon. sec.

BLACKBURN.

The Blackburn L.S.A. held their week-end singing contest on 4th, at headquarters, when 11 birds competed for three prizes given by J. Harrison. Prize winners: 1, Topping; 2, Blackshaw; 3, Bayhurst.—R. BAYHURST, Sec.

YORK.

Usual weekly contest took place at the Crown Inn, North Street, when 22 birds competed for five good prizes. Some very good quality singing was heard. The following were the principal prize winners: 1, 3, Massheder; 2, Milner; 4, Stothard; 5, Moore. Judge, Mr. Perry. Timekeeper, J. Mason.—J. W. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

PENTONVILLE.

Linnet and Chaffinch handicaps took place during the week. Both classes of birds made very poor singing, but owing to notice in CAGE BIRDS, January 4th, a match has been arranged between Mr. Edwards and Mr. Frank Rab, Chaffinch against Chaffinch. 1st race takes place Simmond's "Blue Anchor," Shoreditch, January 12th, at 8.30. 2nd race, January 14th, 8.30, at the "Bee Hive," Cynthia-street, Pentonville. Harry Hacks represents "Bee Hive," Dick Eastopp ("Natty") "Blue Anchor." It is expected a close contest will be the result. For other races see CAGE BIRDS.—F. WESTMORE, Timekeeper.

WARRINGTON.

A Linnet singing contest for time singing was held at the Alexandra Inn on January 4th, when a large number of entries were posted and some capital singing was heard, especially considering the time of year. It was almost cold enough for snow. It gave Warrington fanciers great pleasure to see so many turn up from Wigan and Bedford Leigh, some of them taking prizes back with them. The results are as follows:—1st, Tarmitage; 2nd, 4th, G. Trynor; 3rd, 5th, J. Jones. Judges, Messrs. J. Ball and T. Crawford. Timekeeper, Mr. H. Stanway.—J. W. MATHER, Secretary.

Warrington.—All England Contest for time singing, Alexandra Inn, Warrington, on Saturday, the 10th Jan., when the landlord, Mr. R. Thompson, will add 6d. per bird to an entrance fee of 1/- per bird towards prizes. Hoping to get a bumper from our North country friends again.—J. W. Mather, sec.—(Advt.)

YORK.

The 30th annual Linnet singing contest was held at the Bricklayer's Arms, Hungate, York., on Boxing Day, when there was a record entry. It was the largest contest ever held in York; upwards of 60 birds faced the judge, whose awards gave every satisfaction. The singing was very good for the time of the year. Mr. Wm. Empson arranged a prize for every competitor, the following being the principal prize-winners: 1, Oldroyd; 2, Massheder; 3, J. Paver; 4, J. Moore; 5, Highflier; 6, T. Lightfoot; 7, Bill; 8, Jackson; 9, Farmer; 10, Squib; 11, O. Garra; 12, White Knight, and 46 minor prizes. A very successful contest was brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the prize donors. Mr. J. Paver judged. Mr. T. Limbert officiated as timekeeper.—WM. EMPSON.

Usual weekly contest also held, when 24 birds faced the judge, Mr. Wm. Empson. Six prizes were up for competition. The singing was fairly good considering the severe wintry weather at present. The awards gave every satisfaction:—1st, T. Limbert; 2nd, H. Allan; 3rd, T. Limbert; 4th, Laverick; 5th, Watson; 6th, Paver. Judge, T. Payer. Timekeeper, J. Limbert, sen.—WM. EMPSON.

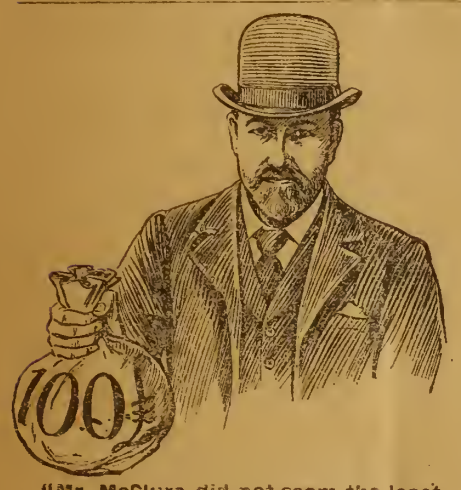
A RECORD PRICE.



SENSATIONAL HAPPENING AT PAISLEY SHOW.

Two Winning Scotch Fancy Canaries Claimed off the Bench for £50 Each.

At Paisley Show, held on New Year's Day, a most sensational incident occurred, one which set the fanciers present agog with excitement, and brought about such an outpouring of broad Scotch comment as is seldom heard in these staid times. It was no less than the claiming at catalogue price, £50 each, of two Scotch Fancy Canaries. This is the tallest figure ever paid, we believe, for specimens of this particular breed. Our account below, written by a special representative of CAGE BIRDS, gives full details of this history-making deal, and we are able to give a portrait of the breeder of the two birds, Mr. W. McClure, and some details of his career.

From our own Special Representative.

Our Representative writes:—On the first day of the show I was there early, and early in the afternoon I learned "quietly" that an offer of £60 had been made and refused for two Scotch Fancies, but that their owner, Mr. McClure had no desire to sell, even for this tempting offer. On the second day of the show, late in the afternoon, I learned that an amended offer had been made of £70, which, however, had met with the same success as the £60 one. Mr. McClure would not part! The would-be purchaser, seeing his offers were no use, at once went to the Secretary, and claimed the two birds at the catalogue price, £50 each, and got his receipt for the money, £100. He then went at once to Mr. McClure, and told him he had bought the birds at catalogue price, in spite of him. I saw Mr. McClure immediately after, and I can assure you he did not seem the least pleased. I said: Mr. McClure, this is a record transaction; is it true and straight? He replied: "Yes; perfectly true"; and added: "If I had known, I would have bought them in myself, as the birds were worth more to me than his £100. But it is too late now, and I am very sorry. Mr. A. Allerdice, of Overtown, has bought them, but not for himself, I feel pretty sure of that,—but for some one in Carlisle, so I hear it rumoured."

"Mr. McClure did not seem the least pleased."

I also saw Mr. Allerdice and got his story. He told me the birds were for himself, that it was a pure speculation, and he was quite prepared to put up with the result, whatever it might be.

The receipt was made out in Mr. Allerdice's name, so to all intents and purposes, he is the purchaser. If he has bought for someone else, then we have nothing to do with it, and can only look to him as being the owner, seeing the receipt was in his name. Still, this record sale did take place, and is genuine throughout; that is the main point.

The Man with the Money.

The subject of our sketch, Mr. Wm. McClure, of Somerville Drive, Mount Florida, Glasgow, is one of the best known breeders and most successful exhibitors in the West of the Scotch Fancy Canary. He has been a breeder of the Fancy for over 25 years, and throughout, he says, his sole aim and motto has been to breed specimens, good in body, wing and tail, for the show bench—good back, fine drive and wave go together, he says. The crowning point of his efforts in the above direction (the breeding of show specimens) was reached on Thursday, January 2nd, 1908, the day of Paisley show—a date which will long be remembered in the ornithological world. Mr. McClure, being a member, has for many years associated himself with the Paisley Association, and has also been an exhibitor for some years, and has been (as elsewhere) very successful in carrying off some of the principal prizes, including Cups and Gold Badges, etc. each year. He is the winner and owner of five Silver Cups, 33 Gold Badges, and many medals, including 10 out of 12 Glasgow Derby wins. This is his first year as a member of the National Derby, where his buff Foul cock won the Cup and Gold Badge. This bird is the winner of many firsts this season, being designated the Champion young buff Foul Cock of the year. The Buff Pied Hen was bred by that well-known breeder, Mr. McLennan, of Edinburgh, being the best young hen of the year, and also a notable winner of many firsts. The hen was the runner up for the Derby Cup. The crowning point of our subject's career was reached, as previously intimated, at Paisley show, when two of his gems were claimed at catalogue price, viz. £50 each, £100 in all, a record price for one pair. Those who had the good fortune to be present will remember the sensation caused when the sale became known. Mr. McClure, indeed, was the only man who seemed to keep cool. He declared he would rather have had the birds than the £100, and those who know our friend's quiet way believe these to be true words. The purchaser, Mr. A. Allerdice, of Overtown, near Wishaw, is to be congratulated on his pluck, and we wish him every success. The buff Foul cock was bred from Mr. McClure's old champion yellow cock, a bird with a splendid record of wins, and a buff hen belonging to Mr. McLennan, Edinburgh, another noted winner. The cock and hen are both the best young birds of the year, and, as will be seen, spring from the best of stock. In conclusion, I may state that Mr. McClure told me he believes the birds are for Allerdice himself, and for no other. Anyway, he got the £100, less commission on sale, and his sole aim now will be to breed something to beat the two just sold, if he can.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL SHOW.

Our artist, Mr. Norman, who journeyed to this famous Edinburgh Show, jots down a few impressions for readers of CAGE BIRDS.

The Committee can heartily congratulate themselves upon the splendid success of this show. They deserved this success, for no body of fanciers could have done more. The exhibits were not left to the chance attention of a passing steward, but each man had a section under his care and was answerable for its welfare. Any ailing birds were at once taken to the cosy office and there looked after in a manner that suggests itself to only genuine fanciers.

The Secretary, Mr. James Winter, was in attendance throughout the show and was always ready and willing to give advice or information. Messrs. L. J. Arrighi and J. F. Dewar were here, there and everywhere—ready to lend a hand wherever wanted. The veteran staging expert, Mr. D. Kinlayside, was busy, as usual, with saw and hammer, and the generally fine appearance of the show owed much to his skill.

Among a host of other workers we especially noticed Miss Waddell in close attendance with the Foreign Section; she was at her post both days, and the healthy, cheerful condition of the birds was sufficient evidence of her skill.

Every Scotchman appears to be a born fancier of British birds, consequently at the National Show one is able to see such a collection as is seldom on view. As a class we consider the Goldfinches superior to the Bullies, although there were one or two good birds among the latter. Colour appeared to be the chief attraction, and they lacked something in shape and that bull-necked chubby appearance one so loves to see in a good specimen.

Linnets were a marvellous collection—42 all told. Shape and colour appeared to find more favour with the judge than markings; not that markings were entirely neglected, but all-round qualities were taken into consideration, which is as it should be. No one point should win in such company.

One of the surprises of the show was the excellent class of Siskins. Caps, bibs, and lacings were to be found in almost all the exhibits, and sorting them out was no easy task. There was an object-lesson in the vexed question of "to feed or not to feed?" The fed Siskins numbered 12, the non-fed 24. The fed Greenies numbered 23, the non-feds 42.

Seeing the classes side by side as we did, it was impossible to say the fed birds scored; the soft, delicate colouring of the Greenies and the effective contrasts shown by the non-fed Siskins, should make an inveterate feeder give many thoughtful moments between this and next autumn to this question. As a matter of fact, the winning Greenie in the fed class was only lightly fed; so little so, that many almost doubted if he were fed at all—a clear proof that a quantity of artificial colour is not required to enable a bird to win, even in a big class with keen competition.

The A.O.S. class was composed solely of Hawfinches, and a capital collection it was. The winner was a gem, one of those good all-round birds so difficult to obtain. In markings and colour he was excellent; the latter good throughout—as perfect round the mandibles and bib as elsewhere. He was just in front of Mr. H. J. Chick's champion, and deservedly obtained the special for the best Britisher in the show.

Another good class was that for large Soft bills. In this class were two gems—viz., Mr. John Brown's Mistle Thrush "The Stormer," and the same owner's Fieldfare. Both those birds are the best of their species we ever remember seeing on the bench. The latter took our fancy immensely, and we sincerely hope to see him again somewhere else.

It is very seldom we see a good class of Foreign Goldies in the south; even the Palace fails to attract many birds. But here was a class of 34, all toppers. Among them we noticed a singularly good specimen—good in size and shape and exceptionally brilliant in colour—a most perfect bird, exhibited by Mr. L. J. Arrighi. It failed to obtain a card. It is so full of life it soon knocks itself about in a show cage.

We hear that a good hen-Bullie is to be its partner next spring. If success follows this procedure we can foresee many specials going Edinburgh way.

It was interesting to note the various fancies of the big holiday crowd. Never once during the show (after the public were admitted) was one able to examine the Hybrids quietly; there was always a group of keen enthusiasts discussing their points. The Canary-Bullie exhibited by those keen fanciers, Messrs. Duncan and Logan, is a gem of the first water. If this cross were as easily bred as Goldie-Canaries one cannot conceive how a more perfect bird could be produced. His breast colour is sound and rich, the back a beautiful pure grey splendidly marked, and the poll and wings almost as intense as those of a good Bullie.

The lovely Redpoll-Bullie shown by Mr. C. J. Ward, commanded a great deal of attention, as was to be expected. In shape and size it is perfect, and shows a lovely flush of colour.

The dark Mule classes were well filled, which seldom happens in the south. The size of some of these birds is wonderful. Breeding them from Foreign Goldies is not answerable for all of it, because the Linnet Mules are equally as good. The colour of some of the Goldie crosses is marvellous and far exceeds that of their wild parents. It is as though the blaze was put on hot, and consequently run down the chest and away back over head and cheeks. One cannot but admire these beauties, and yet all breeders try hard to breed clears—lovely birds certainly, and of course more difficult to obtain; but for rich colouring and delightful contrast a good Dark must always catch the eye.

Among the Canaries the greatest crowds were to be found around the Scotch Fancies and Borders, and we would suggest to the officials that it would add to the comfort of all concerned if these sections were placed at opposite sides of the hall to relieve the pressure. One cannot handle carefully such highly-strung birds as Scotch Fancies without a little elbow room.

One had only to touch the cages of some of these beauties for them to at once get into position. Since our last visit north there appears to be an improvement in this section. At that time one could hardly see the shape of the bird for the rough untidy feathers; now the eye can easily follow the contour, noting the graceful curves so pronounced in this variety. The tails appear to have lost some of their stiffness, and taking them collectively the birds appear more graceful and even.

The Borders were a charming collection. These wee gems of the Fancy are certainly pushing ahead. In a few more years they will be as plentiful south as north, for they are making many friends. One enthusiast (W. Wolley Seiranac) journeyed all the way from London to see the show and to study and make notes of his favourite Fancy. We only require a few more like him, and then the north must look to its laurels.

The clear birds were of course charming models of grace and beauty. Better feather and condition it is impossible to imagine. Why don't we see it in the Norwich? Surely colour feeding isn't answerable for this? There are good feathered Norwich, we know; but taken as a class, they cannot show the delightful feathering of the Borders.

The evenmarked are always attractive, for one cannot turn them out like green peas. To breed a perfect specimen requires time and patience. The winner in the Yellow class (Messrs. Duncan and Logan's) was a real beauty. We also particularly noticed a lovely Evenmarked Cinnamon. The beautiful soft delicate colouring of this bird was charming, no vivid contrast (some would say not enough), but it was a perfect bird, with exquisite feathering. To breed such a bird should make a man a Fancier to the end of his days.

When we left the hall the officials were busily packing the exhibits, and one could see at a glance that they had a perfect method of doing so. One need not wonder that the Scottish National of 1908 made an advance of nearly four hundred entries. Such care and attention deserves success. May 1909 still further increase their reputation!

TWITTERINGS.

Kindly note my change of address, writes Mr. W. Pritchard, to 6A, South Street, Bushbury, Wolverhampton.

All prize money won at the Pendleton and Salford Show, writes Mr. W. Jackson, the sec., was paid two days after the show.

Scottish National report on Gold Lizard Class should read: 2nd and vhc, Rukin, not Whipp, writes Mr John Rukin (Rawtenstall).

Having received so many replies to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. C. Heaton (Crewe), I find it impossible to reply to all.

In Lancaster Show advertisement last week, writes the secretary, Mr. Brown, the price limit, viz., 15s., was omitted from the selling class (Class 16).

West Bromwich Show report of Hybrids credits Mr. Lees with 1st Linnet-Bullfinch, writes Mr. J. Pitchford (Stoke-on-Trent). This should read 1st J. Pitchford.

Although we had only a moderate gate, writes Mr. W. H. Davies. sec. of the Pwllheli Show, I am pleased to say we have a nice balance of £10 to go on with.

A lengthy letter on Scottish Norwich Plainhead Club matters has reached us from Mr. W. Aitchison, but it came to hand too late for us to deal with it in this issue.

We Fanciers of Bandon, writes Mr. E. C. Dawson, sec. of Bandon Bird Club, think CAGE BIRDS the paper of all papers for sound information and reports, not to mention plates.

Kindly notify my change of address, writes Mr. J. W. Bancroft, late of 123, Kestor Street, Haulgh, Bolton, Lanes.; it is now 12, Princes Drive, Marsland Road, Sale-Moor, Cheshire.

The Scottish National report credits John Robb with 2nd and 3rd in the 1907 Crested Cock or Hen Class, instead of John Noble, writes Mr. John Noble. Good luck to CAGE BIRDS!

I am a reader of your grand paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. E. H. Williams (Llanelly), and have been since the first number. I have learnt a great deal from it, and wish it every success for the future.

Kindly inform those who answered my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS that I had so many answers I could not reply to them all personally. This speaks well for your grand paper.—J. HOLKER (West Houghton).

In the Border Fancy section of the Paisley Show, writes Mr. W. Buchanan (Helensburgh), I secured the following: vhc for Yellow Cock, vhc for Buff Cock, vhc for Yellow Hen, and 5th and spl for Yellow Green Cock.

Thank you very much for your front page illustration of my Shorelark, writes Mr. H. H. Cooper (Luton). It does your artist great credit. It is most life-like. I wish CAGE BIRDS a very prosperous New Year.

The Wolverhampton and Dist. C.B.S. have moved their headquarters to the Prince Albert Hotel, at the top of the Station Drive, writes Mr. F. Howes, sec. Mr. C. B. Filkin, the proprietor, is the well-known Game Bantam Breeder.

West Bromwich Show report credits me with 1st in Any Variety Class with Belgian, writes Mr. R. E. Helliwell (Halifax). This should read Whittaker 1st, with Belgian; Helliwell 2nd, even-marked Yellow Yorkshire and spl Best Bird in Classes 4 and 9.

I cannot allow CAGE BIRDS' Coupon Scheme to pass without congratulating you on same, writes Mr. J. Hampshire (Oldham). This is not the first prize I have to thank you for, and I think the scheme will be still more progressive in the future.

I am in receipt of your Coupon Prize 10s., writes Mr. T. Taylor (Gateshead), won at Jarrow Show, and thank you for same. I won the prize with my young crest "King Edward." He has been shown eight times, and has won on each occasion, Gateshead being his last time out for the season. He was hatched on May 21st, and was a single bird in a first nest, the other eggs being damaged. Rather lucky, wasn't it?

Kindly inform those that have written me for my Goldfinch and Canary, that I am unable to reply to all. Your interesting paper must have a large circulation. I had letters the morning after my advert. first appeared. Rather quick work.—A. PARKE (Lowestoft).

Kindly state in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Bertie (Nottingham), that I have received two orders this week from Canada (Montreal and Toronto) for Norwich Cinnamons, and one pair of Crests—16 birds in all; also a very good testimonial from a well-known fancier there.

In sending us the balance sheet of the annual members' show of the City and Suburban A.C.B., which shows a balance on the right side for, we understand, the first time, the secretary, Mr. Wynn, writes: It has just worked out at a profit, but it has been a big struggle.

I am pleased to say, writes Mr. Cooper (West Ham), that I have sold my birds through my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, and might add that I had letters from all parts of Ireland, Scotland and Wales. This speaks well for the circulation of CAGE BIRDS which I wish every success.

I am sorry to hear, writes "Yorkshire Fancier" (Carnarvon), that Mr. R. E. Griffiths is leaving North Wales for Rhondda, South Wales. He has proved one of our best fanciers, and we are sorry to lose him, and wish him the best of luck in his new home, and success with his Yorkshires and British.

We beg to state that we have sent out over 2,000 bottles of Avisine, and have received 90 testimonials, besides many repeat orders, and this has all been done since we started advertising with you, we believe only five weeks ago. It is due to the immense popularity of CAGE BIRDS.—Avisine Co. (Millom).

Vast numbers of Wood Pigeons find their way to this country from across the sea each year. The males are always in excess of the number of females among the early arrivals. The homing instinct of these birds is very strong, for it has been noticed that most of them return to the same trees to roost.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Gilbert Gray (Glasgow).

Mr. Smith (Glasgow) writes:—Mr. Gilbert Gray Pollockstridds, Glasgow, the most genial fancier in Scotland, passed away on 2nd January, and will be much missed by his only son, relations, and a wide circle of friends. In his business capacity he was very highly respected, and he was also respected by every fancier. Of a retiring disposition, the only office he could be induced to take was the presidentship of the Southern Albert O.A. Under his leadership the society rose to the premiership of confined associations. He was wise in counsel, and most considerate in every relation of life. An instance of this has just flashed into my memory. Meeting a gentleman who resided in an adjoining house, he said, "I hope the singing of the birds does not disturb you." He quickly responded, "No, sir; I like to hear their song, it reminds me of the country and my earlier days." It was a marked feature of his character to be kind, agreeable and gentle. I can confidently say every fancier joins in sympathising with his son, Mr. James Gray, and his relatives in the sad bereavement.

Mr. E. Kinson (Burslem.)

Mr. J. Pitchford (Stoke-on-Trent) writes:—I much regret to inform you of the death of one of our local fanciers, Mr. Edwin Kinson, of Burslem, which took place at his residence on December 29th, at the age of 66, after a long illness. The deceased gentleman was a successful breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Plainheads, and as he had been confined to his house for several years, his birds helped to brighten what must have been otherwise a very weary time. Much sympathy is felt for the family in their sad bereavement.

Mr. James Brown (Bethnal Green).

The death occurred on the 28th ult, after four days' illness, of Mr. James Brown, the well-known bird-dealer, for nearly thirty years of 69 and 71, Selater Street, Bethnal Green. Deceased, who was only 48 years of age, and was the eldest son of the late Mr. James Brown (a bird dealer of Bethnal Green for over half a century), was well known and highly respected throughout the trade and by a host of friends, who much lament his death. The funeral took place at Manor Park Cemetery, and was largely attended, the trade being well represented. There were a large number of choice floral tributes.

Judging by the 1907 balance sheet which reaches us, duly audited, from the secretary, Mr. Duke the progressive South Shields, North Shields and District C.B.S. has experienced a most successful season. After meeting all liabilities, a nice sum is left in hand, a considerable increase over that which they had at the end of 1906.

I have again to acquaint you that I had a very quick sale for my birds advertised, writes Mr. A. J. Marley (Leyton). My Greenfinch Mule was claimed by telegram (which I enclose), only a few hours after your paper was on sale. My experiences stand out as showing the value of CAGE BIRDS as an advertising and purchasing medium.

The annual general meeting of the Ealing, Hanwell and Dist. F.S. was held on Jan. 2, at the Mission Hall, Church Street, Hanwell, writes the sec., Mr. W. Bird. The balance sheet shows the society to have had a good year. The debt at the commencement of the year was £27 0s. 3d.; this has now been reduced to £2 5s. 11d. Twenty-nine new members have been enrolled. It has been decided to purchase four silver cups, including one for the cage-bird section.

Am pleased to say through advertising in CAGE BIRDS I have sold all four of my prize Bullies, and could have sold them many times over, as I had such a lot of enquiries after them.—W. G. FELLOWS (Southampton).

I received the lovely plate of Chats, etc., in good order, and I am extremely obliged to you. I have it framed with several more of your beautiful pictures. The last plate you issued was a real good one.—J. G. HUTCHINSON (Heaton).

As anything printed in CAGE BIRDS travels as quickly as one could telephone a message, writes Mr. R. Southworth (Blackburn), allow me to congratulate the officials of the Leigh Show on the care and attention bestowed on my birds, and also upon the prompt payment of prize money.

On Sunday the 19th inst, the grand exhibition of the Cercle, "Les Amateurs d'oiseaux," will be held at Verviers, Belgium, at which we notice that widely-renowned enthusiast Monsieur Emile Ruhl, is to adjudicate. Mons. Ruhl is well known to many frequenters of the Crystal Palace Show, at which he is a regular visitor.

The 1907 balance sheet of the Sheffield C.B.S., duly audited, reaches us from the secretary, Mr. T. Bishop, and is a thoroughly satisfactory one in every sense. A tea and concert, with two grand shows (nest-feather and annual) were held, and the cash balance has increased from £6 to well over £18. This is good business.

Palace Show: Exhibitors of Belgian Canaries please note that Mr. J. Robson will judge the 4 classes of Belgians. In the Cinnamon section Mr. E. Godley is giving 10s. most points, 6s. second most points, 4s. third most points; the highest bird of each exhibitor in each of the four classes to count for points, Mr. Godley and Mr. Dormer not competing.—(ADVT.)

Kindly state through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. George Francis, sec. of the Lowestoft and Dist. C.B.S., that I have moved to 39, Cleveland Road, Lowestoft, and that all correspondence to the society should be addressed there. If I have neglected to answer any letters recently I hope my "moving job" will explain it satisfactorily.

The special for best Norwich in the recent Huddersfield Show, writes Mr. S. Lodge, sec., was won by Mr. W. Foxall; special for best bird shown by a member, by Messrs. Mallinson and Son, who also secured special for most points gained by a member; and special for most points gained by a novice member, by Mr. W. Miller. Sandiford's cup went to Mr. J. Morris.

I have removed to much larger premises at 48, Annerley Road, writes Mr. E. E. Pass, the well-known cage-maker and fanciers' provider, of Hucknall Torkard, Notts, where I shall be pleased to show any fancier over my stock. All my success has been due to my advertising in CAGE BIRDS, as I have never spent a penny anywhere else, and am more than satisfied with the results. My showroom will contain both cages, seeds, appliances and birds.

A Missing Show.

I went over to Dewsbury on Friday, Jan. 3, writes our representative, to report the show which has been advertised, but it had been postponed for two weeks, so I was informed.

Railway Companies pay up.

I am pleased to inform you, writes Mr. H. W. Sheldon, of Llandudno, that I have been successful in my claim against the railway company for late delivery of birds at the recent Swansea and Dist. Show. I wish to publicly thank Mr. Lythgoe and the C.B.U. solicitor, for their advice and assistance in the matter.

Tatcho!

A friend bought a young Blackbird from some boys for a few pence, writes Miss A. Reeve (Burnley). It had no feathers on its head and no tail, though it has grown a tail now. My friend's daughter bought some hair restorer, and her father, for a lark, put some of it on the Blackbird's head. In two days you could see some feathers growing, and now it is getting quite black with feathers.

An Unfortunate Shrike.

Quite recently in a Cardiff Docks office the fire was lit in the morning, and almost immediately a bird fell down the chimney into the fire-place. It was snatched up quickly, and by dint of a little care it recovered, and was taken to a local ornithologist, who declared it a Butcher Bird or Great Grey Shrike. There was a strong westerly gale on the day in question, and the theory is that the bird had reached Penarth on its way south, when it was blown across to the Cardiff Docks and had alighted on the nearest chimney, the fumes from which had rendered it insensible, with the result that it fell down into the fire-place.

In Canada.

The recent fifth annual show of the Montreal Cage Bird Society was a thorough success, both financially and otherwise, a correspondent from over the water informs us. The birds of all varieties were the finest ever exhibited in Montreal. Two fine specimens of Macaws and a Paradise Wydah were, on account of their beautiful plumage, a special attraction to the ladies and children. The three silver cups for the best exhibits were won by D. Bruce, Scotch Fancies; F. Weicholt, Norwich; R. Cowan, Yorkshires. The following members won specials: J. Blyth, J. Ainslie, F. Weicholt, J. Moore, A. Lindsay, J. Glendinning, J. F. Sonne, R. Cowan, R. Spillman, and H. Mackenzie. The judges, A. Lindsay, J. F. Sonne, J. H. Bernier and J. McGregor, gave every satisfaction.

"CAGE BIRDS"

WILL APPEAR NEXT WEEK.

In accordance with our usual custom we shall celebrate our natal day next week by placing before our readers one of those record-breaking productions for which this Journal has in past years been well and widely celebrated. Our artists, we are pleased to be able to inform our patrons, have this year excelled themselves, with the consequence that we are in a position to promise purchasers of next week's number such a treat in the way of Coloured Plates as we have never before been able to give. The exquisite beauty of past "Cage Birds" Birthday Numbers promises to be eclipsed effectively and completely, and for genuine novelty, allied with attractiveness, the present number will be unsurpassable.

There are one or two very sensational features in our Birthday Number for 1908, several most interesting and amusing prize competitions, three absolutely unbeatable coloured plates, and an illustrated supplement de luxe, the whole involving a tremendous outlay.

There is certain to be a sensational run upon this issue as soon as it makes its appearance, so we advise all our friends to speedily rush to the newsagents, giving their orders forthwith, so as to make certain of securing this wonderful record-breaking number of "Cage Birds."

Advertisements will close finally on the Tuesday, January 14th, and as a unique opportunity for appealing to the widest possible collection of purchasers, our Birthday Number holds the field.

It is needless for us to add that no matter what the response from private advertisers, the expense of producing such a mammoth number will only be covered by the personal recommendations of present readers, so as to ensure for us a still wider sale, which we are anxious to bring about. May we earnestly beg of our friends, therefore, not only to make certain of securing this number for themselves, but to tell all their bird-loving friends about it, and advise them to secure a copy also.

Finally, remember all communications must reach us at the very latest first post Tuesday morning next, Jan. 14th, and as the bulk of copy to be got through will entail a very heavy strain upon all departments, including our printers, we shall appreciate the early receipt of advertisements, &c., intended for this special Birthday Issue.

We have received from the secretary of the Queen's Park and Dist. C.B.A., the 1907 balance sheet, which shows a net credit for the past season of £4 9s. 6d., making the cash balance £6 0s. 10d. The secretary writes: The society has adopted the rule recommended by the majority of London societies re the definition of "Novice," etc. Also that the show dates have been fixed as follows: Matched Pairs, Feb. 15th; Young Birds, June 27th; and Annual Show, Nov. 13th and 14th.

The result of our monthly competition for members' cup is as follows, writes Mr. S. Lodge, sec. of the Huddersfield O.S.:—Cup and spl., S. Lawford and Son, 68 points; 2nd, G. Whitehead, 57; 3rd, A. Moss and Son, 55; W. Gledhill, 39; W. Miller, 33; J. Dobson, 31; W. H. Waring, 20; J. Cordingley, 15; G. Cartwright, 13; R. Rhodes and W. H. Platt, 5 each; Fountain Bros. and E. Chadwick, 4 each; L. Hepworth and Woodhouse Bros., 3 each; and A. Haigh, P. Gothard, and J. H. Cliffe, 1 each.

Great National Cage-bird Show, Crystal Palace, 1908. R. A. Newley begs to announce that he will have a fine exhibition of birdcages, aviaries, and sundries of all kinds on his stall at the above show. Inspection and patronage of fanciers and public visitors is respectfully invited. All goods can be taken from stall at time of purchase. Everything best quality; no fancy prices. Gentlemen wishing to exhibit their specialities on the stall during the show should write early. Terms on receipt of particulars. All communications to R. A. Newley, 24, Stockwell Green, London, S.W.—ADVT.

The premium list—called on this side the ocean the "schedule"—of the New Year Show of the Toronto (Canada) C.B.S. has been sent us, and it is a very comprehensive one, 73 classes in all being provided. No fewer than 17 are for Cinnamon-feathered birds of various types. This schedule makes a departure by illustrating seventeen birds (Canaries, Mules and British) and giving a lot of standards of the various breeds. These illustrations and standards, by-the-bye, have all been copied from CAGE BIRDS and CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL (with one possible exception), yet our Canadian friends seemingly do not think it necessary to make any acknowledgement whatever of this fact.

Among the latest additions to the Zoological Gardens are three specimens of the wingless Kiwi. Only four captive specimens are supposed to exist, and that one at the Zoo is known as the Apteryx Australis—a native of the Southern Island. It is a bird of nocturnal habits and feeds chiefly on earthworms, which it seeks in the earth without waiting for them to emerge.

On New Year's Night, upwards of 100 aged poor of the Kentish Town district were entertained in Grafton Terrace Hall to a substantial repast of hot roast beef and mutton, Christmas pudding, mince pies, etc., crowned by a concert of vocal and instrumental music contributed by ladies and gentlemen of high talent. Mr. George Gardner and Mrs. Gardner were the entertainers, through the generosity of many Fancier friends from far and near, and also local donors. Hearty cheers were given by the guests for the kind donors of the feast.

Items from Edinburgh.

From our representative at the Scottish National Show we learn that the sales amounted to upwards of £100. The young Scotch Fancy that won the Patterson Cup for Mr. J. Arnott was purchased by Mr. S. Brown, of Glasgow, at £20, the catalogue price. The medal-winning Norwich Yell. Var. Hen was claimed by Mr. J. Smeaton, of Preston-Pans, at £5 12s. 6d. The Yellow Bunting which took 2nd prize was appealed against and disqualified for alleged trimming. The show was crowded on both days, and catalogues completely sold out. The Gate takings amounted to no less than £55 16s. 2d. Among the visitors were to be seen Messrs. Duncan, of Dunean and Logan (Coldstream), Gilchrist and Cameron (Kelso), Dr. Galloway and J. Hector (Aberdeen), Watson (Kilmarnock), Seiranac (London), Colton (Sheffield), Clinch, Hadwin, Deacon, Thompson, Hampshire, Benson and Harrison (Liverpool), T. Taylor and A. Brown (Gateshead), Robertson (Harrington), Roberts (Blackpool), Rukin (Rawtenstall), besides several keen Yorkshire Fanciers, and a host of other well-known enthusiasts.

Owing to an unexpected pressure of matter at the last moment, we are reluctantly compelled to hold over the announcement of the result of our XMAS COMPETITIONS until next week.

NOTICE!

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

"Cage Birds" Annual for 1908

is now in course of preparation, and will be published early in February, as usual, and be on sale at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show and in the hands of all subscribers, we hope, by Saturday, February 8th, next. To enable us to keep our word we ask the generous co-operation of readers.

devoted to the interests of the cage-bird hobby should send us full particulars of same at once for inclusion in our Alphabetical List of Cage-Bird Clubs. We want the full name of the Society, the latest list of its officials, the place and time of meetings and the nights, the entrance fee and the subscription. As this is the only directory to those associations catering for cage bird fanciers in existence, no society can afford to be missing from the list. Members should make a point of seeing their society is included. Secretaries who have changed their addresses should not fail to notify us. We want our list to be thoroughly up-to-date, and thoroughly complete.

who have officiated at any recognised show can have their name and address inserted in our list of judges by sending us particulars on a post card. There is no charge whatever. Any judge at present on our list who may have changed his address during the past year should notify us at once. This list is the only complete one of its kind, and is universally consulted by show officials, therefore, no judge can afford to be unrepresented on it.

The Bird Trade.

Our directory to the bird trade is a feature that no dealer in birds, or foods, or medicines, or appliances of any kind whatsoever, can neglect. It is a permanent record of his address, as well as his specialities, which is an invaluable guide to the fanciers in his own town as well as all over the world. No charge is made for the inclusion of any bona-fide trader, but the name can be thrown up in heavy black type on payment of 1s. (one shilling).

For Breeders' Cards, and other displayed Advertisements, business bringers from all over the world, see the low terms quoted on the back page.

Write us for any particulars you may require, and send us any suggestions you can make.

F. CARL,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

All prize money, etc., won at Paisley Show on the 1st and 2nd inst., has been paid, writes the sec., Mr. A. M. Baird. Should anyone be omitted they might write me at once. Allow me to thank all who in any way contributed to the success of our show. We had splendid sales, no less than forty birds changing owners, there being a big number claimed at catalogue price. But I think a record was made when about two hours before the close of the show a gentleman claimed the 2nd prize Buff Foul Scotch Fancy Cock, and the 1st prize Buff Pied Hen, both at £50, being £100 for the pair. Both birds belonged to Mr. W. McClure, and so far as I know this is a record price for a Scotch Fancy Canary. I must thank you for the grand report of our show. It was a very smart bit of work, for our show only closed on the Thursday, and I had the pleasure of reading a splendid report the next day (Friday), which was indeed smart.

Alleged Extraordinary State of Affairs at Hugglescote Show.

The sixth annual cage-bird, poultry, pigeon, etc., show, in connection with the Hugglescote Association, was held in the National School-rooms, on Jan. 1, writes our local representative. Cage-birds turned up a little better than in previous years, no doubt owing to the fact that this section was held under Cage Bird Union rules. In Mr. Haywood, Hugglescote possess a hard-working and courteous sec., but he, unfortunately, did not seem to be backed up by a committee of his own stamp; the work seemed to be left to those who would do it. Therefore things did not pass off so smoothly as would have been the case had each one of the committee taken an example from the secretary and one committee man, whose name we do not know. The cage-birds did not come to be judged until about 3 p.m., and after the judge had done one class it was found that several cases of birds had not been unpacked. The room full of visitors, unpacking, sorting and shouting whilst judging was on, made a scene to be remembered. With the help of one or two visitors things were got into something like order, but it was only to find that the judge, amid the bustle had gone, taking with him the award slips. So no awards could be put up. The room was lighted with three paraffin lamps, and it was quite impossible to make any critique on the exhibits. In fact it was really an event beyond all description.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., a.B.N.H.S., &c, Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

"A Squeaky Yorkshire."

W.M.—Your question is not very clear. Is it "squeaky" only when it sings, or does it wheeze when not singing? Better write again and give more details. Six drops of glycerine, and the same of mucilage of gum arabic, would do no harm in any case, and might help to clear the voice. Are you sure it is a cock?

A Variety of Questions.

"Yorkshire Novice."—You should get a copy of CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL, and study the article on "Fanciers' Terminology," which will answer fully your first three queries, and scores of others besides. 1: In-breeding is breeding from birds which are related by blood. 2: An unflighted bird has not had its flights withdrawn at its first moult; a flighted one has. The terms only apply to yearling birds. 3: A "clear" bird is one without any dark plumage. They occur in both Yellows and Buffs. A Buff is distinguished by having the tip of the web of its feathers white, giving a moally or frosted appearance. 4: Yes, Yorkshires are colour-fed for exhibition. 5: Again yes. Yellows and Buffs are easily distinguished as soon as they leave the nest. Experience enables one to tell the colours almost as soon as they are hatched. 6: Write the secretary of the club you wish to join (the addresses of practically all cage bird club secretaries will be found in the ANNUAL mentioned above), and ask him to propose you as a member. He will doubtless invite you to attend the meeting; or get any member you may be acquainted with to propose you for membership, and introduce you to the meeting. 7: Sorry we cannot reply to this question, as it is purely a business matter. Write the gentleman you name, and ask the question direct as a matter of business. That is the best course to pursue.

Diarrhœa and Seed Samples.

Broadway.—Have you been giving green food as soon as it is gathered this wet, foggy weather? I suspect this is at the root of your trouble. Stop green food altogether until birds are better. Give first as much Epsom salts as will lie on a sixpence in the drinking water for one day, and afterwards half a teaspoonful of brandy and as much ordinary chalk mixture. 2: The seed sample was missing. The reply re diarrhœa applies also in the case of the Norwich Canaries.

A Case of Wheeziness.

Phyllis Yaldwyn.—Try five drops each of glycerine, oxymel of squills, and tincture of lobelia in the drinking water every second day for a fortnight, and give a small piece of bread scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with maw seed on the intervening days. If not well by that time, write again and mention this reply.

Rolier Not Singing.

Frame.—I do not think there is much wrong with your bird which does not sing very much. It may only be waiting for the genial days of spring, when it will doubtless "tune its merry throat, etc." Your feeding is good, but you might give it a small piece of bread dipped in hot milk and sprinkled with soft sugar about twice a week. See that its cage is free from draughts. Examine the cage well for red mite, as these may be troubling the bird, which is very often the case when cages are covered over at night.

Heating an Aviary.

"J.A."—As your birds have been moulted in the aviary, they are therefore quite acclimatised, and, moreover, being well sheltered and facing south, there should be no necessity for heating it. The greatest thing to guard against is dampness. You do not say whether the birds are kept in cages or flying loose. The latter would be best if it could be managed.

Not Moulted: Yet Bare.

Paver.—There is the probability of its having moulted very gradually. But I am inclined to think its condition is due to attacks of red mite. Examine the cage carefully for these, probing any joint or crack with a pin. If mites are found, eradicate these, and the bird will soon be right. Twelve drops of chemical food in the drinking water every second day for a short time would help it. 2: A course of chemical food, as advised for the other bird, will do this one good, too. The variable weather is probably the cause. Keep in a cosy place and protect from draughts. Also look carefully to see if troubled with red mite, and treat accordingly. Ten drops glycerine and five tincture of tolu in drinking water for a day or two will relieve the breathing.

Breeding for Profit.

"Inquirer."—The scheme you outline looks all right on paper, but to make it succeed in practice will require a fair share of luck, comparative freedom from such trouble as non-feeding hens, and constant attention, coupled with good management on your part. Given these qualifications it should succeed. The hens would agree very well flying loose, and all birds should be quite strong and healthy under the conditions. You must cover the concrete floor with an inch in depth of gravelly sand, and a shallow box full of old mortar smashed up finely in one corner would be a very useful adjunct. If the cocks are young, healthy, and vigorous, four would be sufficient for twelve hens. As regards your determination to sell out all the stock in the autumn, and start with fresh birds every year, you will not be able to assume any real control of the type or markings of the birds you breed. In any case, if you found yourself in possession of a stock of really good feeding hens, you would be wise not to dispose of them too lightly. Get one of CAGE BIRDS' handbooks on Canary breeding, and study it before making a start.

No Song.

"Stroud Green."—As you are sure the birds are cocks, I think your supposition that they are too fat may be the correct one, especially as your dietary is conducive to this effect. Discontinue the boiled carrot, and give apple twice a week instead, and a spray of green food four or five days a week, but be careful the latter is not frosted or wet when given. Drop the special mixture you have been giving since Christmas also, and let the Canary seed, green food, with rape once a week be the sole diet for the next two months. The buckthorn should do them good. Give it as you have commenced to do every alternate week whilst on the above treatment, and report progress in a month.

Eye Trouble.

"Blind."—I fear I cannot help you without knowing something more definite. You say the right eye in two birds from the same nest is closing, and appears to be going blind, yet you can detect no injury. Is not the space around the eye, or between the eye and beak swollen at all? What are the cages painted with inside, and where and in what position do the birds roost? Are they caged together or separately? The answers to these questions might make matters more clear. Write again, and also say how the birds are fed and managed. In the meantime the best thing you can do is to dissolve a small teaspoonful of boric acid in a pint of hot water, and bathe the eyes with this (use warm) once or twice daily.

Norwich Cock Hoarse.

"Constant Reader."—The bird has had a chill either from cold or by being in a draught. You must see that either or both of these causes are quite removed, and keep the bird comfortably warm (but not overheated) for the present. Get a pennyworth of chlorate of potash from a chemist and well mix as much as will lie on a sixpence into a small teaspoonful of honey, add sufficient hard boiled yolk of egg to make a stiffish paste, and give a piece the size of a large pea each day stuck between the wires. Should it appear to cause undue looseness, add a little dry powdered biscuit to its food.

Yorkshire Cock Unwell.

"E.E.S."—The bird doubtlessly got a chill at the very time when he went off song again, and has not yet regained his voice. Your feeding, however, is not calculated to help matters. A teaspoonful of bread and milk with maw seed daily, in addition to his usual diet of Canary seed and rape is likely to overload the bird with fat. Keep him in the warm room to which you have removed him, and feed on plain Canary seed only, a little soaked rape twice a week, bread and milk once a week, and a piece of sweet apple or green food three or four times a week, giving one or other of these extras daily so as to spread them over the whole week. Give it the bath tepid, and see that it is not subjected to any cold draughts at any time. Add five drops of oxymel of squills, and three each of tincture of lobelia and tolu to its drinking water every alternate day for a fortnight.

A Roller's Lagging Moult.

"New Reader."—The varying warmth of your kitchen is partly to blame, but the diet is also at fault. It would not do to remove the birds to the cold unheated room now, as that would only make matters worse. Such a removal should not take place until the weather is settled in spring. For the present keep them in that part of the kitchen where the temperature is likely to show the least variation, but see that it is also free from draughts. Feed on Canary seed only as a staple, and two days in each week give a little scalded rape seed, on two other days a little bread scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with maw seed, and give a little green food or ripe apple on the remaining days. In the drinking water give as much ammoniated citrate of iron as will cover a threepenny-piece every other day for a fortnight. If you have any handy, a mealworm per bird each day would do more good than the beef suet.

Everything Gone Wrong.

W.S.P.—You give no particulars as to how or where the birds are kept. Are they in a warm or cold room? I am strongly inclined to think it is a draughty one, anyway, and that the old cock's peculiar behaviour is when he is trying to sing, but cannot make any noise, having lost his voice. See that the room is quite free from draughts, or place the birds where they will not be exposed to either draughts or damp, make it comfortable, and feed the birds as advised to "New Reader" in this issue. Stir thirty drops of whiskey and five each of tincture of lobelia and sweet nitre in each drinking vessel two days in every three for a fortnight. If not well in that time, write again and give more particulars. Mention this reply.

A Method for Preserving Health.

L. T. Davies.—You mention "sulphite" and "sulphate" of soda as though they were one and the same thing. They are not. It is the sulphate of soda you would give to birds. As regards its use for giving to healthy birds occasionally with the object of preventing disease, I do not suppose it would do any harm if not used in excess—say, a piece about the size of a split pea in the drinking vessels, and it might help to keep the digestive organ in good working order. You would, however, obtain your object just as well by giving an occasional dose of Epsom salts and a few drops of lemon juice in the drinking water. This is the method I should prefer.

Stuck in Moult.

C.S. (Leeds).—Do you mean that the bird is still losing feathers? You do not make this clear, and bringing it from a cold room into a warm one should not have stopped the moult, unless the present room varies in temperature a good deal. You must keep it fairly warm now until the moult is finished. In addition to its staple diet of Canary seed, give on alternate days a teaspoonful of scalded rape seed, and a little egg food with five or six drops of cod liver oil well mixed in it, and give a spray of watercress daily. Stir fifteen drops of chemical food in its drinking water four days a week, and give plain water on the other days.

A Luxurious Norwich Canary.

Another New Reader.—Feeding "not wisely, but too well" appears to be the chief cause of your bird's trouble, which is "always feeding," is dull and mopy, breathes heavily, and has been continually moulting during the last four months. He is evidently one of those who love the pleasures of life only too well, and is simply overloaded with fat. Drop the mixed seed and give only plain Canary seed, with a spray of green food every day. Be careful not to give the latter with frost upon it, or immediately after gathering it in wet or frosty weather. Keep it in a fair-sized cage, where it can get exercise, and limit its supply of seed to a teaspoonful each day for a time. Give as much Epsom salts as will lie on a sixpence in the drinking water every second day for a week, and then every third day for another fortnight.

Some Seed Samples.

"Rex."—No. 1 Spanish Canary is a very nice sample—clean, bright, plump, and quite sweet. It is not the largest to be had, but if this is free from dust in the bulk you need not worry about getting better. No. 2 Gorman summer rape is just a fair sample. It seems nice and clean, and is of good flavour, but is of very unequal size, and a certain proportion of the grains are rather too large for summer rape, in my opinion.

A Roller in Bad Plumage.

"Rex."—You do not say whether he commenced moulting after moving him into the living room, or whilst in the cold one. It is quite possible that he may have gradually completed his moult without your noticing it, but if it is still incomplete he will start again as soon as the weather gets mild in spring, and will finish. Many birds do this, especially those kept in small cages for singing. I am inclined to think, however, that the rough plumage is due to red mite attacks. Examine the cage well for these, and eradicate them if found. Supply a bath (tepid) regularly, and stir into it a few drops of essence of quassia, and see that the bird is not subject to any cold draughts. Add to its food twice a week a little piece of bread dipped in milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar, and give a spray of green food or sweet apple on other days. If he is properly treated during the next few months he will, of course, moult properly at the proper time, next autumn. Whether he will be fit to breed with or not next spring depends entirely upon the state of his health at that time. If he begin to moult in spring you must not think of mating him until he has quite finished. Yes; if you return him to the cold room at the beginning of the summer he will, provided he is otherwise healthy, be quite hardy enough to be left there permanently.

A Bird Still Moulting.

"Ayrshire Laddie."—Are you satisfied the bird is not troubled with mites? The constant picking at the wires is suggestive of it. Look well over the cage for that white powdery deposit about the joints or cracks which is an infallible sign of the presence of mites. Anoint the bare head very sparingly with sulphur ointment, but do not smear the feathers. Give a small piece of bread and milk two days a week, green food on the other four days, and three times a week add twenty drops of chemical food to its drinking water. Offer a tepid bath daily, but see the bird is not exposed to cold after it.

Particulars Wanted.

T.C.—You give no information by which I can judge of the case, nor do you indicate the reply you got before. You should send full particulars every time. Better write again and supply the omission. Do not interfere with the gland at the root of the tail, unless it appears red and swollen, when you might anoint it sparingly with boracic ointment whilst awaiting further reply. Any chemist will supply you with a pennyworth of the ointment.

Sex of Goldfinches.

Rex.—It did not need a second glance to decide the sex of the two dead Goldfinches you forwarded. Both were pulpably hens. The greyness (ash-color) of the wing-butts and the band at back of head, with the very small blaze, plainly told this. In a cock Goldfinch, the band which goes over the back of the skull, and the shoulders (butts) of the wings, are invariably a dense jet glossy black, often with a distinct green metallic sheen. The blaze, too, in a decent specimen extends back (across the cheeks) to the far edge of the eye, and often beyond this. In a hen it seldom gets even to the middle of the eye, and that part beneath the lower mandible often stops short before the eye is reached. Don't, on any account, be tempted to part with your money by the offer of "cocks" at a low price. You can only hope to find yourself "done," as a genuine cock Goldfinch is always worth a certain figure. I know many dealers who would gladly give more for real cocks than the figure at which some people seem anxious to sell them.

Sex of Linnet.

W.J.S.—Of course, I can't say for certain without seeing it, but you can take it as a moral certainty that a Linnet bought in August last, and which has been in excellent health and condition since, yet has uttered never a note, is a member of the gentler sex. At any rate, you need think no further about mating it with a Norwich hen until you hear it in full song. It should certainly be singing freely now.

A Loss.

Sillia.—I am afraid the loss resulted chiefly through you not noticing earlier that the Goldie was queer. It must have shown signs of ill-health, I fancy, before the period you mention, but your inexperience with birds would probably account for these being overlooked, or perhaps I ought to say recognised. But don't be downhearted; try another, and your luck may prove quite the reverse. Millet seed is of practically no use whatever for British birds, and rape is quite useless for Goldfinches. I dealt with the feeding of Goldies last week; see reply to "W.H.A." and follow advice therein. It seems highly probable from what you say that the bird was badly bound (constipated) and a timely dose of sulphate of soda, as much as will lie on a sixpence, dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, would doubtless have put him right.

An Outdoor Aviary.

New Beginner.—You say your aviary is well sheltered from the wind, but don't state which way it faces. Judging from the sketch, however, I should say it will answer to keep British birds in, and it will not be too cold unless it faces north, north-east, or east, three unfavourable aspects. By this I mean that the design is a good one; unfortunately, however, you do not state the width (front to back) and this is a very important point. It should be at least 3 feet, and 4 or 5 feet would be much better still. I recommend you to have both ends boarded up, and the roof entirely boarded over, and afterwards felted and tarred. You will never regret it, but very much the reverse, in fact. The roof should have a good fall (slope) as this affords the inmates acceptable shelter. The boarded ends could be made removable—or one of them—if you like; that is, be hoarded up on top of wire. Then the covering could be taken down during the dry, hot summer days, and be replaced at a sign of unfavourable weather.

About Greenfinches.

H.T.H.—I cannot understand your queries. Why not have sent a letter and explained fairly what it is you desire to know? It is against the rules (which kindly read) to use post-cards, and picture post-cards with lovely country views on them, always make me feel cross, for only houses and chimney pots overlook my own little backyard. A good moult (commenced early and quickly got over) and a free use of the bath are all that are necessary to ensure a Greenfinch having a tight-fitting sleek jacket. For food, the most important item is a daily feed of good, sound (full kernelled) sunflower seed. This can be offered in a separate dish, or placed among the stock mixture. The latter should be made up as follows: Canary and teazle, two pints each, hemp, summer rape, charlock and linseed half a pint each. Wild seed mixture, and some good maker's special packet Finch mixture, can be occasionally offered for a change, while sunflower heads (gathered from the garden) full of seed, thistle and hard-heads,' seeding chickweed, groundsel and shepherds purse should be freely given as in season. On such a menu, nicely varied, any Greenfinch should flourish like the proverbial fighting cock.

Breeding in an Aviary.

E. Taylor.—Your Goldie hen would make an excellent partner for a good coloured cock Siskin or Redpoll. Seeing that she has laid eggs, I should think you would be very likely to get Hybrids from her. You could, if you choose, put a pink-eyed cock Canary with her; there would be a possibility of a cinnamon-feathered Goldie Mule turning up (something of a novelty) or even a very light one. The size of aviary you give is not over spacious (6ft. by 6ft. by 5ft.), but the proportions are admirable, and if you well screen it, and arrange plenty of nesting sites around, there is no reason why you should not breed therein. If you have two places, I strongly recommend you to confine one to Canary hens, and the other to hen Britishers. Even in the latter you would do well to stick solely to hen Bullies. You could comfortably accommodate 8, 10, or even 12 hens, either Canary or Bullfinch, stepping in with the usual remedy (removal) if you noticed any inveterate quarrelsome, interfering individuals amongst them. I don't quite see how you could shut off the cock birds, if you have them all flying loose, and I see no reason why you should not follow the latter plan. With the hen Canaries you might try three each cock Goldies and Linnets, and one each cock Greenfinch, Bullfinch, Siskin, Redpoll and Twite. With the hen Bullies you could run two each of all the above cock birds, excepting only the cock Bullies, though it would be interesting to add a cock Canary and a smallish cock Hawfinch, though the latter should be a very steady, well domesticated specimen. Two such collections ought to provide you with some amusement, and it is quite on the cards that you may produce a few valuable Hybrids. If the birds seem overcrowded, however, thin them out, and don't hesitate in the case of any continuously quarrelsome brute—one generally runs up against such.

"Puffed Out" Birds and Sexing Redpolls.

Nib.—The sexing of house-moulted Redpolls is a very difficult matter. With fresh-caught adult birds, however, it is quite easy, as the males have the breast more-or-less tinged with red. In short, if you buy a Redpoll showing any trace of red amongst the feathers on the breast, you can be sure it is a cock. The statement that the birds are "puffed out" does not convey much information, but assuming that it is some stomach derangement they are suffering from, the most likely medicine you can give is a dose of a mild saline, say as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Give for two days, and repeat for one day, if it seems necessary, after a day's interval on plain water. See they have plenty of maw and teazle seeds to eat.

A Weed and Other Things.

H. S. Thomas.—1. Before I can answer this question, I must know whereabouts the white speck is on the Goldfinch's head—in the blaze, or in the black band which passes over the back and its exact size. Send a rough sketch. 2. You will not find the majority of British birds eat Canary seed with any freedom. Personally I use very little of it with my Britishers, for it is expensive when good—too dear to have wasted. What kind of hoppers, and what mixtures, are you using? I don't mind any very considerable waste, personally, with my seed mixtures given to birds in cages: I use the drawers to run in from front to back of cage. 3. The name of this weed is not known to me. It is not one I ever remember gathering for my own birds.

Cutting a Bird's Nails.

Lex.—The necessity for sometimes cutting the nails of a bird is not one, I am afraid, that can be avoided, as you express a desire to do. It is quite a simple operation, and need alarm no one who has ever handled a bird, or who has an average amount of nerve. Simply hold your Blackbird and Redwing firmly yet gently, and with a pair of sharp, strong scissors (or nail clippers) cut off the superfluous growth. It causes not the slightest pain to a bird, providing you do not cut too close up to the toes, and this you should have no difficulty in determining, in fact you only need remove the curved-in portion that is inconveniencing the birds. You can, of course, get someone to hold the two birds; the chief point is to keep them from having free play with their wings (hold same close to the body) or they can struggle, and this is likely to lead to a broken (snapped) wing.

Two Linnet Mules.

Novice.—I am very much afraid the two Linnet-Mules you have bred are hens. There is no other explanation of their lack of song, seeing they are in good condition. Young cock Linnet-Mules start to whistle plainly at a very early age—at least, all those I have bred have done so. And they are not long after they have thrown off the effects of the moult before they open out freely, and give one unmistakable evidence of sex. Hens can be lively enough when anyone speaks to them, and chirp away freely; often, too, a hen will utter a continuous twitter one might dub a sort of song. The fact of your birds raising their "crest" (head-feathers) so freely when spoken to confirms me in my opinion that they are two hens.

A Question of Identity.

G.E.D.N.—I am unable, from the description you give, to really satisfy myself as to the identity of the bird. It is rather puzzling. If you care to arrange to send it up to me in London, I will give you an opinion with pleasure. A Chaffinch-Greenfinch Hybrid has never been seen yet, so far as my knowledge goes; I should say the cross is an unlikely one, and especially so to be produced in a state of nature. It seems certain, however, that Finch Hybrids do sometimes get bred out in the fields. Not a fortnight ago, I saw for myself a cock Greenfinch-Linnet Hybrid which had just been found in a store-cage in a dealer's shop. It had been sent up from the country by his catcher, with a lot of Linnets, having apparently been netted with them. It appeared to be a bird of last season's breeding, was a good specimen, and carried not the slightest trace of ever having been in captivity. Of course, there is the possibility of it being aviary bred, and an escape. Still there it was. To hazard an opinion in your own case, I should say you have got hold of a hen Bramblefinch, which answers fairly well to the description you give; and this species varies very considerably in plumage, according to age and season, etc. Still, Brambles do not call "pink," "pink," by any means. Their call is more like "Ja-a-ck," "Ja-a-ck."

Brevities.

Linnets "Going Wrong" (Kellie).—Canary and hemp seed do not make up a good diet for a Linnet. No doubt you would notice reply given "J.W." in last week's issue; follow it to the letter. If any seem at all inclined to go "puffy," give sulphate of soda at once, and plenty of mawseed to eat (note other answers this week).

Aberdevine (H. Robinson).—Aberdevine is an old-time name of the Siskin, very seldom used now-a-days. Both terms are "proper" (that is, may be used when speaking of this species) though the latter is the "correct" one. Further, to speak of the Aberdevine is to run the risk of many bird-lovers not knowing what bird it is one is referring to.

Linnet Puffing Feathers Out (W.M.).—I cannot quite make out the trouble—indeed, as you say the bird is singing, I do not quite see how there can be any trouble. An ailing bird will not sing, that is a certainty. Probably the "puffing out" is a little mannerism, or habit, the bird has acquired. Your feeding is not good; see reply to "J.W." last week.

Thrush Ailing (C.H.R.).—Just a slight touch of "indigestion," I expect, for Softbills unquestionably are prone to develop from time to time what might be described as an "internal (not 'infernal,' Mr. Printer) stodginess," and which a timely dose of saline medicine generally puts to rights at once. Follow the instructions given "Nib" this week, regarding sulphate of soda. Pity you don't say how you are feeding—I hope on a diet of adequate nutritive value.

A Birdie Puzzle (Limerick).—Your supposition is quite correct; the bird you have, and which up to the present has been unknown to you, is a Bramblefinch. It is a male.

Treatment of Redpoll (Novice).—A Redpoll requires precisely the same treatment as a Linnet, and if you follow out the advice given in the reply to "J.W." last week, your bird will lack nothing in the way of feeding.

A Disaster (Camberwell).—I don't see that you can do anything to the Linnet to counteract the effect of the partial choking with smoke. It is a pity the accident happened, of course, but you can only put up with the consequences. If the bird was in good condition prior to the disaster, its recuperative powers may be such that it will eventually recover. Feed it well with a little maw, hemp, and niger daily. You could also add a small teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food to its drinking water (two tablespoonfuls daily). But I fear it is not a case in which medicine can afford much assistance.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

A Grey Parrot which has Fits.

"Barnett."—Give the bird as much ripe fruit as it will eat, many individuals are very fond of ripe apple, especially the core. Keep the bird's bowels rather loose for a time, but do not by any means scour it. One teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of water, this to constitute its only drinkables for the day—give 8 or 9 doses, with a two days' interval between each dose. Between the doses of magnesia well colour its drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. Madeira and sponge cake will do no harm as an occasional tit-bit. Keep it in a cool portion of the room, yet out of draught. A good seed mixture for the next two months would be: 4 parts Canary seed, and one part each, oats, wheat, dari, hemp and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a continuous supply in its cage. A few nuts will be appreciated, shelled walnuts are best.

Some Parrot Queries.

"Kitty."—A Parrot often ruffles its feathers as the outcome of various emotions, and also as part of its toilet. It would also do so under the conditions you name, cold, anger or fright. For a Parrot to sit continuously with its feather ruffled up, or as it is usually spoken of "puffy," denotes at least a poor condition of health, if not something more serious. I do not think the illuminated room till late at night will harm the bird. I keep a rare Hawk-head under similar conditions, it is in the best of health, and it is not covered up till it retires to its usual sleeping corner. Of course the bird must be kept below the level of the gas. And again, any dealer would undertake the teaching of your bird, but this is a matter that cannot be forced; you can do it just as well yourself, by keeping it where it will hear plenty of conversation and also by constantly repeating to it stray words and sentences—there is nothing else to be done, save exercising patience and perseverance.

The Breeding of Cutthroats.

C. F. Hayman.—(1). Yes, but to make success more probable the breeding cage should be as large as possible, as a minimum I should advise the box type known as a "double breeding cage," and take out the partition. (2). Yes, these do well out of doors providing they have space to fly about; and if you leave them at large in your shed, they should do well. Note: They are late breeders and may not show signs of nesting till July or later, and then rear a couple of broods. (3). Yes, providing the space is not too confined, if crowded together there might be squabbles, and then the Canaries would come off second best. (4). Canary, millet, oats, greenfood, grit, cuttlefish, and when they are feeding young a few ants' cocoons and a little soft food. (5). See reply under (2). At the same time, put a nest box or husk at each end of cage in the spring and leave them to themselves. (6). The cock has a crimson band across the throat which the female lacks; as to the other portion of their plumage, they are practically alike, though the hen's plumage is a little paler in hue.

Parrakeets for an Outdoor Aviary.

S. T. Parker.—You would find blood-rumps (more commonly called Red-rumps), Red and Mealy Rosellas and Cockatiels make a nice selection in your aviary, and if you secure adult birds they should soon settle down to breeding. You must put up at least double the number of nest boxes or husks of suitable size, that you have pairs of birds, or instead of nesting you may find them fighting for a particular box. If you use boxes—they must have concave bottoms, such being essential for all Parrakeets. You would find three or four pair ample for your aviary for breeding purposes, though without overcrowding you could have a couple of pairs of Yellow Budgerigars in with them; these would have a pretty effect and the sale of their progeny would help to pay the seed bill. I cannot advise you to keep the Lorrikeets with the others, Lorries need some milk sop and this would be unwholesome for those named above. You could part off about 8ft. of your aviary and keep the Lorries by themselves. Supply them with a nest box or log and they should ultimately breed; they are hardy and enduring and should have a fine effect in the enclosure suggested. Of course you would not put either Lorries or Parrakeets out of doors at this season, unless you definitely know they have been so kept through the winter.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Old Prize Cards (R.F.).—Pleased to print your interesting suggestion, but it hardly comes within the scope of our "Illustrated Idea" column.

Border Awards (W. Murray).—We cannot print criticism of reports; it is against our rules.

Medicine (Two Year Reader).—We will endeavour to carry out your wish in the near future.

Concerning Parrots (Sergt. D. H.).—Your letters are much too good and interesting to feed the waste-paper basket with. We shall be glad to hear from you at any time, and very pleased indeed to publish an account of how the Parrots, etc., were tamed and taught to talk out in India.

Building an Aviary, etc. (H. J. L. Williams).—We are much obliged to you for the suggestion. You will be interested to learn that in a few days' time we hope to put before fanciers an up-to-date fully illustrated book on the building of aviaries and bird-rooms.

A Goldfinch Class (Old Fancier).—We thoroughly sympathise with you, taking the facts as stated, yet we cannot see that any good could accrue from publishing your letter. You say the fourth prize Goldfinch was easily the best; well, the judge would say otherwise, and nobody would be any forrarder, so to speak. If you consider the judge proved himself incompetent, you can only avoid him in the future.

A Gifted Lovebird (E. Jones).—Much obliged to you for sending us an account of this bird, which, however, we published on page 578 last week.

Coupon Scheme at the Palace (C.R.).—Our grand final of the coupon competition at the Crystal Palace is confined to those birds that have won our coupon prizes at other shows during the present season.

A Book and the Cold (J. J. Brain).—You will find House's "Canary Manual" contains all the particulars you desire; price 1/2 post free from this office. You would also do well to get Claude St. John's book on Canary breeding, which treats of all the routine work very thoroughly and clearly; 7d., post free. We know many breeders of long experience who vow that no birdroom containing Canaries should experience a lower temperature than 40 degrees, and we are disposed to agree with them on the point. A fall to freezing point and below, must try any caged Canaries very hardly.

Lid and Door Fastener (P. Atkinson).—We advise you to communicate direct with the secretary of the C.B.U., Mr. Lythgoe, 25, Stamford Street, Old Trafford, Manchester.

A Warning (P. Wilcock).—We thank you for drawing our attention to this matter, but the law of libel will not permit of the publication of your letter.

Coloured Frontispiece (E.E.C.).—We had the winning specimens on view at the Crystal Palace Show last year, and hope to have the winners of the present competition there also, for our readers to inspect.

Not as Described (P. Button).—Buyers should always use the deposit system when dealing with unknown persons; this is a truth we are ever impressing upon readers. If you will conform to Rule 8, under "Questions and Answers," we will see what we can do in the matter.

A Question of a Rule (A. Parke).—We may say that the set of rules appears to us to be inadequate. Still, it is certain that no member or official, whether secretary or otherwise, can alter same, or substitute others, at his own personal pleasure; that idea is too funny for anything. We are of opinion that the rules of a society would govern its members at shows confined to members, or in the members' classes at an annual open show held by the society. In the open classes, the ordinary rules and regulations of the exhibition would apply. The majority of societies have a special set of rules to govern the competitions of its members.

A Prize Drawing (T.S.).—You should communicate direct with the promoter of the prize-drawing scheme. We, of course, cannot publish the winning numbers until they are sent along to us, and no communication has come to hand up to the present.

About Foreign Birds (Raft).—Your first question will be answered by our Mr. W. T. Page. In reply to No. 2, you should communicate direct with Messrs. Cassell, publishers, La Pelle Sauvage Yard, London. If you want the whole section (bound), we should be pleased to get it for you.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a report direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (F. H. Ellis).—Chronic softening of liver, malnutrition. Rupture of blood-vessel of liver and acute pneumonia.

READING AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Jan. 1st. There was a very fair attendance; Mr. J. Brooker in the chair. The secretary read the financial account of show, and reported that after every expense had been met, there was still a balance of £2 3s. in the bank. This was considered highly satisfactory, considering the society was passing through a resuscitative stage. All prize money and every account was paid three days after the close of show. The secretary was requested to communicate with certain gentlemen to act as judges for this year's show. It was decided that the February 5th meeting should be the annual general meeting of the society, for the election of officers for the year, and the fixing of date and judge for 1908 show. Three new members were elected:—Mr. W. H. Pyke, 25, The Grove, Reading; Mr. G. W. Davison, York Villa, Thatcham; Mr. Harry King, 90, Coley-terrace, Reading. A gratuity of 5s. was voted to the hall caretaker for assistance on day of show.—G. A. CHARLES, Sec.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

A general meeting was held on January 4th, to present Mr. Trengove with the challenge cup. The Secretary stated that Mr. Trengove had won the cup three times and it was now his own property (81 points), the runner-up for this year being Mr. J. Evans (Burnley), 47 points, with Mr. S. Cook, Newton Heath, 34 points. Mr. J. Evans won the gold medal for best bird in the champion section. Mr. J. E. Davies securing a similar one for the amateur section, and Mr. J. Lees (Rochdale), the silver medal given by the Toronto Cage Bird Society for best opposite colour to Mr. Davies' bird. The following also won prizes: Burnley, Messrs. Trengove, Hopkins and Evans (tie). Blackburn, Messrs. Todd, Hayhurst and Cook (tie). Newcastle, Messrs. Coventry, Hopkins, and Brown. Sheffield, Messrs. Dent, Wrigley, Lees and Bishop (tie). Barrow, Messrs. Coventry, Lees, Cherry. Nottingham champions, Messrs. Evans, Bishop, Trengove, Fox, Shore, Evans. Amateurs, Messrs. Davies (5), Massey. Specials for most points gained by amateurs during the year, Messrs. Davies, 45 points; Lees, 39; Coventry, 22. Mrs. Raynes, in presenting the cup to Mr. Trengove, said it was a pleasure to her to hand it over to a gentleman who had worked so hard for it. She wished it was going to stand on her sideboard, it was such a beauty; but hoped that Mr. and Mrs. Trengove would live to enjoy and look upon it for many years to come. Mr. Trengove, in accepting the cup, said he had tried hard and long for it and his efforts were rewarded at last, and now that he had reached the object of his desire he would stand down and give some one else a chance. He thought there should be something given to the runner-up, as an inducement to fight it out to the end; he would be glad to see the membership of the club increased. This would enable the committee to extend its patronage. Mr. Booth said he thought no one had tried harder and stuck to it better than Mr. Trengove, and he felt sure it was a well deserved and popular win. Mr. Cook also congratulated Mr. Trengove on his victory, although at one time he had hoped to win it himself. He had tried and lost, but it was better than not to have tried at all. Mr. Davies also spoke. Mr. Trengove thanked all for the good things said of him, and Mrs. Raynes for her kindness in presenting the cup.—J. RAYNES.

EAST BOWLING AND DIS. B.F.A.

Annual meeting was held on January 4th, at Barley Mow, for the election of officers for the present year, as follows:—President, Mr. L. C. Casey; Chairman, Mr. G. Thompson; vice-chairman, Mr. H. H. Clark; secretary, Mr. J. E. Hudson; assist.-sec., Mr. C. Atkinson; treasurer, Mr. L. Booth; all re-elected; auditors, Messrs. J. Firth and J. Warburton, elected. J. E. HUDSON, Sec.

BATTERSEA OPEN C.B.A.

At the general meeting it was proposed to alter the name of the society, at the request of several fanciers' residing outside London who wish to join us. It was also proposed to hold an open young bird show and an annual open show early in October, dates of which will be announced as soon as arrangements are completed. The secretary will be glad to give any information to anyone wishing to join this go-a-head society. The balance sheet was presented and adopted. The election of officers for the year took place, when Mr. Honeysett was elected chairman; Mr. Wade vice; Mr. Goymer, treasurer, and twelve committee, all good workers. The secretary was re-elected. The date of pair show is Feb. 5th.—F. EASTERLING, Sec.

GREAT HORTON O.S.

This society held a supper and social evening, for the distribution of the prizes won at their monthly shows during last year, on January 4th, at headquarters. The host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mitchell, provided a substantial pie supper, to which those present did full justice. After supper a very pleasant evening was spent, the following gentlemen taking part in the entertainment: Messrs. W. R. Myers (Sec. Brit. Bird Club), Hiley, Hargreaves, Ormondroyd, and Bowker, along with Mr. Wilson, who officiated at the piano, and who also obliged with a few songs. During the interval Mr. Holroyd, the President, presented the prizes to the respective winners as follows: Open, 1, Brayshaw and Jowett, and here in consequence of the illness of Mr. Jowett, the prize was in cash, viz., 15/6; 2, F. Self, gold pendant, 10/6; 3, W. Blakey, gold-mounted walking stick; 4, A. Lister, pair of bronzes; novice, 1, W. Gudgeon, pair of bronze horses, value 15/6; 2, F. Gelder, teapot, value 10/6; 3, W. Oliver, teapot, value 7/6, presented by Mr F. Gelder; 4, J. Kay, brooch and purse: consolation prizes, 5 cwts. of coal, each presented by Mrs Hartley, were won by Messrs. Waterworth and Pullan, respectively.—S. DEAN, Sec.

A Redshank Fight.

An incident in the life of those little drab birds with long thin bills and long red legs—the Redshanks—is worth recording. Two of these birds were seen sometimes walking or running, sometimes flying together, just as if on the best of terms. All of a sudden, and apparently without the slightest provocation, war broke out between them. The battle raged fierce and long, and both of them proved to be warriors of the sternest type. Grappling and rolling over together, it seemed as if it was to be a fight to the death. The "dramatic" end, however, was averted, for a third Redshank who had witnessed the fray from the commencement, but had taken no apparent notice, all at once ran up and flying between the combatants separated them. One of them flew away leaving the other the victor; this one showed its pleasure by flapping its wings in triumph and uttering a thin piping cry.

A WOOD PRESERVATIVE WANTED.

SIR,—Can any reader tell me of any mixture I can put on the woodwork of aviaries to prevent birds biting the wood? I have tried aloes, but this gets dashed off by heavy rain. My birds have plenty of natural branches to bite, but some seem to like doors and windows. E. J. B.

APPEAL FOR A FANCIER IN DISTRESS.

SIR,—Again I ask for a small space in CAGE BIRDS, as since sending my last letter to you I have received the following, for which I tender my best thanks: J. Welsh and friend, Edinburgh, 2s. each; R. Wilson, Edinburgh, A Fancier, St. Pancras, 2s. 6d. each; A Sister Fancier, Newburn, 1s.; total to date, £3 6s. 4d.

A CERTAIN REMEDY FOR RED MITE.

SIR,—I have kept Canaries for a number of years, and I have now in my possession over 30 (such as they are, half-bred Norwich and Yorks), and I can safely say that I have conquered the pests of red mite. This past season I have bred over 50 birds. I invariably clean the cage after a nest of birds and put the hens back into a cage that has been washed with blue copperas and re-coloured with distemper colouring, hanging in a bag to the cage about 1oz. of sulphur which keeps the birds in good health and also keeps down red mite. I may state that I have been infested with them to such an extent that I have had to part with every bird and cage and start afresh in another room, until a gentleman friend of mine gave me this certain remedy. Twopennyworth of blue copperas to one gallon of boiling water, applied with a brush. The cage as soon as dry can be coloured out, painted or enamelled, according to fancy, only don't put them back alongside of infested cages. The red mite will soon leave the birds. I also use a little quassia in the bath. D. H.

THE CHAMPION LINNET.

SIR,—I should like you to allow me a little space in your valuable paper re Mr. Summers' letter of last week. Mr. Summers says they sent a bird down to our club house which simply walked away with the contest, beating my champion. A bigger falsehood was never uttered. There was nothing much to choose between their champion and the bird I secured second prize with; as for beating my champion, it would never have been in the race. My champion has never taken part in any contest for this last four weeks, and on that occasion he won first prize, when I decided to retire him from all contests, as I thought he had done quite enough, over 100 prizes being printed to his credit in CAGE BIRDS. The birds I am at present singing are birds my champion is teaching. I have put the matter in my solicitor's hands, which Mr. Summers will know by now. I trust you will find room for this letter before closing this correspondence. HARRY ALLEN.

(We think it but fair to allow Mr. Allen this rejoinder, and now the matter must close so far as our columns are concerned.—EDITOR.)

WHAT KIND OF NORWICH HAVE WE TO BREED?

SIR,—If the anonymous writer "True Type," in your last issue had omitted the first word it might have passed as humorous fiction of a sort—an examination of the "facts" recounted, somewhat discounts their truth. To begin with, I will give the party £5 who told me Mr. McFarlane's Buff Cock was a good one, for I was the first to see him, and pronounce him a champion. It seems somewhat strange when I know so little about birds that I can breed so many winners. The last time the "Palace of Justice" man judged Hamilton, I bred the first and second Yellow Cocks, first and fourth Buff Cocks, first Yellow Variegated Cock, and one of the winning Yellow hens, my old champion Yellow hen standing first in the non-fed class, bred by Fraser and Robinson out of an English pair of birds, which they paid £7 for. This hen was christened "Pride of the West," by me, and proved herself worthy of the name. I should like "True Type" to come up to "Mount Florida." It is coffee I would give him to drink instead of tea, with one of my "Premier Oat Cakes" made of sawdust. Lastly, referring to Mr. Ferguson's Balm, "True Type" should get his head rubbed with it as his hair was a bit scarce the last time I saw him; but keep it off your moustache as it is big enough—unless you want it to hide your face after this reply. Now for the S.P.C. man. I should advise him to give honour to whom honour is due. He reminds me of a fox terrier running after an express train—he is barking because he cannot keep up with it. ROBERT YOUNG.

NEW SOCIETY FOR SAXMUNDHAM AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that the object of the show held on December 27th has been attained, viz., the formation of a New Society for Saxmundham and District within a 12 mile radius. Will any fancier desirous of becoming a member please send name and address to me? Up to the time of writing I have had two 10s. 6d. donations promised, and S. A. Flick, Esq., has kindly consented to officiate as hon. auctioneer.

WELSH CAGE BIRD CLUB.

SIR,—I would esteem it a favour if you would publish this letter in your valuable paper, for it appears that my letter of three weeks ago has been overlooked, judging by the questions that I have received respecting new membership. I stated in that letter that if any fancier joined the club before the third week in January they would be eligible to compete at the club show on January 28th, or if they joined the second week in the same month they could compete for the club's specials at Llanelly on the 12th. This offer still holds good; in fact if they will send on their subscription, which is 2s. 6d., at once, they can compete at Llanelly. If at all possible, annual general meeting will be held in conjunction with the club show at Mountain Ash, when I hope to be able to have the cups and medals presented to the season's winners. Any member wishing to place a motion on the agenda must send same to me at once, as no matter will be dealt with otherwise. It should be forwarded to me not later than Saturday, January 18th. Mr. Danger, that well known breeder and judge, will place the cards; it was desirous to get a judge outside the Society, and also one who has not officiated as judge in Wales during the season. All that is wanted is that every member, new or old, shall do his best. If this is done we shall have a successful show for our first venture. I wish to thank you for the above space, also for the kindly way in which you have treated all my correspondence. I wish CAGE BIRDS a successful and prosperous New Year. D. H TEDSTONE (Hon. Sec.).

RARE-FEATHERED BIRDS IN THE SHOWS.

SIR,—I have no objection to giving Mr. Anthony Hay a reply to his letter which appeared under the above heading in your last week's issue. Mr. Hay, I presume, will grant me the right to hold and exercise opinions of my own. Well, it is my opinion that rare-feathered birds cannot satisfactorily be brought into competition with normal-coloured birds. Mr. Hay evidently thinks otherwise. And I agree that he is entitled to hold his own opinion. With his desire to arrive at "some satisfactory verdict," as to whether rare-feathered birds should "be allowed to compete at shows not providing a special class for them," I am in personal sympathy, as this is not the first time I have been pilloried in the pages of CAGE BIRDS for wrong-classing such exhibits! If a responsible body like the N.B.B. and M.C. decides this is to be the case, then, as one of themselves, I must necessarily accept their decision, although against my own convictions. Mr. Hay would seem to think that I stand alone in the attitude I take up, but this, I fancy, is far from being the case. It is wrong to say the Gateshead Committee "grossly exceeded their duty in disqualifying my hen Greenfinch." In the first place, the committee took no part whatever in the matter; in the second place, the bird was not "disqualified." In conclusion, if Mr. Hay at any time shows his rare-feathered bird under me in a rare feathered class I shall be pleased to consider it on its merits.

G. E. WESTON.

SIR,—It would indeed be interesting to hear from Mr. Hay how he makes out that the Gateshead Committee "grossly exceeded their duty." Does he imagine that the committee marked his exhibit wrong class? If this is the case, the sooner he is enlightened upon the subject the better, but surely the wide experience he gives out he possesses will have taught him to know different. His exhibit was marked wrong class by the judge, Mr. Weston, who no doubt will be able to give his reasons for doing so, and not by the committee, and for Mr. Hay to make a charge as he has done against the committee of grossly exceeding their duty, points only to two things, either that he is quite ignorant as to how Gateshead (or any other show for that matter) is managed, or he is making a charge against them without any foundation whatever. Committees don't judge the birds; they pay other qualified people to do this. As to the other part of his letter, it is nothing more than arrant nonsense, and I am surprised that one who would have us believe he is a life-long breeder, exhibitor and a judge would pen such. It would also be interesting to know where this exhibit in question has won the prizes he alleges, and also who were the judges that led him to think he had got hold of a champion that ought not to be beaten? Gateshead Committee know their business, as they have proved in the past, but they don't consider it part of their duty to either mark birds "wrong class," or in any way interfere with them beyond attending to their requirements. They appoint the best judges they can secure, and people who are not disposed to accept these gentlemen's decisions without making a song about it ought not to exhibit. By the way, the bird was not disqualified; it was entered in its wrong class, according to the judge, which is a very different thing. G. BUCK.

SIR,—I am afraid Mr. Hay is "off the line" in accusing both Mr. Weston and the Gateshead Committee of disqualifying his birds. In the first place, the bird was not disqualified, but simply marked "wrong" class" (there is a wide difference between disqualifying and wrong classing). The show committee were never asked to pass their opinion, and did not know that the bird had been wrong classed till the catalogues were in print. Mr. Weston did ask one of the stewards that was attending him what course was usually taken and the reply was that it was entirely left in his (Mr. Weston's) hands. This is covered by rule in schedule which distinctly says that the judge's decision is final and only subject to appeal in case of subsequently discovered fraud. It is no fault of the Gateshead Committee that Mr. Hay entered a rare-feathered Greenfinch in a normal-coloured Greenfinch class. The exhibitor is entirely responsible for his entries, and if he enters a bird in a wrong class he is entirely the loser, as the schedule says that with birds entered in wrong class entry money will not be refunded but will go to the funds of the Society (Mr. Hay is claiming by letter both his entrance fee and railway fare). Seeing that Mr. Hay has placed the case in the hands of the C.B.U. (of which I have not yet had intimation), I think it would have been better to have allowed that body to give their decision before rushing into print and getting opinion passed which might prove prejudicial to their arriving at a decision. Mr. Hay's correspondence will be laid before the members on January 14, the next meeting night, and as he is a member of the Society, we shall be pleased to have him attend and to hear his grievance. T. TAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR LIVERPOOL.

SIR,—A very representative and well-attended meeting of local fanciers was held at the Alexandra Hall, Islington Square, Liverpool, on Dec. 30, to discuss the desirability of forming a new society, having as its object the cultivation and study of bird life in all its varieties. The proceedings throughout were of a very harmonious and enthusiastic character and culminated in the birth of a new society entitled, "The Liverpool Ornithological Society." The annual subscription was fixed at the sum of half a guinea. It is the intention of the promoters that the society shall embrace and cater for all branches of the Fancy, including Canary, British and Foreign bird keeping and exhibiting, and aviculture generally. It will also encourage the study of birds in their wild state. One of the most prominent features in the programme will be the running of an annual all-England show that shall be worthy of being identified with so important a city. Another feature will be a monthly lecture or exhibition by a competent authority in one of the many branches of the Fancy. A further meeting was arranged for a fortnight later to draw up a set of rules upon the adoption of which the officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Fanciers interested and desiring further particulars are invited for the present to communicate with Mr. R. IRWIN, 12, Moscow Drive, Liverpool. —GEO. B. DANIELS, Chairman, pro tem.

CRESTS AT ST. ALBANS.

SIR,—While judging the Crests at St. Albans Show on January 1st I had reason to question the condition of a Crested bird, No. 22, Class 142. I expressed my suspicion to the officials. Subsequent careful examination of the Crest in question convinced me that the bird was honestly exhibited, and I gave it the first prize. I am convinced that Mrs. Pearse was justly entitled to the same, and that any suspicion of the bird having been improperly dealt with was groundless. I would not have made public this statement had it not come to my knowledge that it has been asserted that my final decision was influenced by the fact that the identity of the owner of the bird had been made known to me. GEO. GARDNER.

SIR,—At St. Albans Show on New Year's Day I was subjected to a most unpleasant experience. My dark crested cock, first at Watford (December 10th, 1907) was disqualified by the judge, Mr. Geo. Gardner, for, as he very openly alleged, having had feathers removed from the front of the crest. Mr. Gardner treated me in an exceedingly rude manner, and was, I believe, the cause of my being requested to leave the show, and he told me that the least I said about the bird would be the best for me in the end. I was much distressed and hurt at the occurrence, and after discussing the matter with my husband, journeyed to London and saw Mr. Tyson, the hon. secretary of the Crested Canary Club, requesting him to accompany me to St. Albans to see the bird. Whilst I was at that gentleman's house a telegram arrived from my husband worded, "Everything satisfactory." On my return to the show you may imagine my astonishment to find that the disqualified bird had been awarded first and special during my absence. I have declined to accept any prize or prize-money until the matter is cleared up. The bird I have placed unreservedly in Mr. Tyson's keeping, to be detained as long as he pleases. I am well-known in the St. Albans district, and as the matter has been so freely bruited about, the situation created is simply intolerable. AMY A. PEARSE.

MODEL PRIZE CARDS IN SCOTLAND.

SIR,—I was an exhibitor and visitor at the very excellent show of the Scottish National Cage Bird Society held on 1st and 2nd inst. While the Society is to be congratulated on the result of its endeavours, I trust I may be allowed to suggest an improvement in one direction, although to some it will doubtless seem a matter of minor importance. I refer to the model prize cards in the Norwich Plainhead section (for I am interested specially in that section), I feel sure that few would recognise the bird depicted on the card as a Norwich, or would argue that it in the least resembles that charming and popular bird. While exhibitors are no doubt grateful to the above society for charging only sixpence each for prize cards, instead of one shilling, as is usual, still I think that if these cards are to be of any value at all to exhibitors, the drawing should resemble, as nearly as possible, the perfect specimen. One requires to exhibit very good birds at Edinburgh to win these cards, and I do not think exhibitors would grudge to pay a trifle more for the cards (if, indeed, that is necessary) if so by doing they would get a true model. I may say that the other day I proudly showed to a friend a card I won at the recent show. My friend has no knowledge of Canaries or their fancy points, and I was asked, doubtless quite innocently: "Is your bird like that"? I must say I felt rather inclined to answer: "I trust not"! I hope, therefore, that by another year the Scottish National Society will remedy the defect I have mentioned. I may say that I like very much the style of card, which I think is more suitable than the larger square-shaped cards given at some other shows. Owing to the discussion now going on in the columns of your valuable paper on the question of what kind of Norwich have we to breed, the present seems the opportune time to raise the point referred to in this letter. It would certainly not be advisable to take our model from the Scottish National prize cards. PHŒNIX.

RIBBON FINCHES WITH YOUNG IN WINTER.

SIR,—I have seen lately much correspondence re late Canary laying, and so thought the following might be of interest. In my outdoor aviary, with only a protection of glass windows against the Arctic-like weather of late, I had three eggs out of four hatched on Boxing Day from a pair of Cutthroats. The chicks are so far thriving, and are being well fed by their parents. This pair of birds I bought last March, and they have been nesting off and on ever since, but so far have only reared three. One lot of six youngsters they threw out of the nest when two or three days old. I fancy young birds just now rather a novelty. ALF. G. BEESTON.

LIFTING THE BIRDS AT BROXBURN SHOW.

SIR,—Is it fair that any fancier sending 22 birds to a show, and winning the cup for most points, also 4 firsts, 5 seconds, 4 thirds, 2 vhc's, 2 hc's, and 2 specials, should lift his birds about 2½ hours after they have been judged? Yet this is what happened at the recent Broxburn Show. The leading men in the Fancy are supposed to be a help to young fanciers and young societies. I think this was a gross injustice to any society and to young fanciers. If that is the way to help them on, I have a different opinion. After hurrying up with my business, and getting away to see the show, and to have a look at the best birds, I found them all away. Surely if the birds were worthy of their place they were worthy of being seen and criticised. Being a novice in the Fancy, I had no chance of comparing the birds, to see what was needed for the show bench. I think it was a very unfair action to be played on a new society after having to work so hard to get up a show, after being down for a few seasons. I hope that some of the other fanciers will take up their pens and give vent to their opinion.

WM. MURRAY.

THE BORDER SECTION AT BROXBURN SHOW.

SIR,—Being a breeder of Border Fancy Canaries, I paid a visit to Broxburn Show, held December 23rd last, to try and learn a wee bit about what was wanted for this type of Canary. But, alas! I found that I was rather late in coming to the show, for most of the prize-winners in this section, belonging to Mr. Patterson, of Border Fancy fame, were being packed for home at 3.30 in the afternoon of show. Now, for visitors and exhibitors alike, I think it rather sharp practice for so many winners to be taken away so early in the afternoon of a one-day show. What was the meaning of same? Was the owner afraid of being questioned too much anent the merits of the winners? Anyhow, I am certain Mr. Patterson found a soft mark in one of the [illegible] management, whoever gave him permission to do this. If exhibitors cannot allow their birds to stand the allotted time at a show, I consider they should keep their exhibits at home.

EVEN MARK.

PRIZE MONEY GONE ASTRAY AT STANNINGLEY.

SIR,—We exhibited a bird at Stanningley Show and gained a third prize. After five weeks had gone by, we wrote the secretary, Mr. Boult, asking if he had overlooked our prize-money. He wrote us to say he had sent it along with 45 other letters, and advised us to inquire at the local post office and see if they knew anything about same, which we did. The local postmaster then told us to write the secretary of the show and ask him to send us the counterfoils or the numbers of same. We wrote him again some weeks ago, but have never received either a reply, the numbers, or the prize-money. When one comes to consider the up keep of birds, the entry fees and the railway charges, we think it is going a little too far to expect exhibitors to lose their prize-money through having letters insufficiently addressed. We wonder if any other exhibitor has been treated in the same manner. We wish your splendid paper, CAGE BIRDS, a Bright and Prosperous New Year.

DICKINSON & DUCKWORTH.

RARE BRITISH BIRDS ON THE SHOW BENCH.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper in respect of rare birds at the shows. The reason is this: At Truro Show on December 26 last, Mr. House was judge there of all birds on the bench. There was shown a very rare British bird—a Water-rail—in the pink of condition. My son was there, and finding this bird had no card, he asked Mr. House what he thought of the Water-rail. He said he did not consider it was a cage bird. Now why should not this rare bird be a cage bird as well as a Chough, Magpie, Jay or Waxwing. It is a British bird. No one can say any other, and why should it be debarred from the show bench? I should think any British bird that any fancier took the trouble to get, and beng tame and fit on show bench, should have the same privilege to win, and not be passed because it is a bird the judge does not fancy. Rare birds at shows are a great attraction, as our Owl was at Truro, where it was not looked at by the judge, but at Exeter it was third and St. Columb won second.

THE RARE REDPOLL-BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR, Like Mr Ward, having read about the rarity and beauty of the Redpoll Bullfie Hybrid, I tried for it, and was rather fortunate to breed a cock the first time of asking. I thought one only had to be exhibited to win hands down, but what a surprise I got when I showed mine for the first time—in a class of seven he got last. The second time out he got fourth, each time a Goldie Greenie being amongst the leaders. I may say that mine is not colour-fed, but if it was that, or if he was taken for a small Linnet-Bullie (which is very probable), I cannot say. My opinion is this, that unless anyone was expecting it, or had never seen a Redpoll-Bullie it could easily be taken for a Linnet-Bullie; they both being similar in colour and general appearance. The difference I will try and explain. In the wings, head, and back, there is a slight difference, the Redpoll-Bullie showing two bars in each wing, the Linnet-Bullie one. On the head the Redpoll-Bullie shows a much larger expanse of red, and a trifle paler. The back is slightly darker with more distinct pencilling, also the beak is smaller and darker than the Linnet-Bullie. Of course I am comparing my own birds (having bred both), and not having had the pleasure of seeing any other, do not know if mine is a good or an inferior specimen. I expected to see him show the bib of the Redpoll, but in that I was mistaken. With another moult, and a little more experience, being a novice at exhibiting, I hope to do a bit of good with him.

W. SMALLDRIDGE.

SIR,—With all due respect and honour to Mr. C. J. Ward for the breeding and rearing of that rare Hybrid, the Redpoll-Bullfinch, I would like to point out that, in my opinion, simply because of its rarity it should not take precedence over birds of the commoner cross that, as exhibition specimens, are better birds. If schedules were to read "the rarest Hybrid between British birds," then Mr. Ward's bird would rightly go to the top; but what would be the use of other exhibitors sending their birds when the coveted first prize was already won. It would simply resolve into a question as to which show Mr. Ward's bird was to be sent; the rest would have to send to the other shows. I have read the reports of most shows that the Redpoll-Bullie has been at, and have taken notice, at the time, what has been ahead of him (and, in my opinion, rightly so). I would go further, and say that in one case at least, he has been ahead of some where he should not have been. I need only mention one bird as an instance. He beat his own stable companion at one show (I forget which), and even Mr. Ward must admit that, apart from rarity, his own Linnet-Bullfinch, "Unique," which has been reported as probably the best of its kind on the show bench, and which I have had the pleasure of seeing, is far ahead of it from an exhibition point of view. The Linnet-Bullie certainly is a beauty. Does Mr. Ward think for a moment that supposing, say, the Redpoll-Bullie was to meet Mr. William's champion Goldie-Bullie, the Redpoll-Bullie should win simply because it is a rarer cross? I should say decidedly not. I don't remember for a moment all the birds that have beaten it, but I had the good fortune to see one of them eighteen months ago. He was a beauty then, and he will be much improved since. I refer to Mr. Leigh's Greenfinch-Bullfinch, and I have no doubt the judge was justified in awarding a bird that is probably the best Greenie-Bullie on the bench premier honours, over even Mr. Ward's rare Redpoll-Bullie. The reporters are quite right when they say "wants another moult"; he is only a baby, and wants time to mature before he will make a champion. Mr. Ward must know that Hybrids improve with every moult, as long as they keep in perfect health. Then why should he go and expect a youngster to go and beat old champions simply on account of its rarity? I write this without in the least wishing to detract from the honour that is due to Mr. Ward for rearing the Redpoll-Bullie, and must admit that it is an interesting Hybrid from an exhibitor's point of view, but I think Mr. Ward might remember that there are other grand Hybrids, now in their prime, although, maybe, not so rare. I am with Mr. Ward with regard to the poor classification and incompetent judges, but don't go so far as to say that the exhibitor is judged instead of the exhibit. I am afraid Mr. Ward has let his disappointment get the better of his judgment a little. With regard to poor classification (I refer to societies that pool the classes—i.e., "Any Other Variety Canary or Mule"), perhaps the best plan would be for all Hybrid and Mule breeders to boycot such shows, then perhaps they would provide at least one class for Mules or Hybrids. But as regards incompetent judges, I would point out that, excepting at large shows, the Canary judge has to do the lot, and a good many of them don't know what they have in front of them when they come to the Mule and British classes. But as the Canary men are in the majority, we can hardly expect them to accept a Hybrid judge for the lot, if the show can't afford two. Even Mr. Ward must admit that.

THE NORWICH HEN CLASS AT GATESHEAD SHOW.

SIR, Respecting Mr. Midgley and Mr. Corston's letters in "Twitterings," Mr. Midgley's hen was the bird that won 4th prize, but owing to a mistake in entering Mr. Midgley's name appeared in Class 8 instead of 9. Of course, the entry in Class 8 was marked absent, but there were two No. 3's in Class 9. The prize card was put on Mr. Midgley's bird, but afterwards some one without authority removed it to Mr. Corston's bird. Seeing that Mr. Corston was credited with the win in the catalogue, I followed our usual custom and paid both Mr. Midgley and Mr. Corston the 4th prize money, although Mr. Midgley was really the winner. Mr. Corston being a member, I am quite willing to refund the money to the society out of my own pocket, as I made the mistake of which Mr. Corston was well aware.

T. TAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

SIR,—I notice in this week's "Twitterings," Mr. Corston's comment on my claim to have won 4th prize in the Unflighted Hen Class at Gateshead Show. Merely to convince your numerous readers to whom I am personally unknown that I was not seeking to claim anything beyond what I was legitimately entitled to, I enclose my cage label, prize card and letter accompanying prize-money, from which you will see that my bird (a Yellow) was also No. 3 in Class 9, that it was awarded 4th prize, and that, like Mr. Corston, I have received the prize-money. Obviously two 4th prizes have been awarded, of which I was unaware, and it is evident that the catalogue was so stated by me in error. It is one of those little slips that are perhaps bound to occur in shows of this magnitude. Although I entered and was awarded the prize I have mentioned in Class 9, my name does not appear in the catalogue under that class at all! Mr. Corston and I can apparently shake hands with each other on an equal footing, and I simply trouble you with this further communication as proof of my bona fides in the matter.

A RIFT IN THE LUTE AT PECKHAM.

SIR,—Enclosed please find report of the annual meeting of the Dulwich and Peckham Cage Birds Society. I also take this opportunity of thanking you for the many excellent reports of our meetings, and the support you have given us in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, during the past year. You will no doubt notice by the report that the society is commencing a new life in a new home, and that the new committee are determined to reorganise the working, and hope by the help and co-operation of our members to restore the good name we held in the Fancy previous to our late show. The annual general meeting duly convened, took place on January 2nd, at the Herne Tavern, Peckham Rye, S.E. The president, Mr. J. Peacock, took the chair. Twenty-two members were present, and the meeting was of a lively description throughout. Several very important resolutions were down for discussion. After the minutes of previous meeting had been read and confirmed, and the correspondence had been dealt with, the balance sheet could not be presented in a complete form as the show manager had not got his books ready for audit. The chairman here called upon Mr. F. Cole, the mover of resolution No. 1, to read same to meeting. The resolution in question being of the utmost importance to the society it was listened to with the keenest interest by those present. In a very fair, courteous and able manner. Mr. F. Cole then moved the following: "That the present headquarters do not contribute to the best management or welfare of the society, and this meeting directs the committee to find more suitable accommodation, and empowers them to amend Rule 2 accordingly." Mr. H. E. Tringham seconded the resolution. Messrs. Woolhouse, Goodwin, and Rogers spoke at some length in favour of the headquarters remaining at the Herne Tavern, Mr. H. E. Tringham and E. S. Lugg speaking in favour of more central and convenient headquarters being found. Mr. Rogers frequently interrupting these gentlemen, had several times to be called to order by the chairman. Mr. Rogers eventually moved that the resolution be now put. Mr. J. S. Matthes moved an amendment that a ballot of the whole of the members be taken, ballot papers to be sent to each one. Mr. Rogers moved a further amendment that the resolution be put to the present meeting. This last was carried. It was decided, the president giving his casting vote, that the vote on the resolution be taken by ballot, papers being handed to all present. Upon the same being handed in and counted by the chairman, it was found that 13 had voted for the resolution and 9 against. The Chairman thereupon declared the resolution carried. Upon proceeding to the next resolutions Mr. Woolhouse, as mover of all three, withdrew the whole of them, without any discussion. The election of Committee and Officers was next proceeded with. Ballot papers for the election of Committee having been counted, the result was as follows: Messrs Woolhouse, Hodson Cranfield, Lugg, Brownlie, H. E. Tringham, Wall, Kent, and Rogers. Messrs. Woolhouse, Rogers, Wall, and Kent, in view of the resolution to remove headquarters having been passed, refused to act on Committee. Their positions were filled by those coming next in position of votes. The President, Mr. J. Peacock, and the Treasurer, Mr. W. Goodwin, also declined to again act as officers of the society in a new home. Upon hearing this, several gentlemen of the minority became somewhat excited, behaving somewhat hysterically, and as it seemed impossible to carry the meeting any further, the chairman thought it best to bring it to a close. Mr. H. E. Tringham proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Peacock for the very fair and able manner in which he had conducted the meeting, which was carried unanimously. Mr. Peacock briefly responded, and the meeting closed. The new Committee are meeting early this week when the new headquarters will be decided upon, and also the date of the first meeting. The committee also assures members and fanciers generally, that every effort will be made to thoroughly reorganise the society, and that with the hearty co-operation of all the members they will be able to restore the society to the proud position held in the Fancy previous to our late disastrous show. All communications should be addressed to the Hon. Secretary, W. Hodson, 209, Crystal Palace Road, S.E.

SIR,—At the general meeting of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., held at Headquarters on January 2 (only 23 members being present out of 150) the resolution moved by Mr. F. Cole that the Headquarters of the Society be removed, etc., was carried by a majority of 4. Those who were against the proposition were unanimously agreed that it was not the general wish of the Society that the club should be moved from the house of its inception, where they had watched its progress from infancy to one of the strongest clubs in the kingdom. They therefore, after the above meeting, met to consider the circumstance. Mr. Kent having been elected to the chair, the following resolution was passed:—"That in the event of the Society refusing to rescind the motion aforementioned at a special general meeting to be called, they would form a new society at the present headquarters." Messrs. Rogers and Woolhouse were appointed hon. secs. pro tem, and were instructed to call a meeting for January 21 at 8 p.m., at The Herne, Peckham Rye, S.E. The following gentlemen promised support:—The President, Mr. J. Peacock; the treasurer, Mr. W. Goodwin; the vice-president, Mr. F. G. Bussey; and Messrs. Woolhouse, Rogers, Wall and Kent, of the old committee who were re-elected again for 1908 at the general meeting, and also Messrs. Mazzone, Gain ("News of the World"), Garlick (trustee), Rees, Pierson, Lovesy, Muncey, May and C. Mabey. The latter also promised on behalf of his father, Mr. D. Mabey. Since the above meeting the following have given their names for membership for the society held at The Herne:—Messrs. Jenner, Pierson, Rippon, Lovesy, Muncey, Kates, Smith. We feel sure that when this is known we may rely upon the bulk of the members to support the above.

WOOLHOUSE & ROGERS, Hon. Secs.

ARE THEY RECORD LATE EGGS?

SIR,—Seeing in last week's CAGE BIRDS that Mr. Greatbatch claims to have the record of Canaries' late egg-laying, I should like to say that a friend of mine, a Mr Carter, has a hen which laid on January 1st. Do you not think his is the record?

——— G. HARTSHORN.

SIR,—Seeing a deal of correspondence in CAGE BIRDS about late egg laying, I wished to let you know about a bird of mine. It laid its first egg at 10 o'clock in the morning of Dec. 28th, and another in the afternoon, one on the 29th and another on the 31st. But I am sorry to say it was too much for the poor bird and it died after laying the last egg. How is that for a record?—ED. HOUGHTON.

SIR,—As a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS, and noticing the records of late eggs, permit me to state that I have a German hen that went to nest on the 11th of December and laid her last egg on the 16th, which was five eggs in all, and brought me five young ones on the 28th. All are doing well up to the time of writing, and can be seen at any time by anyone, as they have been seen by many fanciers of Cheshire. So I think that is a record.

THE SHOWS.

MOUNTSORREL AND DIS. F.S.

The annual show was held at the Drill Hall on December 26th, when there was a considerable improvement on the attendance of the previous year. Cage birds were well represented, and some fine birds were on show. Mr. G. H. Smith, the secretary, had everything in apple-pie order. Mr. J. N. Harrison judged.

NORWICH: 1, spl, Orme; 2, Hallam; 3, Hewitt; 4, Ball and Sons. BRIT.: 1, spl, Freer; 2 (no name); 3, Kinch; 4, Stockwell. MEMBERS' CAGE BIRD. 1, 2, 3, 4, Miss Baker, winning Class 43 outright.

DONCASTER O. AND F.S.

The fifth members' show was held on Dec. 26, in the Volunteer Drill Hall—a very suitable place, especially for the cage bird exhibits. The show was an unqualified success. Mr. W. F. Fowler is the secretary, and to him great credit is due. Mr. W. B. Cobb (Leeds), judged. YORK. YELL., CL., ETC.: 1, vhc, Green and Son; 2, Beseoby, 3, hc, Bayley. FALKLAND.

This show was held on Jan. 2, when there was a good turn-up of exhibits. 137 birds in all were staged, among them being some really excellent specimens. The secretary, Mr. George Steedman, had the arrangements well in hand, and everything was in readiness for judging when the judge, Mr. Geo. Martin (Hamilton) was ready to begin. There was also a very hardworking committee, who had everything in apple-pie order. The following placings of the awards appeared to give entire satisfaction:—

HERTFORD.

A very nice little show of cage birds was held in connection with the annual event of the Hertford Fanciers' Association, in the local Corn Exchange, on January 8th and 9th. A very limited classification was provided, and entries came up fairly well, throughout in the 9 classes. The quality, too, was quite up to the average of the past shows held by the association. Staged in a room by themselves the birds were very cosy and comfortable, and were arranged by the stewards that they could be seen by visitors with ease and pleasure. All the arrangements were most ably carried out, as was only to be expected with such experts in show management as Messrs. P. R. Harrower and F. Looker, as chairman and secretary respectively. These gentlemen are a host in themselves, but backed up, as they were, by a most excellent committee, everything went smoothly and well. Mr. G. H. Billett judged. CREST, ETC.: Cancelled. NORWICH (8): 1, res, spl, best bird in show, Yates, shapely, rich-coloured, well feathered bull, ticked; 2, 3, Brookes, eye and wing marked buff, and a clear buff, splendid colour and quality of feather, nice shape and size; vhc, Clayden (2), Miss Thomas; hc, Maies. YORKS. (8): 1, spl., Yates, tick-headed yellow, very nice shape, capital colour and feather, stands well; 2, res., vhc, hc, Philpot and Cross, leader nice clear buff, very shapely, good style and feather; 3, Hudspeth, nicely feathered, shapely four-pointed buff, capital colour; vhc, Males; c, Harris. BRITISH (13): 1, spl, Watson, rich-coloured, nicely feathered, well marked Hawfinch; 2, res, Poole, beautifully marked, nicely feathered, rich-coloured Titlark; res., well marked, nice little Blackcap of good colour; 3, Williams, nice bright-faced Goldfinch, rich body colour, nice buttons and bars; vhc, Miss Hopwood, Fullbrook (2), Titmuss, Gardner, Dickins. MULES (14): 1, 3, vhc, Lees, the well-known team of lights in grand fettle; 2, Miss Thomas, nice coloured, well marked Goldfinch-Bullfinch, very nice shape and feather; 3, Poole, rich-coloured, high quality, nice-shaped Greenfinch-Canary; vhc, hc, Titmuss, Brace; vhc, Gardner, Lees, Cooper, Fullbrook. FOREIGN (12): 1, spl., Howe, well known King Parrakeet, in grand form, romps home; 2, spl., Harrower, very fine blue-fronted Amazon; 3, Cooper, charming example of Bourke's Parrakeet; res., Poole, very pretty pair of Ruficauds; vhc, Watson, Ball, Miss Thomas, Miss Day. MEMBERS' NOR. (4): 1, spl., Braund, neat wing marked yellow of nice colour; 2, Hudspeth, rich coloured, close feathered buff; 3, Miss Croft, shapely, nice quality buff, not so hot in colour. YORKS. A.O.V. (3): 1, spl, Looker, rich coloured, high quality Cinnamon of nice shape and size; 2, Smith, another very nicely feathered, good coloured Cinnamon.

WIMBLEDON.

A splendid success marked the holding of the 3rd Annual Show of the Wimbledon and Dist. C.B.S. This success was enhanced in a great measure by the suitability of the beautiful Queen's Hall, in which the show was held, and by the forethought and taste of those upon whom the arrangement of the show and the staging devolved. The display of a little taste is an excellent adjunct to a cage bird show; and the use of floral and evergreen decorations lent a charm and effect to the whole. The entry was a splendid one, being an increase of about 60 on last year's total. We have never seen a show better arranged or one productive of a prettier effect. The society, too, is to be congratulated on the splendid increase in their entry, and upon the care with which the exhibits were tended. One and all agreed that it was the best show ever held in Wimbledon. Mr. W. H. Colman, the excellent and practical secretary, received many deserved congratulations. The show committee, one and all worked with zeal and persistency. They were: —Messrs. W. H. Stoakley (chairman), R. P. Broome, Dell, Carson, Smith, P. Rorke, Dyke, F. Piper, F. Day, G. Griffiths, and G. J. Warley. Mr. Whittome also lent valuable aid. Judging was over by 3 o'clock, and catalogues (under the superintendence of Mr. Stoakley) were issued about an hour afterwards. In the open section, the Yorks. classes were well contested. They were under the patronage of the Y.C.C. for members outside Yorkshire; and some lovely quality faced the judge, giving him no little trouble to separate the birds in many cases. The open novice section in Yorks. was under the patronage of the Y.C.C., and here, too, competition was keen and sustained, and the entry large. The Crested C.C. bestowed their patronage, but did not succeed in attracting a large entry. The British were well patronised, and some fine exhibits were on show. Mr. J. Robson judged all but Yorks., which were judged by Mr. H. Knight.

Members' Classes.

These contained some really tip-top quality, much of which would have done well in open. Classes were not heavily filled, but the competition was very keen in the three sections. Mr. J. Wheeler, of Kingston, staged large and grand teams, the whole of his splendid stud being for sale, owing to family illness and consequent inability on the part of our old and respected friend to give that attention to the birds necessary to keep up the reputation of the stud. Norwich were good, typical, and well posted. Yorkies also made a fine show. CHAMPION SECTION.—NOR. YELL. (5): 1, spl, Lupton and Jordan; 2, 3, vhc, hc, Wheeler. BUFF CK. ELGIN.

The twenty-second annual show was held Jan. 1st, in the Corn Market Hall. Entries came up fairly well, and the quality all through was quite up to former standards. Norwich were a grand lot, some of them quite reaching high-water mark. Britishers had a drop in numbers, but the quality was quite as good as formerly. The cup for best bird in the hall was captured by Mr. Mackie, the cup for best Norwich (local) by Mr. Macdonald, and the cup for best in the strongest class in the show, Mr. R. Garden. We were very pleased to see the worthy President, Mr. Sandy Mennie, looking "as fresh as paint"; long may he be spared to grace the annual new year's event. On our taking leave of him, we met Mr. Peter Garden, and his worthy nephew, Mr. R. Garden, also Messrs. Lumsden, Cross, Junner and others, all working like Trojans, making this show a complete success. The gate, we believe, was a record one, the hall being thronged with visitors throughout the whole day. The awards were made by that very popular judge, Mr. P. Pettigrew, and grumbling was conspicuous by its absence. Judging was over in good time, the cards were soon up and everything went off like clock work. The visitors derived some amusement from an escaped Budgerigar, which flew merrily through the hall, the juveniles no doubt thinking that it was for their especial benefit. It eventually returned to its cage and passed in beside its mate. The Secretary and Treasurer is Mr. A. D. M'Caskie; he is one of the right stamp, knows his duties well and is courteous to all. Much credit is due to him for the able management of the show.

KILMARNOCK.

That old-established fixture held annually by the Kilmarnock Ornithological Association was held in the Agricultural Hall, on January 1st and 2nd. Breaking away from tradition the executive on this occasion guaranteed full prize money, and no deduction for prize cards. In the British section the result was satisfactory, but in the Canary section the entries were not such as to encourage the committee to pursue their liberal minded policy. The birds were nicely staged at the end of the hall, and well attended to by a capital staff of stewards under the direction of Mr. J. Murdoch. Mr. J. Blane once again held the post of secretary and kept a watchful eye over the general arrangement, whilst by his energy of management and courtesy to all who sought his aid he did much to further the success of the venture. The judges were Messrs. J. Higgins, Scots and British; Mr. A. Roberts the remainder.

SCOTS (7): 1, 2, 4, Paton, hot foul headed buff, rare head and neck, nice length of side, gets head well down, and uses tail well, 2, very nervy, quick handling piebald, 4, yellow, nice shape and action, not so neat in feather; 3, Kerr, grand shaped buff, moves well, nice feather, does not get head down so well as the leaders; vhc, he, Lyon. HEN (7): 1, 3, Paton, green and clear buff, two very nervy, quick actioned birds, with nice shoulders, good wings and tails, leader the neatest in feather; 2, Bowie, very neat, smart buff, not quite so long in side, but very clever; 4, Kerr, not so sharp in action, and carries head higher, good back and tail; vhc, Lyon. NOR. CLEAR, ETC. (4): 1, 2, McFarlane, big bouncing buff, plenty of colour, nice carriage, well feathered, and a very neat stylish, high coloured yellow of beautiful quality and type, which we liked much; 3, Jones, good bodied, high coloured yellow, nice silky feather, trifle heavy in brow; 4, Gorven, shapely buff of nice colour, hardly so fine in feather. HEN (6): 1, 2, McFarlane, two rare shaped buffs, nice chubby bodies, short tails and wings, plenty of colour and close, and silky in feather; 3, Gorven, very pretty yellow, capital shape, nice colour, and good quality of feather; 4, Willison, nice stylish, well feathered, good coloured buff. MANNINGHAM.

This fixture was held in the Drummond Road Board Schools, on January 4th, but was not so successful as some of the Yorkshire Union events which have preceded it. This arose in some measure doubtless from the event coming just after the holiday season, that it was not at all well advertised, the extremely cold weather which prevailed, and the fact that several of the most prominent Yorkshire exhibitors had big teams at the Scottish National show; under the circumstances the executive may congratulate themselves upon receiving an entry of 302. Taking the classes generally, the quality was remarkably good, although not a few of the birds were showing signs of the season's wear and tear. The room in which the show was held is one of the best in Yorkshire for the purpose, and although the morning was dull and foggy the light was good, enabling the birds to be judged with ease and comfort. They were staged at a nice height, and their wants were well attended to by the stewards. The room was kept at a nice temperature by the means of hot water pipes, and though it was bitterly cold outside, the birds were as comfortable as if they had been at home. Messrs. Wellock, Coates, Dennison, Robinson, Varley and Armstrong rendered most efficient service as stewards, whilst the secretaries, Messrs. Kemp and Western, were unflagging in their efforts to make things work smoothly and successfully; in them the Manningham C.B.A. have a brace of good hard-working, courteous officials. Mr. C. A. House judged.

DUNOON N.B.

The Cowal O.S. held their annual show of cage birds in the Castle Gardens Pavilion, Dunoon, on 1st January. The pavilion is one of the best places we have seen for some considerable time in which to hold such an event, being spacious, well lighted, and free from draughts, just an ideal spot for a bird show. This society have a grand list of patrons and they don't forget to do things well. The office bearers are as follows: President, Mr. J. W. Campbell; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. D. G. Gossling, Richard Mills, J.P., and Marshall; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. John McFarlane. There is also a grand working committee. The Secretary, Mr. McFarlaue, is the right man in the right place, and thoroughly understands the game. He is also courteous and obliging. The judge was Mr. Robert Wright (Greenock).

DUNFERMLINE.

Dunfermline held their annual show on the 1st and 2nd January, and taken on the whole the exhibition was well up to that of former years. Scotch Fancies were at the head of the programme and brought together a very nice selection. We have seen this variety stronger, but to-day the class of bird on view was a decided improvement, some really high-class birds keenly contesting the various classes. Norwich Plain and Crestbreds were a nice collection. Many noted winners were on view. The judge in this section had the pleasure of handling a very choice lot. Crests and Crestbreds are always strong here, and to-day they upheld their reputation. Some real gems were staged, particularly the winning Crestbred, which was a stunner and no mistake. Borders were allotted two classes and brought together a very choice and difficult lot to decide upon. It would probably pay the society to open this classification up another year, as the little gentlemen is on the increase in Fifeshire. Mules were good and again brought some real, class specimens fit to win at any show. The palm of the show, however, went to the British section, the classes being heavy and containing the right material. Bullfinches were an exceptional lot, and the judge unfortunately had to pass some as of doubtful nationality. Goldfinches were a nice level lot and very difficult to separate, while the Greenfinch, Linnet and Siskin classes all contained representatives of high description. The foreigners too were a good all round collection. The cage bird exhibits were comfortably staged at the end of the hall, free from all draughts and were under the care of an enthusiastic and obliging committee, headed by the worthy secretary, Mr. Bowie, to whom very great credit is due for the excellent arrangements made and for the success achieved. He was ably assisted by his colleague, Mr. Rankin. Mr. Cochrane (Edinburgh) judged Scotch Fancies, Borders, Mules and British, and Mr. Campbell (Stirling) the Nor. Plainhead, Crest and Crestbreds. Their awards were received with general satisfaction.

FORFAR.

Forfar held their annual show on January 1st and 2nd, and it proved to be up to their usual high standard. Norwich all round were a good show, the quality throughout being of a very high order. Many noted winners were staged here, and this variety was judged by Mr. Thomson (Aberdeen). Borders, British, and Foreigners were a good show, some rare specimens being on view. Mules in this section were up to those of former years, and the quality was even in advance in many cases. These varieties were judged by Mr. J. W. Bruce. The awards of both judges were well received. The success of the show is in large part due to the efforts of the able and unexcitable secretary, Mr. John McKinnon, who makes an ideal official. He evidently knows how to conduct a show, and is to be congratulated. Other office-bearers were:—President, Mr. E. Grant; vice-presidents, Messrs. Wm. Coutts, jun., and J. M. Fenton; committee, Messrs. J. Cable, D. Falconer, D. Duncan, G. Robertson, J. Liddle, D. Kennedy, F. A. Birrell, A. Murdoch, A. Low, Wm. Gerrard, A. Smith, G. Bruce, J. Bowman, P. Taylor, and they are a very enthusiastic and capable body.

ST. ALBANS.

The third annual show of St. Albans and Dis. F.S. was held in the Drill Hall, on New Year's Day, and was a success. The hall is a spacious building; the light too is good. The management of the show was in capable hands. The hon. secretaries, Messrs. Odell and Hester, have a full knowledge of show arrangements, and their courtesy and kindliness won the regard of all. Councillor Horace Slade is the President, the list of patrons is a long and influential one, while the committee consists of the following practical fanciers: Messrs. J. King (chairman), Williams, Brennan, A. Pinnock, Jagger, Hockett, Carmen, Wilde, Botsford, Harrison, Goodchild, Wiggins, Godden, Stone, H. Pinnock, S. Harrison, Hale, Lumbis, Tuckett, Clitheroe, Crawley, Sheppard, Mayle. The entries generally were good, the quality of an excellent standard, and the competition keen. Mules, Goldfinches, and Bullfinches were particularly strong classes, and the quality of the highest order. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

HEXHAM.

The first annual show took place in the Temperance Hall on New Years Day, and, judging by the attendance of the public, it proved a great success. There were only three classes given for cage birds, but no doubt if the local fanciers of this intriesting branch will rally round the committee, they will extend the classification another year. The secretary, Mr. Gillespy, is a good worker, and is deserving of much credit. The treasurer is Mr. Pickering, who also worked hard and well. Let the local cage bird men give them their utmost support another year, and no doubt a good show will be the result. Mr. T. H. Welch judged our section with every satisfaction.

CAN. A.V. (13): 1, spl, Crozier, variegated Norwich buff, good chest and back, nice short wings, well carried; 2, 4, vhc, Bates, 2nd a clear buff, sweet head, nice body, substance and wings; 3, Makepeace, buff variegated Norwich, good head and neck; he, Newman; c, Green. BON-ACCORD C.B.S. (Aberdeen).

The annual show was held in the Unitarian Hall, Skene Street, on Jan. 1st and 2nd. Entries did not come quite up to expectations, although they numbered 300. But the quality made up for the deficiency in number; especially was this the case in the Norwich section, which would have compared with many of the open shows held in this district. Two valuable Silver Cups were keenly fought for, one for best Norwich, and the other for best British. The former was won by Mr. L. Will, with a nice young yellow cock, the runner up being Mr. John Strachan, with a buff var. cock. The British bird Cup was won by Messrs. Ewen and Anderson, with a very sweet Waxwing. We trust the show will prove a financial success. The arrangements were admirably carried out by the able secretary, Mr. Wm. Jamieson, to whom much of the credit for the success of the show is due; he was well backed up by the President, Mr. Wm. Rae, and vice-presidents, Messrs. W. A. Duncan and Mr. John Still. Mr. Hampton (Brechin) judged Norwich, and Mr. Hugh Allan (Aberdeen) British and Foreign.

PLYMOUTH.

The Western F.S. held their first annual show in the Market, January 1st. The cage bird section was well catered for, but the entries did not come quite up to expectation. The committee adopted every precaution for the comfort of the exhibits, which were staged in a snug corner of the hall, free from draughts. Mr. W. Watson had charge of the secretarial department, and deserves credit for the tactful and courteous way in which he carried out his duties. We hope another year he will be rewarded by a good entry. He was admirably assisted by a hard-working committee. The quality of the exhibits staged was on the whole very good. The judge was Mr. T. Deeble (Plymouth), and his awards were generally well-received.

YORKS., YELL., CL., ETC. (Amalgamated) (9): 1, Pincombe, close and fine in feather, good style, lovely position; 2, Staples, close up, pressed winner hard, well up on leg, close in feather, beautifully moulded; 3, Tremlett, we took to be a buff, which should have been wrongly classed; vhc, Harris; hc, Woodley. PATELY BRIDGE.

The above society held their first show of Canaries on Jan. 4th, in the Oddfellows' Hall. It was open to a 10-mile radius and members, we think that, had the radius been 20 miles, a still better entry would have been the result. 32 birds were staged in six classes. The hall is a nice room, but somewhat cold, many of the birds feeling the cold more than others. Mr. Lawson makes a very good, hard-working Secretary. There was a good attendance of visitors. Mr. G. H. Barnwell judged, and his awards were well received.

YORKS. CL. YELL. (4): 1, Pullen, nice shape, good wing carriage, steady, fine position; 2, Shuttleworth, nice bird all round; 3, Barfe, would not show itself, very soft; 5, w.c., good shape, best bird in this class, hard lines. BUFF (5): 1, spl, best bird in show, Weatherhead, nice typical bird, well up on leg, fine shape and condition; 2, Pullan, long and nice position; 3, Shuttleworth, nice bird; 4, Barfe, another nice bird. TICK. ETC. (7): 1, 2, Barfe, nice slim pair, good condition, well shewn; 3, Richmond, eyes and wing marked, nice position and feather; 4, Brown, wing tick, another nice bird. HEN (8): 1, Brown, nice typical yellow, grizzle at shoulder, grand shape, good position, nice quality, runs close for spl for best bird; 2, 3, Shuttleworth, 2 fine buff, lame on right foot, good wing carriage, 3 nice yellow, good shape; 4, Richmond, nice typical buff, feeling the effects of the cold. NOR. (3): 1, 2, 3, Richmond, cinn., Crest and Crestbred in the order named, all very good. SELL. (4): 1, 2, 3, Richmond, nice team, would have stood a chance in the open classes; 4, Shuttleworth.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

DOUGLAS (I.O.M.).

Held in Derby Castle on January 1st. The entries were rather poor, owing somewhat, perhaps, to the action of the committee in raising the entry fee from one shilling to one and three pence. The British were very good, especially the Linnets, for which there were two classes fresh-caught and house-moulted. Mr A. Wellings judged.

PLUMSTEAD AND WOOLWICH.

An excellent entry for a first effort was the result of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S. initial effort, held in the Trinity Schools, Woolwich, on January 2nd and 3rd. The President is the Rev. G. J. Bayley. Mr. J. Hazell is chairman of committee, Mr. A. Best vice-chairman, and Mr. E. Meades treasurer. Messrs. Pawley and Newnham are the hon. secretaries, to whom nothing but praise is due for their efficient, kindly and courteous treatment of all concerned. Their care for the exhibits too was pronounced, and the whole of the arrangements of the executive were carried out with smoothness and method, and without a hitch. The staging was erected upon an excellent plan for viewing, and the tiers were prettily decorated with pot plants and ferns, utility and decorative effect went hand in hand. The Society is only six months old, and yet the show was patronised, and the arrangements carried out with as much effect and result as the majority of shows. The room was well lighted, the judging over, cards up, and catalogues out, in excellent time. Quality was conspicuous throughout, and the competition well sustained. Mr. J. Robson judged.

SOUTH SHIELDS AND JARROW.

A Combined Show.

A combined show between South Shields and Jarrow Clubs, was held on January 2nd at South Shields. We had a very good turn out of exhibits. Mr. Shepherd (Newcastle) placed the cards and gave general satisfaction. A special (a tobacco pouch) for most entries, given by Mr. Jos. Richardson, was won by Mr. W. Duke, who also won the silver cruet given by Mr. J. S. Carrick for most points. A special for the best Border Fancy cock, and one for the best Border Fancy hen were won by Messrs. W. Duke and R. Thompson, respectively. Special for best bird in show was won by Mr. Thompson's clear yellow Yorks cock, and was given by a Jarrow member. Another special given by Mr. R. Murrell for the best Norwich hen, was won by Mr. Jos. Richardson. We had 136 entries from Shield's members and 35 entries from Jarrow members. The show was poorly attended, making the takings at the door small. We will, however, be able to pay 3/10 per class, which is good considering we had 50 classes.

Canary Notes in Brief.

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

We all know what the term clogged feet means, and have doubtless at one time or other all found the necessity for catching a bird for no other purpose than to clean its feet of a load of foul, hard-dried filth, and wash them.

The Clogged-Feet Difficulty.

I referred to the subject in these notes not long ago, when a friend who had doubted the generally expressed cause was inclined to believe it was more often an accompaniment of some physical disease. However it may be in some special cases there can be no doubt whatever that in a very great number of cases—probably one may safely venture to say in the vast majority of them—the cause is nothing more or less than dirt. Sometimes it is neglected cages, or it may be that it is what one may term a dirty, untidy bird, which is frequently hopping about the floor of the cage, getting its feet soiled with moist filth, and allowing it to dry on them.

Some birds will be at pains to pick from their feet any clinging dirt at once; others won't. And again there are lots that will hop about the cage floor any length of time and never get the feet soiled at all. Whether they consciously avoid the filth or not, I am not going to speculate now. When cases arise, it is easy enough to deal with them by washing clean in warm water, and, if necessary, to avoid a repetition, add a covering of sawdust to the cage floor, which is a very effectual remedy.

Enamel or Whitewash?

This question is the natural outcome of the last note. When the friend already mentioned queried the cause of dirty feet I suggested enamelled cages as a contributing cause.

Now, here is a case in point. A singing Canary, kept as a pet and caged singly in a fair sized cage covered with sanitary distemper, was never once troubled with clogged feet. Recently its cage was renovated and the inside done up nice and smart with two coats of hard drying enamel. Now that same bird kept under precisely similar conditions, and in just its usual health, is frequently troubled with clogged feet. Of course, this is only one instance, but scores of others of a similar nature could be given.

It requires but little thought to see what makes all the difference. Distemper, which may be classed in the same category as whitewash, is of an absorbent nature, and any moisture coming into contact with it is soon absorbed, whereas enamels are just the reverse, and any wet or moisture must lie upon its surface until it is evaporated, or in a manner of speaking, absorbed by the air of the room.

The absorption by distemper or whitewash takes place in a matter of some seconds of time, by the air, as when it has to evaporate off an enamelled surface, the time may extend to hours, and will never be less than a few minutes. Thus it is, in a nutshell, a case of giving a bird one or two chances of hopping into moist filth, or scores, or even hundreds of chances. When all points are coolly considered, there can be little doubt but that for general use the absorbent material has the balance in its favour.

The Renovation of Breeding Cages.

Although the exhibition world will still be making a great demand upon one's time and attention, it will be advisable to begin overhauling the breeding cages and appurtenances at an early date. With the opening of a new year the prospects of the approaching great event of the season in the show line, and the necessary selections and preparations for it will keep the exhibitor busily employed in body and mind until it is numbered among the events that have passed. After that it is but a little time before the room will be demanding urgent attention to get it into shape for breeding to commence.

Whenever possible, it is an excellent plan to thoroughly wash out the cages with a fairly strong solution of some disinfectant two or three times before re-whitening or distempering them, allowing an interval of a week to elapse between each, and using a small stiffish brush to work the fluid well into the corners and any cracks about the cages. And when doing the cages, do not forget that it is most important to deal with the staging if any is used and also the walls of the room at the same time. To do one part and not another is practically throwing good work away. You will never reduce the red mite trouble to a minimum by such fitful methods.

A Spell of Winter.

At the time of writing we appear to be on the verge of a spell of bitter cold, wintry weather. The temptation to get up heat will be great, but to everyone who succumbs to it let the old adage that a good servant may be a bad master be well taken to heart. Never a year passes but we hear of disasters with heating apparatus, and it is not always careless owners that suffer. In fact the most skilled aviculturists as well as the most methodical workers suffer as great losses as the most negligent.

If that convenient and portable nuisance, an oil-stove, is the source of heat it should, as it were, always be held in charge on suspicion. Never pin your faith to its reliability, be its name and fame ever so good. This will look much like obstinate and hard pessimism, but remember there are times when it is necessary to be hard or cruel in order to be kind. You cannot keep an oil-stove under too close observation, and you cannot clean it too much or too often. Even under the most favourable conditions the stove should be extinguished and the top of the burners and wick cleaned twice a day.

Do not cut the wicks after they are once trimmed into proper shape and give a nice steady even flame. It is much better to just wipe off the charred top with a bit of rag or soft paper and finally blow away with a smart puff or two any tiny fragments of charred wick that may have dropped about the top of the oil tank. Never turn up the flame quite to the full extent as soon as lit; when the burners get warm the draught is rather brisker and this causes the flame to run up voluntarily a little higher. Never allow the flame to expire from want of oil, and do not fill the tank brimful.

It is a great help to cleanliness to use non-combustible wick, and finally only the best and purest oil should be used. The quality of the oil makes a vast difference to the safety and deleteriousness of oil-stoves. A cheap, low flash oil is not only noisome to burn, but is an ever present source of dangers and disasters cropping up when least expected.

PRESENTATION OF THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB CUP.

A very pleasing incident took place at Manchester Show last Saturday, January 4th, writes a correspondent, the presentation to Mr. John Trengove, of Rishton, of the Norwich Plainhead Club Challenge Cup, he having won the same outright. Mr. Raynes, the secretary, opened the proceedings with a few appropriate remarks dealing briefly with the advantages to be gained by Norwich breeders joining the N.P.C., and reviewing the work of the club for the past year. Mr. Raynes also remarked on the good feeling which at present existed amongst the members, and said that he was very glad that Mr. Trengove had won the cup, and had no doubt every other member was also pleased, as Mr. Trengove was most popular and respected, and had tried hard for the coveted prize. All present were delighted to find Mrs. Raynes called upon to make the presentation, which she did in a very graceful manner. Mr. Trengove in reply, after thanking Mrs. Raynes for making the presentation, and for her kind remarks, endorsed what Mr. Raynes had said as to the advantages to be gained by joining the club, and said that he should like to see a substantial prize given in future for the runner-up for this cup, so that there would be more competition and more interest taken in the last of the Cup Shows. He also said that it had been a great struggle to win the cup, but he considered now that he was well repaid. The friendly spirit which had existed between the cup fighters during the last few years had been a source of pleasure to him. Mr. W. Booth and Mr. S. Cook also made short witty speeches congratulating Mr. Trengove on his victory. We understand that Mr. Trengove is standing down now, to give someone else a chance with the next cup.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

MANNINGHAM Show held on Saturday last received only a moderate entry—viz., 302, for a schedule comprising 27 classes, giving an average of slightly over 11 per class. Two Norwich Plainhead classes were provided, one of which only contained five entries, and the other was cancelled. The fanciers of this variety will have to give better support to the shows that provide classes for them, or they will find themselves left out in the cold altogether.

THE Novice Classes again came up well and some nice exhibits were staged, but one or two unfortunate occurrences somewhat marred the even tenor of the show. The first of these concerned the second prize-winner in the novice Yellow hens, this lady being noticed to sing, and on this account "she" was disqualified. The exhibitor stated that he had never heard it even attempt to sing, and as it is an unflighted bird, every allowance must necessarily be made. In fairness to the exhibitor, who has several times scored well up in Yellow hens, it must be stated that this is not the bird he has been showing previously.

THE other case seems to be practically one of carelessness. A novice exhibitor of Norwich Plainheads had entered four birds, two in the cock class and two in the hen class, and these, by some miscreance, were either ticketed wrongly or put into wrong cages, with the result that the two cocks appeared in the hen class and vice versa. On the Friday night another fancier heard a Yellow singing lustily in the Norwich hen class and communicated with the secretary asking him to look at that exhibitor's birds in the daylight next morning, and, if a mistake had been made, to rectify the same. This was done, thus putting two out of the four birds in their proper classes. The other two, unfortunately, were not noticed to be wrong, with the result that a Buff Norwich cock was awarded second prize in the class for hens, and a Yellow hen 3rd in the class for cocks. It behoves fanciers generally to take particular care in such matters as these, as they are a source of great trouble to the show officials, and often cause grave discontent amongst the fanciers themselves.

ONE of the visitors to the show was "Pa" Mundell, and he was engaged in spotting good birds at long range, pointing out his fancy from the opposite side of the room. Mr. Chittenden (of British bird fame) likened him unto the tailor who, on a mother inquiring when he could come and measure her son for a suit of clothes, told her he would be passing through their station on a certain train and that she must be there on the platform and point out the boy to him as he went by. This she did, shouting to the tailor as the train rattled through: "This is him." "Reight," the sartorial artist yelled back again; "I've got his measure." The clothes arrived in due course, and were an exact fit!

SECRETARIES of Yorkshire Union Societies will do well to study rules three and 44 in their books, so as not to miss their society's nominations for the Yorkshire Union for the coming year, also any suggestions for alterations of rules, etc., which must be in the hands of the Y.U. Secretary not later than February 1st in each year. In respect of these nominations one thing I am sorry to hear, and that is, that the present secretary of the Union, Mr. F. Hammond, has intimated to all the Union Societies that he wishes to resign his positon at the end of the year, his reason for this being that for some time he has not enjoyed the best of health, and that in future he must reserve his energies for his daily labours and have a little more time in which to recuperate. The whole of the Yorkshire Union will hear this with regret, as during his term of office he has made many friends, who will all wish him a speedy return to health and strength. Mr. Hammond has served the Union well, no work, no matter how troublesome, being too great for him to undertake for the welfare of his association. His tact and perseverance indeed, combined with his ability in serving the 1,100 members comprising the Union, are too well known to need mention by HARMLESS TO OTHER ANIMALS.

The Raven in Captivity.

The largest of the British Crow family, and its many mannerisms in captivity, are dealt with in this Article.

On the subject of the Raven in Captivity, Mr. J. Walpole-Bond says in a contemporary that of all our indigenous birds, none perhaps makes such a fascinating pet: his antics, his mimicry, in short, his whole personality, will gratify one. It is not given to everyone to take a young Raven from the nest, built as it is in some stupendous rock-face; but everyone may for two or three pounds (and the bird is well worth this) obtain one from the best dealers, or from Leadenhall Market.

On Catching your Hare.

If you are lucky enough to know a haunt, and bold enough to storm the eyrie, put off taking your pet that is to be until his pen feathers are well developed; in fact, if you will risk it, leave him in his cradle till nearly fledged. Remember that the parents' care at this stage of his existence is priceless, and if you can get him a day or two before he would of his own accord leave the nest, so much the better for him and you later on.

It is not always easy work to bag your captive, even after reaching the eyrie, for young Ravens are remarkably powerful, and by straining backwards, and otherwise resenting being touched, will hinder you all they can; and be it recollected that when dangling at the end of a rope, or perhaps clinging to the crags after an arduous climb without tackle, you will probably have only one hand to spare.

However, we will suppose that you have safely gripped the finest bird. Place him in a basket or wallet slung over your back (a fishing creel is an excellent receptacle), and make your way home. Arrived there, get a hamper with some straw in it, and having put your Raven in it keep him in a dry shed or outhouse.

Where and How to Keep Him.

For the first week or so he will want careful attention. Feed him often, but in small quantities, with small pieces of meat, rabbit, or any sort of flesh, but take care that the pieces are really small. Do not, to save yourself trouble and time, push huge lumps of meat down his red throat, for at first you may even have to open his great beak whilst administering to his wants.

But after he can feed himself, I do not advise that he should be kept in an enclosed space, unless it be very roomy or you have a special aviary for the purpose. I always let mine have the run of the garden after clipping one of the wings. Of course, you must expect a certain amount of damage, such as plants dug up, trees barked, and so forth, for the Raven is a mischevous fellow; but to my mind this is of small moment. Either keep a Raven and sacrifice a few plants, or do not keep him at all. Do not hold him in durance vile in a cage.

Meal-Time Manners.

Long after your pet can feed himself he will, from sheer laziness, flutter his wings spasmodically and open his beak as you approach, plainly asking you by sundry croaks to give him a morsel. He will now eat practically anything—porridge, scraps of bread, meat, potatoes, fish, and what not; he esteems the eyes of animals as a great dainty, and a mouse, mole, or rat affords him intense delight.

One cat I knew was wont to bring the mice it caught to the Raven; the two were fast friends, but to a strange cat or dog he was ferocity personified. There was a poodle, on whose back he would jump and tear off the gaudy bow encircling its black neck.

Do not be surprised if you see your Raven burying meaty bones; he makes a regular business of this, leaving them interred perhaps a fortnight or more, when unerringly he returns to the spot and makes a gruesome repast. He will also bury anything bright and shining; forks, spoons, bracelets, and brooches are eagerly snapped up by the sable villain, to be tenderly deposited amongst the roots of your favourite rose tree.

"Quoth" the Raven

Your Raven will make himself a linguist: there is no need to give him lessons. Mine would say, amongst other things, "Good morning," "Come along," "Get away, you old fool!" and "How do do?" in decidedly nasal tones. He would imitate a dog barking to such perfection that I never knew the difference; but naturally he will pick up those expressions which he hears most frequently.

As I say, if you can, give him the run of your garden or paddock, and, further, if you have a real country place, do not pinion him or clip the glory of his wing; but when sufficiently tame liberate him entirely. You need have no fear; he will not desert so good a master, but will hang about your homestead or park perpetually, even if taking occasional flights into the surrounding country. He will get to know your voice full well, and an early-adopted cry or whistle will fetch him to you. He may either roost in a tree, or, if accustomed to it from his youth up, in some shed that you have thoughtfully built for or apportioned to him.

Rough and Tumble Fun.

Ravens are very hardy and long-lived birds. Seldom are they ill or ailing, save from the bite of some big dog with which they have taken too great a liberty, or from a hoe-prod by an irate gardener who has had his plants destroyed or his brawny calf nipped (and the Raven's nip is no mean one).

In the winter, when snow was on the ground, I have repeatedly watched mine rolling on their backs in it: whilst balancing some small object, such as a piece of wood or stick, on their feet, they would adroitly jerk the same into the air, endeavouring to catch it again. Though I have made a special study of Ravens in their native fastness, I have never yet had the good fortune to witness this with a real wild one; but doubtless it does occur.

See that your Raven has plenty of water especially if he is pinioned in the garden or in a big aviary; you will find him a thirsty creature.

A Word of Warning.

And now a word of warning. If you have a Raven on the premises, keep your chickens and ducklings safe, and see that your rabbit-hutches fasten securely. Some of mine came to an untimely end in this way, for a Raven I had—cunning rogue that he was—would accompany the gardener when he went to feed the rabbits, and, from repeated watching, learnt the trick of the catch securing the doors. When the coast was clear this vile murderer jumped on top of the hutches, and, opening them adroitly with his bill, entered and destroyed all the inmates. But observe precaution and you will find no more endearing pet than the dusky Raven.

The Fatal Dinner.

The Rev. Francis Irwin, has also recently had something to say about the Raven, in one of the monthly magazines. Speaking concerning aviaries for public schools and their influence for good, he writes: No doubt, the birds might sometimes wish for a less noisy ring of admirers than schoolboys, and a diet more carefully selected than occasionally falls to their lot. Who but boys, for example, would think of feeding tame Ravens on lucifer matches and red rubber football bladders cut into strips to resemble worms. Our last pair of Ravens had been with us seven years, exercising their powerful gizzards on many strange substances, before this fatal meal carried them off in their prime. Cage life had perverted their discrimination.

Of course such dangers might have been averted by giving these particular birds their liberty. We tried it once, but with disastrous results. At first, all promised well, and it was an interesting spectacle to watch these magnificent birds wheeling in wide circles round the towers as they cawed to the blast, now stooping at the Jackdaws on the roof, or sailing gently down to share a meal or a romp with their numerous boy friends in the playgrounds.

Imps of Darkness.

We were soon to learn, however, that Ravens can be amiable and yet "have in their hearts millions of mischief." That aviary keeper would indeed require to be swathed in triple brass who could listen undismayed to the formidable deputation that came to present their indictments against our pets. What defence could we offer to a venerable astronomer, speechless with the effort to suppress unclerical expletives, as he led us to the Observatory and pointed first to the crunched fragments of a thermometer, and next produced some shreds of well-masticated blue cardboard that had once been a sun-record? Hard on the heels of the astronomer came an angry gamekeeper brandishing two handfuls of headless pheasant chicks. There was nothing for it but reincarceration.

The miscreants took their life-sentence cheerfully enough. Beyond an occasional chance of ragging any unfortunate tame Jackdaw or Magpie who came to call on them at meal-times, they were now out of harm's way, and their playfulness continued to afford amusement to any visitor who did not mind having his finger bitten. They had "done time" for seven years, when the end came, as above described.

*A Little Girl's Lizards.

I am only a little girl, but my father has given me a pair of Lizards. He looks after them for me, and I watch him and help a little, and he explains to me about them. It is most interesting to watch them as nestlings and through their moult, when their beautiful plumage comes. When they attain that, the markings and spangling seem to repay one for the attention that must be given them. If you allow them to pluck or lose one feather it becomes white on the ends. A good specimen ought to have a clear cap with no dark feathers. But my father pointed out to me that the dark birds in the nest would be the best. They were not all clear caps, some being broken, but I am pleased to say I had a few very nice birds.—Sent by ETHEL M. JELLEY (age 11), 37, Penmaesglas Terrace, Penygraig, Rhondda.

*Among Wild Birds.

The other day my father and I went for a walk in the country. We saw plenty of House Sparrows which, owing to their destructiveness, have been described as feathered rats; Robins were singing merrily, while near each farmstead were one or two Hedge Sparrows or Dunnocks. As is usual at this time of the year, several species of birds had formed themselves into flocks; for instance we observed a large flock of Starlings in one field, numerous larks in another, many Rooks cawing, and a few Jackdaws accompanying them. As we walked along a country lane we saw a group of Greenfinches feeding among the stubble; some of the male birds were lovely specimens. We also came across Song Thrushes, Missel Thrushes, Redwings, Fieldfares, Blackbirds, Chaffinches, and Meadow Pipits. And, lastly, we saw the largest flock of Lapwings that I have ever seen.—LUCIE BEATRICE FEW (aged 12 years).—Claraville, Buckley Street, Wigan.

*A Friendly Sparrow.

One cold winter's morning as I was watching some birds enjoying their breakfast of crumbs, I noticed that a large Blackbird seemed too shy to secure even a little bit. Three times I saw him hop quite close to the snow table around which his small feathered friends had fearlessly gathered, but each time when within reach of a crumb he flew away nervously, without having picked it up. Having summoned fresh courage he returned a fourth time, and boldly halting in front of a little sparrow who was enjoying a tempting morsel, he seemed determined to secure an equally dainty portion which laid before him; but unfortunately as he bent his black head towards it he was startled by the loud banging of a door. He again hurried away without his breakfast. He flew to a bank and there sat to recover from his fright. And now the little Sparrow showed his friendliness. He picked up the untasted morsel and carried it in his beak and placed it quite close to the feet of his timid friend. Dear little Sparrow! —Sent by EDITH SHEPHERD (age 11), 108, Grouse Street, Rochdale.

A CHAT ON A FEW FASCINATING FOREIGN BIRDS.

By R[illegible]SMITH.

Some Interesting Species.

The Green Singing Finch is one of the few foreign birds that sing, and a good male bird is quite deserving of a place in the collection. I say a male, as I have found a pair become a nuisance owing to their spiteful ways during the nesting period; in fact, I had to remove one pair from my aviary they became so quarrelsome. Food: Canary and millet seed.

The Silverbill is another very desirable inmate, rather soberly clad but a decidedly interesting little bird. They have a quiet warbling song, and if treated like the Waxbills, they will thrive well and will occasionally rear young.

Mannikins: Although some of these birds are very pretty, I do not care for them in the aviary. Usually they are very stupid as well as very weak in flight. The Bronze Mannikin, the Black and White Head Nuns and the Bengalee are the most common species.

The Weavers are very frequently kept on account of their cleverness in weaving nests, but where the aviary is only small not more than one or two should be kept. The Black-faced Weaver is most frequently imported. The Madagascar Weaver and the Orango Bishop are very handsome when in full summer plumage of brilliant red, but are inclined to be quarrelsome with smaller birds.

The Graceful Whydahs.

There are several species of these graceful birds. The Paradise and the Pintail are most frequently seen, and I think every foreign bird keeper should have one of the Paradise Whydahs. When in colour with its beautiful long black tail, often fifteen inches and more in length, it is quite a picture; it is also a very quiet and gentle bird, and I recommend every beginner to try one. They are quite hardy when acclimatised, and food consists of Canary seed and millet, a little insect food, and a few mealworms as a treat sometimes.

With reference to the Pintail, I advise you to keep him out of the aviary. The male bird is very pugnacious and will worry anything.

Last year a friend asked me to see his Pintail Whydah; so I visited him on several occasions to see this bird. It had killed its own mate and would fight anything; it even attacked a large Australian Crested Dove which was in the aviary.

Some Hints on Management.

I do not wish anyone to think this is a full guide for the keeping of Foreign birds, but just a few suggestions for the help and assistance of beginners. I will now give a few remarks on the general management of the birds.

When you first obtain your birds do not turn them out into your aviary at once, but put them into a large cage and feed carefully for a few weeks, so that they may regain their strength (unless, of course, you have bought birds from another aviary. When you do turn them out, choose a time when not only the days are warm, but the nights as well.

It is never advisable to put them out at the latter end of the summer; about June or July is the best; they will then be quite fit to stand the winter when it comes, provided the aviary is kept dry. Cold will not hurt them, but a wet place as well as cold soon causes death.

During the summer I give all my birds as many bunches of wild grass and seeds that I can gather. Always keep several pieces of cuttlefish bone about the aviary, and a very important item is to buy good seed, the best in the end is the cheapest.

Just one more word of warning; with regard to the Indian millet, many corn and seed dealers do not stock this, but will try to sell the common red or brown millet in place of it. Now, this is absolutely useless, as the birds will not touch it. So always buy the very best.

It is impossible in an essay to go into all the small details in the treatment of Foreign birds in captivity, but the thing is to make a start and one soon gets practical experience, which is worth all the books that have ever been printed. I hope that if any beginner reads this paper it will prove of some assistance.

Through a Bird-room Window.

CHAPTER II.—THE MAKING OF AN AVIARY.

Opinions are like vegetables, worth just what they will fetch. Advice is a drug in the market, the supply always exceeds the demand; still I venture to give mine in the hope that it may be of some slight use to those who are lower down the ladder of experience. The higher up we get the more we are isolated; the rooster on the top of the church steeple is of more importance, although he is tin, than the rooster in a barn yard. Since I am supposed to have had more experience and fortune than some in birdy matters, I venture to give my advice. Whether my readers like it or not is another thing.

A Doubtful Frame of Mind.

In this article I propose to treat of the making of aviaries much on the principle of the celebrated Mrs. Glass: "First catch your hare and then skin him." Now, we sometimes hit a thing right the first blow, but most always a sucksess is the result of many failures; at least, so said poor Artemus Ward, and I at anyrate have found his saying a true one.

I have tried all sorts of ways of keeping birds, and now I hesitate to say which is the best—it depends on so many things—the weather, your particular object, the birds themselves. The ideal aviary is, to the unthinking and inexperienced fancier, a big garden affair, with trees, bushes, flower beds, winding gravel paths and possibly a trout stream or a small lake—sober matter of fact. The aviaries must, I regret to say (in this detestable climate, at anyrate) be something less ideal. Aristotle kept a druggist's shop in Athens, Plato sold oil at a profit in Egypt. If I owned a good oil, I, too, could be an idealist; as it is, I have to go by sober and often very painful and costly experience. Not of goodwill, I allow, for like others, I prefer them made in corpore alieno, even as Artemus Ward, when prevented from taking part in the war himself, by other engagements, freely offered the services of all his relations!

Now, as the bright warm days of spring return once more, many and many a bird lover will allow his thoughts to turn lovingly to the making of aviaries; he has heard and read so much about them, what more delightful than one of his own? But how to set about it, that is the difficulty What most people want is a lead. I like somebody else, said a member of the Bramham Moor Hunt, to smash through the hedges and leave big gaps, and then I can follow comfortably. That, I believe, is my role in the following chapters. Others are to take warning by my spills. It is told of a certain priest, whose graveyard was sadly overcrowded, except the north side of the church, which being very damp and drear, was not much used for sepulture, went to a woman who was very old and ill, and having explained that distaste to the shady side was a mere fancy, asked her as a favour to leave instructions for her interment in that portion of the ground. The old lady took a few moments to consider, and then made answer. Well, sir, as you say one part's as good as another, and its of no consequence whatever where we're put, p'raps you'll give us a lead. There was no more clearly to be said. It was, as we say up here—a capper.

We hope not.

Now one great advantage about aviaries is that they save so much trouble No, I am not an idle man; but only those who have tried it, know what it means to clean out, feed, and water birds in a number of separate cages. It is all very well to tend your own pet Canary, but, by the way, do you always do that? Has the wife never had to see that poor "Dicky" never went short? I remember so well laughing years ago over a little sketch by the amusing author of "Under the Punkah," where he tells about his wife's bird-keeping experiences. She told him confidingly how she would love to have a dear little bird of her own, and how she would love to tend it. Here was his dry comment, doubtless based on past experience: My dear, God help that poor little bird! Might not the same remark apply to some of my present readers of either sex?

Aviaries do undoubtedly save a lot of trouble, and for a busy man this is a great consideration.

The birds, again, never look so well as in an aviary, and with comparatively few exceptions they are quite able to stand the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune provided for them by our detestable climate.

The Wet Blanket.

With regard to breeding operations, I am again all in favour of the garden aviary, if you can insure a fine summer—but what an "if" that is! How many a bitter disappointment I have experienced by reason of one of those "little showers" of which poor Charles Lamb spoke so feelingly; but I am never discouraged for long. I remember my old Horace still, rebus adversis fortis et animosus—so I go on till my next fall, for, as some of my readers know by now, I am as wilful as a stalk of ling. I have often felt over a "drowned nest" like the lad whose mother had just had an increase. It's come, he said, as he met me. It's a girl. Then with a burst of righteous indignation:—Fancy all that trouble for nothing!

As I am going to give you the result of my study of the habits of my feathered friends by what old Culpepper calls the constant help of Dr. Reason and Dr. Observation, I fear that pretty though an outdoor aviary doubtless is in Madeira or the Canary Isles, it is not quite suitable for Yorkshire, if you want long and continuous success in breeding. That, remember, has been my great hobby, to breed something which nobody else has bred or could breed. I always want to be first.

"Man wants but little—"

I hope I am not quite abnormal; but I do like to see the first Swallow, to hear the first Cuckoo, to eat the first strawberry, before anyone else each year, and if you want to be first in breeding a rare species, you have to get up very early now-a-days and take no risks. A heavy downpour of five minutes may, and often has, ruined my chance of a medal.

The form of an outdoor avairy is merely a matter of individual taste and skill. It is not a case of money, as wood and wire are both very cheap.

The size must depend upon your room space, but the larger the better. Use rough poles with the bark on for the uprights, and tie beams; nothing looks better than apple boughs covered over with lichen, if you are lucky enough to get them; failing these, try fir poles, but avoid using joiners' laths, they never look pretty or artistic. The wire employed should be ordinary half-inch aviary netting, about 25s. a roll of 50 yards. It will last for years and stretches nice and tight.

For my outdoor aviaries, I have a big house into which the birds can return at will, divided into different compartments, so that suitable birds can be housed together, because, although Dr. Watts said so, birds in their little nests do not agree, or out of them either, for that matter. One house that I got made at Hull, was a very big affair, some 30ft. long by 11ft. high and 10ft. wide, divided into four compartments by wire with suitable doors.

All along the front I had glass with windows that could open and shut at my will, made to slide in grooves backwards and forwards.

In this aviary I kept all sorts and conditions of birds, and they were hardly ever—I won't say, never—sick or sorry. I never use any artificial heat, partly because I don't care for going out at 10.30 on a winter's night to "stoke up," and partly because, with all the care in the world, the beastly things will sometimes go out at 5 a.m. in the morning, and then some of the birds go out with them. The windows and all glass work must be guarded from within by wire netting, as otherwise, birds, and especially young ones, leaving the nest for the first time, fly bang against the glass and knock their necks out. I have had this happen many a time, so take warning. A bit of netting in time saves many a valuable life. The Avicultural Society is most difficult to convince, and even if you sent them a rare youngster with a dislocated neck, and told them he was hatched sound, I fear they would find cause to withhold a medal!

In the indoor compartments I put up plenty of rustic boughs, nice and high up, because they are out of the way of my tall head, and to run your eye into a sharp apple bough causes language that you might afterwards regret in a calm moment, and also because most birds like to get well up on the roof. I will treat of nesting sites and contrivances at a later period.

On the floor of each indoor compartment have as little lumber as possible—because of the mice. These, like the poor, you will always have with you, do what you please. Exterminate them you cannot; keep them down you may.

To keep them down, all seed must be kept out of their reach. The best plan I have found is to make small trays, about 18 inches square, and fix them on a long iron or wood rod from the centre. The support should be 18ins. high, and if put in the centre of the bottom of the tray, a mouse cannot climb up. These "seed trays" want planting in the very centre of the floor space, well away from all side walls. I put the seed into little potted meat jars. The water I place in open pans on the floor.

The Last Bath.

In order to keep the stray mice down, I always have set one of the German mouse traps you can buy at any ironmonger's for about 2s. 3d. The mouse mounts a sort of funnel, steps on a balanced flap of tin, and drops neatly into a tin of water. We draw a veil over his feelings on landing. I have found them so tightly packed that I have wondered how they managed to drown comfortably. One precaution only is needed, put the trap with the entrance hole in a corner of the aviary, with a bit of board in front of it. Mice are very curious, they will be bound to go behind to investigate, but a bird won't. If left about the floor, these traps may catch some valuable bird, I have more than once so caught baby Quails, to my great sorrow.

In my next paper I propose to tell of the fitting up of nest boxes, sleeping arrangements, etc., and also the best construction of outdoor flights.

If I have said anything in this article that seems to run counter to what you find in books on birds, then I would beg you to do as old Dean Gaisford once did when enumerating the various passages in which he conceived the Biblical writers were confirmed by Greek and Roman authors, he appealed to his hearers to give such passages of the Bible as had not that advantage, their favourable consideration. I would ask my readers to do the like for me when I seem to clash with the "Auld Leights."

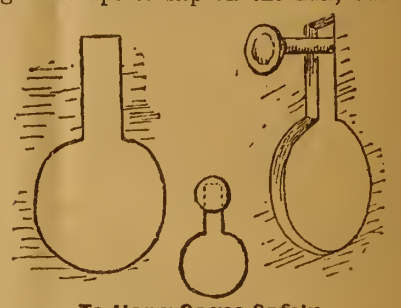
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

A SAFE METHOD FOR HANGING CAGES ON WALLS.

Sent by W. Perrin, 26, Garfield Street, Kettering.

The enclosed simple sketch is a safer way of hanging cages on walls, than is usually the case. By boring a hole only the cages are apt to slip off the nail, but by sawing about ½ inch upwards it is impossible for the cages to slip, if you use a large headed nail. It is a very simple method and one which should commend itself to all.

No. 170.

A NOVEL AVIARY WATER SUPPLY.

Sent by E. Fenton, 60, Fentiman Road, Clapham Road, London, S.W.

This appliance can be fitted to any outdoor aviary, at the outside price of 2/- viz: Biscuit tin 4d, ½in. gas tap 8d, cement 2d, pipe, about 10d. If the aviarist is unable to do the soldering of pipe into tank, and tap on pipe, any plumber will do it for a very small sum. Barrel may be used instead of ½in. gas pipe and any aviarist can mix a bit of cement and form a drinking trough, about 3in. deep. Another piece of barrel may be put into the cement at top of trough to lead the surplus water off to the yard or garden outside. The tank should be fixed to the wall, or in any available position. The tap can be set so as to dribble, and this to an extent keeps the water from freezing, as well as giving a constant supply. The well or trough can be sluiched out, kept clean, and always filled; the only trouble is keeping water in tank. The larger the tank the less the trouble. Thus a constant supply of clean water may be had without disturbing the birds or entering the aviary.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet, St, London, E.C.

The Housing and Treatment of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

The Damara Yellow-rumped Seed-eater (Serinus crocopygius).—Anderson, in his "Birds of Damara Land," states that he met with it sparingly in Damara and Great Namaqua Land, mostly about rocks in the vicinity of water, and that its food consists of seeds and berries.

Adult male: Upper surface, including the whole of the head, light brown, streaked with darker; lower back, rump, and upper tail coverts, yellow; eyebrow, line below eye and across cheeks, spot at base of lower mandible and throat, white; breast, sides, and flanks, light brown; remainder of arm surface, white; under wing coverts, yellowish brown; beak, horn colour; leg and feet, bluish-grey. Total length, 6 inches; tail, 2¼ inches.

Adult female: Similar, but slightly smaller, and her under wing coverts white. This species, in spite of the similarity of their vulgar names, ought not to be confused with S. angolensis, from which it is readily distinguishable by its larger size, angolensis being but 4½ inches in length.

The Black-faced Serin (Serinus Capistratus).—This most decidedly is one of the very handsomest of this genus, a male in adult plumage being a fine fellow indeed. A good male was exhibited at a recent (1907) London show in very finest condition, and it certainly was one of the most taking of the Finches exhibited. Either for cage or aviary, this species is unsurpassed among the Serins.

Adult male: Frontal band, sides of face and chin, black; the black forehead is succeeded by a broad band of canary-yellow, margining the front and sides of the crown; remainder of upper surface rich yellowish-green, with black shaft lines to most of the feathers, and black centres to wing coverts, flights, and tail feathers; rump, strongly suffused with yellow; the under-surface is canary-yellow, washed with yellow-green on the sides and flanks; beak, light horn colour with blackish tip; legs and feet, light brown. Total length, 4 3-8th inches, tail 1 5-8th inches.

Adult female: Greener than male, also lacks the black frontal band and cheeks of the male; under-surface yellow, streaked with dusky on the throat and breast; sides and flanks much greener than the male.

Habitat: Western Africa and the Congo region.

Sundevall's Canary or Serin (Serinus Scotops).—I am not aware of this species having yet been imported alive to this country, unless it has come among a mixed lot of Singing Finches and so passed unrecognised.

Adult male: Upper surface, greenish-yellow with black centres and shaft lines, rump and upper tail coverts yellowish; wing coverts and flights, blackish-brown with yellow and olive-green outer edges; tail similar, but with margins more yellow in hue; sides of face, greyish-olive; eye streak pale yellow; lores and high region, dusky blackish; chin very dark olive; breast and under-tail coverts, canary-yellow; remainder of under-surface greenish yellow, strongly streaked with blackish on the sides and flanks; beak, dusky; legs and feet, palo dusky brown. Total length, 5 inches, tail 2¼ inches.

The adult female differs from the male in having the lores and eye region ashy, lacks the dark olive chin, and the yellows of her undersurface are neither so rich or pure in hue as those of the male.

Habitat: South Africa.

Blandford's Canary or Serin (Serinus Flavivertex).—Another very rare species, having more or less the appearance of the Green Singing Finch.

Adult male: Top half of head bright Canary-yellow, merging into olive on the nape; upper surface olive green variegated with blackish; lower back and broad margins to upper tail coverts, yellow; tail, pointed and forked, brown with yellowish outer edges; wing, brownish black, with golden and olive-yellow outer margins to the coverts and flights; sides of head, mostly olive, with a black patch in front of eye; under-surface, rich Canary-yellow, whitish in centre of abdomen, and brownish-white on thighs and flanks, which are also streaked with blackish; beak, dark horn-colour, with base of lower mandible whitish; legs and feet, dark brown. Total length, 5 1-8th inches, tail 2¼ inches.

Adult female: Similar, but the hues of her plumage neither so rich nor pure in colour; her under-surface more streaked, and the yellow on sides of face and edges of wing coverts much duller than that of the male.

Habitat: N.E. and E. Africa.

Burton's Canary or Serin (Serinus Burtoni). — Extremely rare, only about four specimens yet recorded.

Adult: Upper surface dark brown, lightly scaled with paler edges to the feathers; forehead white, or mottled with white; some of the wing coverts have white tips, and the quills and tail feathers are narrowly edged with olive-yellow; chin cheeks, sides of face, lores and cheeks, dark brown lightly mottled with black; under-surface, light buff with dark brown shaft streaks on the sides of the body; beak, legs and feet, brown. Total length, 6¼ inches, tail 2 5-8th inches. Sexes very similar in plumage.

Habitat: Cameroons.

The Streaky-Brown Serin (Serinus Striolatus).—This plainly-clad but pretty species is very common in Masailand, and ranges pretty generally in Eastern Africa. Capt. Shelley, in "Birds of Africa," records the finding of a nest by Mr. Jackson in a bush 3 ft. from the ground, but no description is given.

Adult male: Upper surface brown, thickly streaked with blackish-brown, with the feathers of the mantle and back edged with light brown; the rump is lighter brown than the back; the wing coverts, secondaries and quills have the outer edges partially olive-yellow, some of the coverts have broad terminal edges of whitish-brown; crown of head, dark brown, streaked with black and white; lores and eye region, blackish; below eye there is a crescentic white streak, and also a whitish band across ear coverts; forecheeks, whitish, remainder of head dark brown; throat and under-surface, dull white, with the breast, sides of body and flanks broadly streaked with blackish; beak dusky; legs and feet, dull rufous. Total length, 5¼in., tail 2 3-8th in.

The Common Serin or Serin Finch (Serinus Serinus). — This species has a very wide range, viz., Central and Southern Europe, Asia Minor, Palestine, Egypt, Northern Germany, while stray specimens are occasionally taken in Great Britain.

Adult male: The general colour of the upper surface is pale brown, broadly streaked with black; there is a yellowish wash over the whole, and the lower back and rump are bright yellow; lesser wing coverts, greenish yellow; median and greater coverts black, with yellow edges and whitish tips, forming a double wing bar; remainder of coverts and flights blackish, with pale yellow edges; top of head, yellowish-brown streaked with black; forehead and nape, yellow; eye region, yellow; ear coverts, greyish-yellow; cheeks, ashy; throat and breast yellow, with an ashy band across lower throat; abdomen, white; sides of body and flanks brownish-yellow, broadly streaked with black; under tail coverts white, washed with yellow and streaked with black. Total length, 4½in., tail 2in.

Adult female: Similar, but greyer, and the yellow wash on her plumage not so bright as that of the male.

Birds and Severe Weather.

During the past week the wild birds have fared badly. The hoar frost at times has covered the grass, hedgerows, and trees, with a coating of glistening silver; beautiful to look upon, and creating many a charming picture, but had for the wild life of the fields. The Thrushes and Blackbirds have shuffled along the footpath before us or hustled through the bottom of the hedge, looking almost twice their natural size, for the severe weather locks fast the doors of natures granaries and food stores, the wild seeds are difficult to obtain, and the army of small creeping things is snugly packed away out of danger, until a change takes place. Meanwhile the Thrush and the Blackbird, the Finch and the gay Tits, must exist as best they can. They cannot all find their way to the bird tables of the kindly disposed, nor to the sheltered gardens of the village; some must stay in the wind swept fields, and face the bitter cold.

The Only Means of Existence.

Bird life is so plentiful and crowded, that dispersion is the only means of existence. So severe has the weather been in our exposed position, that the birds of the gardens have looked half dead with cold. The bird table had been liberally supplied, and Thrushes, Finches and Tits have taken advantage of free rations, some of them even coming to the door when the food was cleared up. We could see many birds dotted here and there over the grass-land, that were either too timid or unobservant to take advantage of the free kitchen. These must have had a bad time of it; we watched them listlessly hopping about upon the frost clad grass, searching for the worm, they never found. It is undoubtedly lack of food, which causes wild birds to so quickly succumb to cold. The Rooks did not appear to suffer much; they are big strong birds and are able to dig and forage as few can, and almost anything that is in any way eatable will be taken by them. No doubt many of the smaller birds which die during a severe time, are found and eaten by these rascals. This is why we do not find so many bodies as we sometimes think we should. In addition to these, there are the rats, weasels and stouts of the fields. These hunt chiefly by scent, and would no doubt make short work of a bird, even though he may be a mere starved skeleton.

Susceptible to Weather Changes.

When one considers the active habits of wild birds, and the enormous appetites they have, one is not surprised that they feel so quickly any change in the weather that deprives them of the necessary amount of food required to keep them going. Many people are under the impression that such small things as birds do not require much in the way of sustenance to keep them in health. This is quite an error. For their size these birds probably consume more food than any living creature. Their active ways and energetic actions require large quantities of fuel in the way of food to keep the little birdy engines going; in addition to which the bodily heat is considerably higher than our own. If we take, by way of example, the familiar Robin, we find he has a wonderful appetite for his size; in fact, he will consume during the day about two and a half times his own weight in solid food, and he is not by any means an exceptionally big eater in birdland. Other species can pack away quite as much in proportion. This big consumption of food explains the reason why wild birds are so continually upon the move.

Solway Shore Deserted.

The bird whose disappearance is most noticeable is the Scaup. It is six or [illegible] years since they frequented the estu[illegible] any numbers, though before that the[illegible] very plentiful. It is a rare occurrence to see even a couple of these birds, [illegible] when odd ones do appear, it is invariably during wild, stormy weather. But in the Firth they are still plentiful, and the writer has seen flocks more than a mile long off Southerness. The noise a flock of this size makes when it takes the wing is incredible, and heard on a still, frosty night, it reminds one of a huge waterfall. The disappearance of the Knot was not such a gradual affair as that of the Scaup, which became noticeably scarce for several seasons before they finally disappeared. Outside the estuary they are as plentiful as ever. The Goodwits disappeared the same year, and have not returned. Barnicle Geese have not frequented the marshes on either bank of the Arr for over fifteen years. The birds which do not show any alarming decrease in numbers are Oystercatchers, Curlews, Mallard, Wigeon, Gulls Cormorants, Herons, Sheldrakes, and Peewits.

(concluding note is sent by Mr. T. Love).

NOTES AND QUERIES.

The Pied Wagtail.

For quite a month now I have seen nothing of the graceful Pied Wagtails. These could invariably be found upon the meadow land close to us. I have no doubt they have gone south, or possibly crossed the channel. Their return is easily noted, as they travel in small parties and are quickly observed by their conspicuous plumage.

Some Pugnacious Gulls.

Quite recently, and not the first time in St. James's Park (London), two presumably innocent Dabchicks were seen to have become the sport of some Black-headed Gulls which, fast as the former emerged from the water, their place of shelter, swooped down upon them with the persistency and mercilessness of a Hawk. One of the Gulls was seen actually preying upon a Waterhen; this, however took flight and eluded its tormentor.

The Cormorant as a Fisher.

It is a little surprising to know how and to what extent a Cormorant can and does exercise its fishing instincts. It affords a guide to fishermen as to the whereabouts of fish. A flock of Cormorants may often be seen paddling in one of the "grounds" of a Cornish bay, every now and again making successful dives after sandeels, etc.; and the fishermen know that when these birds are busily engaged catching the smaller kinds of fish they may always expect to find the larger kind there too. On the rivers the appetites of these birds are thought to be so great as to seriously affect the future supply of salmon and trout. Some Comorants are used to catch fish, but are debarred from swallowing them by collars and cords that have been previously fastened round their necks by their owners; they show their natural dislike to this by digging their owners in the eyes when an opportunity affords itself.

Starlings and Daddy-longlegs.

Writing in reference to the unprecedented number of "daddy-longlegs" which infested the southern counties in the summer of 1907, a writer in a daily contemporary draws attention to the fact that a larger number of Starlings than usual collected themselves together during the previous November. Digging his beak into the soft soil, a Starling invariably extracts something extremely tasty, and this it is thought by some is the "leather jacket," or larvæ of the "daddy-longlegs." This is however, extremely improbable in view of the fact that the crops of a large number of Starlings had been found to contain evidence that these "tasty" things were what are known as "wire-worms." And these are the larvæ not of "daddy-longlegs," but of the "click-beetle"—a singularly destructive insect which draws its sustenance from the tender roots of plants and herbs.

On Railway Embankments.

Why is it that so much wild bird life is to be found along the railway embankments? It does not matter if it is summer or winter, one can always find plenty to interest and watch, if it is possible to follow the line for a short distance. Near town the Thrushes, Robins, Blackbirds and Hedge Sparrows are the species chiefly to be noted. A little way out we may add to these the Rook, Skylark, Meadow Pipit, and several Finches. In wild districts I have seen the Whinchat, Stonechat, Plover and Redshank; while many a Skylark's, Meadow Pipit's, and Wagtail's nest has been found upon these familiar banks. Near the sea coast the Gulls and Wader can be frequently noted, and occasionally a roving Hawk will perch upon the top of one of the telegraph posts. When the opportunity offers, the bird lover should never miss a stroll along a railway embankment.
